WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford asked Congress Tuesday to impose a one-time 5 per cent surtax on corporations and all but low-income taxpayers to help combat an inflationary rate which he said could "destroy our country."

Addressing a joint session of Congress — which quits in three days to face the electorate — the President appealed for higher taxes as a means of helping inflation's worst victims, stimulating a sluggish economy and reducing the federal deficit, which helps drive up interest rates.

Ford's tax proposal would cost corporations $2.1 billion and individuals $2.6 billion.

For a typical $20,000-a-year family of four, the surtax would amount to $128 atop its normal federal income tax of $2,560.

A single person earning $10,000 would pay $54.78 more than his present $1,095.50 in taxes.

The surcharge would apply only to families with $15,000 or more in income or single people earning over $7,500.

People earning less would get tax relief next year from Ford's proposals. There would be new tax cuts, too, for businesses which expand or modernize.

The surcharge — a tax on taxes due —

would be in effect only for 1975, starting next Jan. 1.

"I say to you with all sincerity that inflation, our present public enemy, will — unless it is whipped — destroy our country, our homes, our liberties, our property and finally our national pride — as surely as any well-armed wartime enemy," the President declared in somber tones.

Ford said he knew it was "politically unwise" to propose taxes four weeks before an election, and initial reaction from Congress seemed to bear out his judgment.

Most congressmen reacted cautiously and skeptically to the proposed surtax. Many suggested that the $15,000 base was too low, others said taxes could not be raised on middle incomes until loopholes for the rich were closed, and others expressed outright hostility to the idea. Significantly, however, in initial reaction a number of congressional leaders did not rule out the surtax entirely.

Acting contrary to Ford's proposals, the House Ways and Means Committee voted 15 to 6 earlier Tuesday to exempt from income taxes the first $500 of interest earned on savings accounts — a move that would cost the Treasury $1.8 billion.

The tax-writing committee called a hearing for 9 a.m. CDT Wednesday, asking-

What the President proposes...

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Here at a glance are some of the new proposals put forward by President Ford in his anti-inflation message Tuesday:

Taxes

- A one-year, 5 per cent income tax surcharge on corporations and individuals beginning Jan. 1, 1975. It affects families with annual incomes over $15,000 and individuals over $7,500.
- An increase in the investment tax credit, a device for companies to speed up major equipment purchases, from 7 to 10 per cent for most corporations and 4 to 10 per cent for utilities.
- Allow corporations tax deductions for dividends they pay on qualified preferred stock.

Food

- Remove production restrictions on peanuts and extra-long-staple cotton.
- Request authority to allocate fertilizer in order to ensure that farmers have the amounts they need.

Energy

- Require rapid conversion of oil and natural gas-burning electric power plants to coal or nuclear energy where public health would not be endangered.
- More rigid compliance with the 55 m.p.h. speed limit and a renewed plea to consumers to voluntarily conserve energy by lowering thermostats this winter, keeping car engines in tune, using car pools and turning out unnecessary lights.

Attorney to study legality of ordinance

Village officials consider ban on police call monitors

by RICH HONACK

Wheeling village officials are considering a ban on the use of short-wave radio receivers that can monitor police radio calls.

Trustee William Hein has asked the village attorney to look into the legality of an ordinance that would outlaw such receivers for the "safety of policemen." Hein said the radios are a detriment to policemen because they enable burglars, vandals and other criminals to monitor police movements.

"There is one store in town that has the system going. What if there were burglars in there and they tied the owner up. They could, if police officers were entering, be waiting to gun them down," Hein said.

Hein said that he also is looking at the possibility of putting scramblers on all police unit equipment. "They use this in Los Angeles County. Only policemen would understand the call and the public could not," Hein added.

THE TRUSTEE ALSO said the police department may go to ultra-high frequencies with several other departments for the same reasons. This would make most short-wave receivers out of range of the police calls, unless new equipment is added to the receiver.

"I have talked to Police Chief (Peter) Guttila, he agrees with me that something needs to be done," Hein said.

According to one police source, the meeting took place Monday at the police station with Lt. Thomas Conti. The source said that following the meeting, the officials declared that they had found a way to stop news leaks in the department.

The source said that police officials believe that residents monitor police calls and call newspapers to give them the information.

"Let me assure you this was not the reason for my requesting this ordinance," Hein told The Herald. "It is not my intention to stop these leaks. I have proposed this strictly for the safety of our policemen."

A SPOKESMAN FOR the Federal Communications Commission said Tuesday that he knows of no laws that prohibit monitoring of police broadcasts. "All we care about is outside interference caused by someone trying to transmit over our frequency," he said. "Receivers do not come under our jurisdiction. They are left up to the state."

The FCC spokesman said that he does know of several police departments that use scramblers or decoders.

Firemen to visit schools in village

As part of this week's observance of Fire Prevention Week, members of the Buffalo Grove Fire Dept. are visiting village schools.

Lectures are being given to first grade and kindergarten children and fire prevention literature is being handed out to the other grades.

The theme for this year's observance is "Things That Burn. Assistant Fire Chief William Dettmer said residents should be aware of fire hazards in their homes and correct or remove them and each family should practice its own fire drill in its own residence.

Some of the hazards Dettmer listed were stored rubbish, stored gasoline or other flammable liquids, smoldering cigarette butts and matches.

'It's unfair,' says man in the street

A Herald staff report

Middle-income families already are absorbing the brunt of taxes and inflation, say area residents reacting to President Ford's proposed income-tax surcharge.

Persons polled by The Herald Tuesday afternoon lent little support to the President's call for increased taxes on middle- and upper-income families and individuals. Saying they already were hurting from taxes and inflation, they called upon the federal government to do some belt-tightening of its own.

"I think it stinks," said Larry Brousseau. "They ought to be getting the money out of the guys that are really making it."

MANY OF THE persons polled said taxes already were too high and inflation was raising havoc with family budgets.

"Personally, I can't see how it's going to curb inflation. We're being taxed to death already," said Anne Johnson of Hoffman Estates.

She added, "Most people I know are having a hard time making ends meet right now."

Jean Fritz, Arlington Heights, said the surcharge was going to hit young married couples the hardest.

Tax hike 'not a solution'

by BOB LAHEY

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, predicted Tuesday night that Congress will reject President Ford's recommendation for a 5 per cent income surtax on families with incomes over $15,000.

Crane, vocally upset over parts of Ford's economic measures for both political and economic reasons, made the prediction in an appearance before the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce's annual dinner meeting hours after the President's televised message.

"An increase in taxes at this point is not a solution to any of our problems," Crane told the chamber members at the Lancer's Restaurant in Schaumburg.

In an address which can only be described as deeply pessimistic, Crane said the United States is on the brink of a depression "of the magnitude of 1929," and warned of grave danger of armed intervention by Western European nations against the Arab oil-producing nations that might well lead to "World War III."

HE SAID THE net effect of Ford's economic message would be inflationary, producing less in revenue through the surcharge on income taxes than would be lost through tax credits for business investment — which he welcomed — and the cost of possible public works projects outlined by the President.

Politically, Crane said, the President's surtax proposal struck yet another blow at Republican Congressional candidates. He said the surtax has direct impact on districts where Republicans normally

Side-street speed limits to be cut from 30 to 20

Speed limits on residential streets in Wheeling will be lowered from 30 to 20 m.p.h.

The village board this week adopted an ordinance reducing the speed limit for the safety of youngsters. Final approval is expected next week, with the lower limits going into effect when signs are posted.

Village officials decided to reduce the limit after a series of speed surveys on residential areas.

In a report to the board, Village Mgr. George Passolt said, "These tests justify a 20 m.p.h. speed limit throughout the village."

Earlier this year, the village posted 20 m.p.h. signs on Cedar Run Drive and Strong Street between Wolf Road and Twelfth Street. The limits, however, were unenforceable because the village had not passed an ordinance.

ALTHOUGH RESIDENTS have been requesting reduced speed limits for years, the village previously maintained it was illegal to lower the speed limits below 30 m.p.h. — the state-specified limit for residential streets.

The state, however, allows municipalities to lower speed limits if speed surveys show that 85 per cent of all drivers travel at or below the reduced speed. The number of driveways, pedestrian traffic and parking regulations also were taken into consideration before ordering the lower speed limits.

Police officials said the lower speed limits are needed because of the large number of children living in the area. They said with the 30 m.p.h. speed limit some drivers travel at 35 to 40 m.p.h. which is too fast for residential streets.

The ordinance will apply only to village streets and not state or county highways that run through the village. The present speed of 35 m.p.h. in alleys will be retained.

Manzo joins Navy

Robert Charles Manzo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carlo Manzo has enlisted in the Navy. Manzo of 842 Old Willow Rd., Wheeling, will attend recruit training at Orlando, Fla. Upon completion of recruit training he will go on to the Navy's storekeepers school under a two-year school guarantee program.

Man seized with stolen securities

An Elk Grove Village man, Theodore E. Price, 47, was arrested Tuesday when he attempted to cash an estimated $75,000 worth of stolen municipal bonds. Price was apprehended at the Schaumburg State Bank after bank officials tipped off police. One other suspect is being held. The bonds, from various municipalities including Arlington Heights and Lake Forest, were taken in a Lake County home burglary last spring.

Ban on police-call monitors?

Wheeling officials are considering a ban on the use of short-wave radio receivers that can monitor police radio broadcasts. Trustee William Hein proposed the measure, he said, because radios enable criminals to monitor police movements. One source said the ban was suggested because police officials believe residents monitoring police calls tip off newspapers, but Hein said "this was not the reason for my requesting this ordinance." A spokesman for the Federal Communications Commission said he had never heard of prohibiting residents from monitoring calls.

Man charged with murder

Murder charges were filed Tuesday against Stanley Woods, a former Arlington Park Race Track stable hand, in the beating death of John H. Walker, 51, also a track employee, in August. Walker died after he suffered "numerous" blows to the head during a fight at the track. Woods and a companion, John "One-Step Jack" Cochran, disappeared shortly after the incident. Both are charged with stealing Walker's car.

Ford's third news conference today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford will hold his third news conference at 1:30 p.m. CDT today in the White House Rose Garden, his chief spokesman announced.

White House News Secretary Ron Neesen also said that the President would experiment with a new format in questioning, with reporters allowed to submit "follow up" inquiries on the same subject if they want Ford to elaborate on his initial answer.

The meeting with reporters, Ford's first since Sept. 18, will be open to radio and television coverage and its outdoor location will be subject to weather conditions.

Village Trustee John Koepfen suggested dividing the village into districts to ensure equal representation on the village board. Currently, trustees are elected at-large and four of the six, including Koepfen, live in one subdivision.

Jet-noise control asked

Congressional candidate Abner J. Mikva has proposed federal legislation to give suburban communities a voice in noise-control policies at major airports such as O'Hare. Mikva said a noise pollution control board should be set up for each airport, in areas where 60 per cent of the persons in the noise-impact area live outside the boundary of the city controlling the airport. Each community would have a representative on the board, which would have the power to impose noise controls on airport operations.

Village appeals airport rule

The Village of Wheeling will ask the Illinois Appellate Court to rehear its de-boards in their organization drive. The group, with 164 of a potential 475 members, has complained to the National Labor Relations Board, charging the hospital with trying to thwart unionization. Hospital officials deny it.

The court ruled in favor of Palwaukee in a village suit charging that safety precautions at the airport are inadequate and asserting the authority of the county or village to regulate runway lengths and aircraft weights.

Palatine hits MSD decision

Palatine officials are making plans to fight a Metropolitan Sanitary District decision to exclude the village from a tunnel-reservoir plan at a cost to local residents of millions of dollars. The village flood-control committee has been directed by the village board to evaluate 18 sanitary district plans for reducing pollution and flooding problems in Palatine. The move is a preliminary step toward asking the MSD to reconsider its decision to drop Palatine from the tunnel-reservoir system or help foot the bill with the village for an alternative sewer plan.

COOPERATIVE BLOOD REPLACEMENT PLAN 477-7500

Bank's failure is worst in history

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Franklin National Bank Tuesday was declared insolvent by the government and sold to six European banks in the largest bank failure in U.S. history.

Government banking officials said the money of all depositors, including those with more than the insured limit of $20,000, would be protected.

Frank Wille, chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., which sold the bank, said "all deposits and liabilities will be honored" by the new owners. He said the more than 100 branches of the bank, which operates in the New York area, will be open for regular business Wednesday.

Franklin National, the nation's 20th largest bank until last December, was declared insolvent and placed in receivership by the comptroller of the currency. It was then put on bids and sold for $1.7 billion to the European-American Bank and Trust. The sale was approved by the New York State Banking Supt. Harry W. Albright and by U.S. District Court Judge Orrin G. Judd.

"This is the largest failure ever — period," said an officer of the Federal Reserve bank which loaned Franklin more than $1.7 billion to keep its doors open through the summer.

The Franklin, which grew swiftly from a suburban institution in Long Island, N.Y., to one of the nation's biggest, fell into financial difficulty last spring. It was disclosed by Franklin officials then that international currency transactions had resulted in $36 million in losses.

Ford: trim spending, save energy

From United Press International
Aside from tax changes, the average American's daily life would be little changed by any of the over 30 bills President Ford proposed Tuesday in his 50-minute economic address to a joint session of Congress.

The President appealed to Americans to save energy and to trim their personal spending budgets if they possibly could. He announced a goal of cutting petroleum consumption by 1 million barrels a day. The country now consumes 18 million barrels a day, importing 6.5 million barrels.

He called for phasing out the oil depletion allowance over three years and imposing a windfall profit tax on the oil industry; deregulating natural gas; and removing crop restrictions on rice, peanuts and extra-long-staple cotton.

Ford also proposed:
• Helping business expand by increasing the 7 per cent investment tax credit to 10 per cent and 4 per cent tax credit for utilities to 10 per cent. Using the tax credit, firms are permitted to subtract from taxes some of what they pay for new equipment or modernization.

• Helping the unemployed with a 13-week extension of unemployment benefits and a community jobs program. Both would go into effect only if unemployment climbs — as is expected — in the coming months. These new benefits could pump $2.25 billion into the economy.

• Imposing a severe $300 billion ceiling on federal spending for the current fiscal year which ends next June 30, a hard-to-achieve cut of $5 billion in projected federal spending.

• Boosting hard-hit housing industry by extending government guarantees to $3 billion worth of conventional home mortgages — enough to finance the purchase of 100,000 houses. Conventional mortgages would also benefit by a small subsidy of interest rates.

• Giving corporations more to spend on expansion by allowing them to deduct from taxable income the dividends they pay on certain preferred stock, a saving to businesses of $100 million.

• Trying to make companies compete more intensely with one another by raising the penalties for violations of the antitrust laws if they conspire to fix prices.

Ford emphasized that the energy crisis which caused long gas lines over parts of the nation last winter was still "a real energy problem."

He asked motorists to reduce their driving by 5 per cent by carpooling, riding buses or bikes "or just plain walking."

The President sought power to compel utilities to switch from oil to coal and he also asked for relaxation of air pollution standards and for deregulation of natural gas — a step which economists say would send gas prices skyward.

In his speech, Ford said he wanted to zero in on lots of things the government itself does which drive prices up or make goods scarce or otherwise add to inflationary pressures.

He asked Congress to establish a National Commission on Regulatory Reform to re-examine federal "rules and regulations that increased costs . . . without good reason."

Amtrak pressed for funds

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford asked Congress Tuesday for an additional $84.9 million to keep Amtrak passenger trains running beyond February.

The fiscal 1975 funds would be in addition to $138.3 million already appropriated for the semi-public agency.

Meanwhile, the House Rules Committee rejected an $11.8 billion compromise measure to aid ailing mass transit systems.

A congressional source said the extra Amtrak money — although not necessarily all that was requested — would likely be included in a supplemental appropriations bill now working its way through Congress.

"Without the requested supplemental appropriation, Amtrak will not be able to continue train operation after February, 1975," said Budget Director Roy Ash.

Another Amtrak bill has been approved by House-Senate conference committee which would demand initiation of a new Utah-Idaho-Oregon passenger route and require that top priority in assigning new experimental train routes be given to states whose major population center does not have a passenger train.

The House Rules committee voted 6-6 on a request to clear the mass transit measure for a floor vote Tuesday and it shelved. A tie vote amounts to a "no" vote in Congress.

The measure would have authorized $7.8 billion in capital grants and $4 billion in operating subsidies for the nation's urban mass transit systems over the next six years.

Britons to polls tomorrow in crucial national election

LONDON (UPI) — Conservative party leader Edward Heath renewed his call Tuesday for a government of national unity to deal with Britain's economic crisis if he is elected in Thursday's general election. But he was rebuffed by the Labor and Liberal parties.

Some 41 million Britons will go to the polls in their country's most crucial national election since World War II. As the perennial sick man of Europe, Britain is once again suffering from a balance-of-payments crisis, soaring inflation, a negative growth rate, incipient massive unemployment and declining standards of living.

"At this meeting," Heath told his daily campaign news conference Tuesday, "we will start the process of hammering out a common policy for the crisis."

He said he will call in labor, business and farm leaders early next week for further talks.

But Labor Prime Minister Harold Wilson dismissed Heath's announcement as "a gimmick — a tactic to get votes."

"I plan to be at Chequers Saturday," he said. Chequers is the prime minister's official country residence — an indication Wilson expects still to be government chief after the election.

Liberal party leader Jeremy Thorpe said "I consider a coalition government is unlikely in the extreme."

With only two campaign days left before the nation votes Thursday for a new parliament, the three party leaders continued wrangling in public at their news conferences about the possibility of forming a national unity government to deal with inflation and the threat of mass unemployment.

The proposal came from Heath, who said he would try to form such an administration if his party wins. But it was dismissed by the other two party chiefs.

None of the three leaders have been able to offer any specific answers to Britain's critical problems during the campaign.

For most of the voters, the key issue is inflation. During the past year, retail prices rose by 17%, and by one count there have been 451 price increases in food alone.

Tax surcharge to fight inflation asked

ing Treasury Secretary William E. Simon or his representative to explain the tax proposals.

Ford asked Congress to enact the new taxes in the 30 days it will meet in a lame-duck session following the Nov. 5 election.

Such swift approval of so unpopular a measure appeared unlikely. But the surcharge could be resurrected in the 94th Congress in January and made retroactive to the start of the year.

Administration economic aides briefed congressional leaders on the details of Ford's program after he spoke. The President arranged to hold a news conference at 1:30 p.m. CDT Wednesday to spell out further his explanations of why he felt higher taxes were essential.

The $15,000 family and $7,500 single income figures in the surtax proposal are guideposts only, and individuals making somewhat more than these benchmark figures could still prove exempt while some making slightly less could be liable for the 5 per cent tax.

For example, there will be married taxpayers with more exemptions and deductions than the average who will pay no surcharge even though their adjusted gross incomes are somewhat greater than $15,000. The reverse will also be true occasionally.

To complicate the matter further, tax liabilities are based on "taxable income" — what's left over after deductions and exemptions — rather than the much higher "adjusted gross income" figure.

Thus, the government says the surcharge will actually be applied to that portion of taxable income over $10,000 for families and over $5,450 for single persons. These are "average figures" calculated by subtracting a standard deduction and an average number of exemptions from the adjusted gross income figure.

To compute how much you owe under the proposed plan, figure out your regular tax, subtract from that amount the tax you owe on either the $10,000 or the $5,450 exemption and then multiply the balance by 5 per cent.

For example, a single person with $10,000 of taxable income would calculate a regular tax of $2,090 and subtract from that $994.50 — the tax on the first $5,450 — to arrive at $1,095.50. This is the figure which is subject to the 5 per cent surcharge, equalling $54.78.

Using the same arithmetic, a family of four filing a joint return and having $20,000 in taxable income would end up paying a surcharge of $128.

Ford's strong push for tax legislation this year apparently has knocked Congress off dead center on the issue.

Sen. Russell Long, D-La., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said Tuesday if tax legislation was "near dead, he breathed a lot of life into it today."

Long appeared to support the surtax, saying "What the President suggested falls within the area of what I suggested to him."

Less enthusiastic was AFL-CIO President George Meany, who said he cannot support any income tax increase for middle income wage earners.

Meany said an income tax surcharge was "a patchwork on the tax structure," when what was needed was a "complete package" of tax reform. He said an income tax surcharge could be a partial answer to inflation if it were "based on the high incomes of those able to pay."

U.S. help in Boston violence sought

BOSTON (UPI) — Urgent calls went out Tuesday for federal help to calm violence that has marred school integration after at least 30 persons were injured in disorders stemming from a court-ordered school busing plan here. Mayor Kevin White asked for 125 U.S. marshals, and five black legislators asked for "at least a division" of federal troops.

In addition, the NAACP called on White to bring in immediately extra police from throughout the state including the state police and possibly the National Guard.

The pleas for federal help all made to U.S. District Judge W. Arthur Garrity, came as violence erupted at English High School and a white taxicab driver was dragged from his car by a group of blacks near the Mission Hill Housing Project in Roxbury.

The driver, Morris Brass, 51, of Brockton was reported in a "state of shock" at Peer Bent Brigham Hospital with multiple internal injuries, two compound leg fractures and spinal injuries.

The beating of Brass appeared to be in retaliation against the beating of a black man who was pulled from his car in South Boston by whites Monday and hit with sticks.

At least eight other persons were injured, including another white man who suffered head injuries when he was attacked by blacks near the project, officials said.

The disruption Tuesday, which forced English High School to close early, spread to nearby Roxbury where bands of black youths roamed through streets hurling rocks at passing motorists, shattering scores of windshields.

Firemen seek cost of living increase

Firemen called yesterday for a 20 per cent cost-of-living increase that would hike salaries for fire fighters with three years of experience to $17,582 a year. The demands, presented to Mayor Richard Daley, would increase the cost to the city an additional $15 million annually. The mayor will study the proposals for about two weeks.

Arkansas firm may get license plate job

An Arkansas company whose last president pleaded guilty to bribing Paul Powell has apparently outbid a Freeport firm for a lucrative contract to make 1976 Illinois license plates, state officials said yesterday. Jim North, purchasing agent for general services, said the bid will be official when his office double-checks bid specifications, probably within a week.

Pardon testimony postponed to Oct. 17

President Ford's testimony to a congressional committee was postponed until Oct. 17 yesterday because the Judge presiding in the Watergate coverup case could not guarantee he could sequester a jury by Thursday. The postponement came in a brief one-sentence statement.

Campaign funding bill approved by Senate

The Senate approved a compromise package of political reforms which would give the Democratic and Republican presidential candidates $20 million each in taxpayer funds to wage their 1976 campaigns. In addition to providing public financing for political campaigns, the measure would eliminate "fat cat" donors and, for the first time, set a limit on candidate spending. The House is expected to approve the bill Thursday.

Ford asks aid to Turkey be restored

President Ford appealed to Congress yesterday to restore U.S. military aid to Turkey and threatened to veto a "misguided and extremely harmful" House-passed foreign aid bill containing the cutoff. The House resolution would require an immediate end of U.S. military assistance to Turkey until Ford certifies "substantial progress" is made toward an agreement for removal of Turkish forces on Cyprus.

Young, Mikva reaction mixed

The two candidates vying for the 10th Congressional seat had basically similar views on President Ford's proposal to seek a 5 per cent income surtax on middle and upper income families to help combat inflation.

U.S. Rep. Samuel Young, R-10th, and his Democratic challenger Abner Mikva did not endorse the plan, and Young indicated less opposition to the proposal than did Mikva.

Young said the proposal was a "broad-based approach to the most urgent problem of the country — inflation, food, energy, unemployment, housing and capital shortage."

The congressman added that he has "reservations" about the plan to impose a surcharge on individuals and said the $5 billion in taxes to be raised from the plan could also be raised through an excess profits tax on oil and gas companies plus a 5 per cent surcharge on corporate income taxes.

Young said a balanced budget is imperative to stopping inflation but he would prefer a spending limit of $295 billion instead of Ford's proposed $300 billion limit for fiscal 1975.

MIKVA SAID THE 5 per cent surtax proposal "ignores the plight of middle-income families."

"President Ford's proposal asks the victims of inflation to bear an unreasonable share of the tax burden even though they already have that dubious distinction," Mikva said.

The former congressman added that he applauded Ford's commitment to enforce the antitrust laws and provide public service jobs for the unemployed, and said they were actions he has urged in the past.

"There are plenty of loopholes in our tax laws which could raise the same or more money if they were closed," Mikva said. "We can raise the same amount of money that a surtax would provide with an excess profits tax on the food and oil companies and other inflation husters that are profiteering on our economic plight.

"We could save even more by cutting the fat of the defense budget or with a highway freeze," Mikva said.

The candidates made their statements Tuesday following Ford's address to a joint session of Congress on ways to curb inflation.

In addition to his proposed surtax, Ford proposed tax cuts for poor Americans and for businesses that must expand to meet the needs of the energy shortage.

work hard to get up there (the $15,000-and-above income)," Mrs. Fritz said.

A Palatine woman shopper with several small children wished the starting point for the surcharge were raised above the $15,000 level. "It's hard enough to support a family as it is," she said.

EVEN THOSE WITHOUT children or other dependents said they were unhappy with the proposal.

Mrs. Cora Williams, Des Plaines, said, "I don't like it one bit. We have no children and cannot take any big deductions. We are always paying taxes to benefit other people."

Some people took exception to Ford's urging them to put their money into the bank rather than spending it now.

"Yeah, the President wants me to put money in the bank. How the hell are you going to put money in the bank when the prices go up daily on things like gas and food?" responded Edwin Zabath of Elk Grove village.

"Cut the damned prices and I'll start putting money in the bank. The surcharge? I wouldn't care for it at all," Zabath said.

ANOTHER DES PLAINE woman and Anita Janke, Mount Prospect, called for the federal government to cut its own budget to help fight inflation. The Des Plaines woman called the surtax "ridiculous" and said unneeded government programs should be eliminated.

Mrs. Janke said, "I'm not too crazy about it. They could find other ways, they waste too much money."

Another Elk Grove Village resident said that $15,000 should not be considered a high income, especially in this area.

"Since when does $15,000 fall in a higher income bracket? The surcharge doesn't thrill me in particular. A couple of years ago, $15,000 was a good income. Today you can barely afford living out here if that's all you make," said John Schimel.

Schimel also said previous surtaxes didn't work and it will "just make us suffer a little more."

SOME RESIDENTS, however, felt the measures were needed to help halt the steady rise of inflation.

Frank Basil, Arlington Heights, termed it "a step in the right direction." He said, "Ford's trying to do something. I think we should give it a chance."

George Jansen, Arlington Heights, said the surtax is "needed to beat inflation."

thrive. In Crane's Congressional district, the median family income is $15,173 — barely over the $15,000 limit subjecting families to the surcharge — and 51 per cent of families earn more than $15,000.

In what appeared to be an unguarded moment, Crane at one point exclaimed to the businessmen, "If the surtax is needed, why couldn't he (Ford) have waited until Nov. 6 (the day after election)."

Crane said the surtax proposal could cost Republicans even more than the 40 Congressional seats already considered in jeopardy, and could lead to a Democratic majority of more than 300 seats of the 435 in the House.

HE FOUND HOPE, however, in some parts of the President's message. Crane said the President's proposal to relax air pollution standards would allow greater use of domestic coal, reducing the nation's dependence on imported oil.

He also praised Ford's proposals for increasing tax credits for investments on manufacturers and utilities.

But he reemphasized previous statements that the primary step toward reducing inflation in the U.S. is restraint of government spending, and said the current Congress has shown no inclination to do this.

Trustee candidates live in 2 or 3 areas

WHIP leader says 6-area plan would hurt his party

by JOE FRANZ

The president of the Wheeling Improvement Party (WHIP) said Tuesday a proposal to break the village into six aldermanic districts could create a "stumbling block" for his party if enacted before the next election.

Otis (Skip) Hedlund, president of WHIP, traditionally the underdog party, said he agrees with the suggestion "in general," but added the proviso: "If the timing is right, it could be a real problem if it takes place right away," he said.

The change was suggested Monday night by Trustee John Koeppen, who said it would provide equal representation for all areas of the village. Under the present system, trustees are elected at-large, and it is conceivable all trustees could come from one section of town.

Koeppen cited the present makeup of the board as an example, with four of six trustees, including himself, living in Precinct 53 in the Highland Glen subdivision. He said he would like to see his proposal enacted before the next election.

HEDLUND SAID if Koeppen's proposal is approved and takes effect before next spring's municipal election, it could create a problem for WHIP. "It looks like it could be a stumbling block because most of the people from WHIP live in two or three areas."

Hedlund said, however, he believes the proposal also would hurt Koeppen and three other trustees whose terms expire next spring.

"They basically have the same problem as WHIP," Hedlund said. "I would say go ahead and do it, but make it effective in 1976. That way the old system could be phased out." Donald Jackson is the lone village trustee in the Wheeling Improvement Party.

Koeppen has asked Village Atty. Paul Hamer to review the proposal and submit a report by Oct. 21. He has asked that the feasibility, procedure and timetable for making the change be outlined in the report.

If the report is favorable, he will ask that the proposal be put to the voters in a Dec. 10 referendum. The matter would be subject to village board approval.

Hedlund said if the proposal goes into effect before the next election he would like to see residency requirements for candidates dropped. That way, he said, a person could be elected from a district without living there.

UNDER KOEPPEN'S proposal two of the 12 precincts in the village would be put in each of the six districts and one trustee or alderman would be elected from each district. Koeppen said the village has expanded its boundaries to the point where at-large elections are not satisfactory.

The needs in each part of the village are different, he said, and should be reflected on the board.

As part of the proposal, Koeppen also has asked the village administration to review and determine if the village should switch from a part-time to a full-time village president. Under his proposal, the village president still would be elected at-large.

Koeppen Tuesday said reaction to his proposal by village residents has been favorable. "I haven't heard one person say a negative thing about it," he said.

Village to make new try at controlling Palwaukee

by JOE FRANZ

Wheeling officials will make another stab at trying to exert control over operations at Palwaukee Airport.

The village will ask the Illinois Appellate Court to rehear its case against the airport in which the village is seeking to upgrade safety precautions at Palwaukee.

The court two weeks ago upheld a lower court ruling that neither the village nor Cook County has jurisdiction over operations at the airport, which is in unincorporated Wheeling Township.

The suit charged that safety precautions at the airport are inadequate and asked that the county or village be allowed to enforce restrictions on the length of runways and weights of aircraft using them.

THE WHEELING Village Board Monday night directed Village Atty. Paul Hamer to file a petition asking for a rehearing. Village officials have decided a rehearing will be more advantageous than making an immediate appeal to the Illinois Supreme Court.

"I feel in this case it is better to try to get the appellate court to correct or modify its decision before bringing it to a higher court," Hamer said Tuesday. "We are going to try to prove that the court overlooked or misapprehended a portion of the appeal."

Village officials specifically object to the length of runway 18/34, a landing strip for small jets. They have asked that it be shortened from 5,200 to 4,500 feet.

Hamer said this would keep aircraft from making low approaches over homes and streets in the area.

Shortening the runway, Hamer said, also would limit the weight of aircraft landing at the airport. Village officials contend that airport runways are not equipped to handle aircraft that weigh more than 80,000 pounds.

IN ITS RECENT decision, the three-judge appellate court ruled that the right to regulate runway lengths and aircraft weights falls under the jurisdiction of the Federal Aviation Administration, not the village or county.

The court further stated that the village and county provided no evidence that the airport was a danger to nearby residents and that by attempting to impose regulations were interfering with operation of a private business.

Hamer said the court's decision about jurisdiction at the airport contradicts FAA testimony. He said the village wants a clarification on the matter so one of the federal or local agencies can begin enforcement.

In a Dec. 18, 1972 letter to the village, the FAA states, "the FAA does not have authority to establish runway gross weight limits and runway lengths, nor to preempt county zoning ordinances in this regard."

Hamer said the FAA either should be required to enforce the regulations or the right should be given to another agency. "I feel there is a serious gap here," Hamer said.

George Priester, Palwaukee owner, said the airport has a better safety record than most airports and will continue to fight the lawsuit.

Homecoming fun under way at Hersey High

A week of homecoming activities is under way for students at John Hersey High School, Arlington Heights.

Hall decorating, float building, carnival booths, a beauty and the beast contest and other activities will run throughout the week.

A pep assembly at 2:15 p.m. Friday will precede a car rally. Decorated cars will run along the following parade route beginning at the school, 1800 E. Thomas Ave.

The parade will travel on Thomas west to Rand Road; Rand north to Arlington Heights Road; north on Arlington Heights Road to Ivy Lane; east on Ivy to Burke Drive; north on Burke to Appletree; east on Appletree to Brighton Place, north on Brighton to Hintz Road; east on Hintz to Windsor Drive; south on Windsor Drive to Palatine Road; east on Palatine Road to Waterman Ave. and back to the school.

Music plays big part in their studies

Music is considered an integral part of education for students in Prospect Heights Dist. 23, according to a new curriculum approved by the board of education.

Students should become familiar with music from classical to rock and learn the fundamentals of all music with the new program.

In the sixth grade, students learn about the various music periods starting with Baroque music. During the instruction they also will learn about countries connected with certain music styles.

TO HELP STUDENTS appreciate and understand music more, they will learn how to read music and identify rhythms. They also will learn the different music instruments and how to identify them by sight and sound.

The curriculum for seventh-grade students gives them the opportunity to play some musical instruments and identify music forms. Melody, rhythm, harmony and form are developed through singing, listening and rhythmic experiences.

A comparative study of popular music with classical music is done where students also learn the evolution of current music through the development of blues, Dixieland and jazz.

Intervals, writing music and comparing rock music with classical music is included in the eighth-grade curriculum.

IN ADDITION TO the general music program, the district offers students the opportunity to perform in choral and band organizations.

MacArthur Junior High School has two choral groups and three bands. The varsity band includes all sixth graders and students in grades seven and eight that need additional work before being placed in the concert band. The concert band is for advanced instrumental students and performs more difficult works. MacArthur also has a jazz band that is an extension of the band program.

GEORGE WILSON, on machine, and Max Lyle, president of the Prospect Heights Park District, dig the first trench for construction of a nature center shelter on Elmhurst Road in Prospect Heights. Construction sponsored by the Izaak Walton League, began during the weekend.

Nature center shelter work to start soon

Nature lovers will have a place to ponder their surroundings when an open air nature center shelter is completed on Prospect Heights Park District property on Ill. Rte. 83, near Camp McDonald Road.

Construction on the facility began Saturday with concrete scheduled to be poured today and the floor base to be completed next week. The shelter, being built through the auspices of the Izaak Walton League, will be constructed by volunteer workers from the community and the U.S. Army Reserve Corps of Engineers from Arlington Heights.

During the past two years the league has raised $1,200 for the shelter's construction cost. Other fundraising events, including a rummage sale on Oct. 26, will be scheduled.

The rummage sale will be at the Prospect Heights Community Church Willow Street and Rte. 83, from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Articles for the rummage sale can be donated by calling Joan Masloske at 259-2577.

The league wants the shelter to be available to scouting groups who plan outdoor activities and community residents who need a place to picnic or congregate in the area. The facility may be expanded into a closed shelter in the future if enough funds for such a project can be raised.

A spokesman for the league said no date for completing the facility has been set because the pace of work activity will depend on the volunteers' time schedules.

Buffalo Grove OKs rerouting Lake-Cook Road in village

by JOHN MAES

The Cook County Highway Dept. has received a green light from the Buffalo Grove Village Board for the widening and rerouting of Lake-Cook Road through the village.

The board voted 4-2 Monday night to grant the right-of-way allowing for the realignment project east of the village hall to Buffalo Grove Road.

Lake-Cook Road lies north of St. Mary's Church, and the village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd. Relocation will put it 350 feet south of its present location behind the village hall.

OFFICIALS SAY the extension eventually will connect on the east with McHenry Road pending agreements with property owners between McHenry and Buffalo Grove roads for right-of-way on that strip of land.

From Arlington Heights Road east to the municipal building, Cook County plans to widen the roadway to four lanes along property owned by Chesterfield and Phoenix developers, but right-of-way already has been secured there by virtue of previous agreements with those firms.

Two trustees, Clarice Reeh and James Shirley voted against letting the county improve and relocate the road through the village.

Mrs. Reeh was "concerned about the division in the community by a four-lane highway."

SHE MENTIONED the Lake-Cook project along with the eventual widening of Ill. Rte. 83, Arlington Heights Road, and Buffalo Grove Road will "bisect" the village.

Shirley said he was not opposed to straightening the roadway but objected to the widening saying, "I don't see the necessity of it being an expressway."

Shirley also pointed to eventual improvements on other roads in the village and said Lake-Cook Road "is just another physical barrier from one end of the village to the other."

Village Pres. Gary Armstrong, a supporter of the plan spoke favorably of the move, "especially from the standpoint of providing ingress and egress to the village and a traffic pattern for the industrial area to the east of us."

THE LAKE-COOK PROJECT is part of a larger plan to make the road a major east-west highway by eventually linking the Buffalo Grove portion to sections east and west of the village.

When finished, the highway will extend from Highland Park to Ill. Rte. 59 in Barrington. Although the road is widened and realigned in some spots, officials say the road will follow the Lake-Cook County line.

Despite Monday's acceptance of the plan, officials in the Cook County Highway Dept., say contracting bids for the roadwork in Buffalo Grove will be let late in 1975 and actual construction will not begin until sometime in 1976.

Elk Grove man arrested with $75,000 in securities

An Elk Grove Village man was arrested Tuesday afternoon after he attempted to cash an estimated $75,000 worth of stolen municipal bonds at the Schaumburg State Bank, police said.

Theodore E. Price, 47, of 100 Wildwood, was charged with possession of stolen property. Another man was being held by Schaumburg police in an investigation of the incident.

The securities were believed stolen during a burglary of a Lake County home last spring in which more than $100,000 worth of items was reported stolen, police reported.

Schaumburg State Bank officials consulted police after a man identified as Price tried to sell the bonds to the bank Tuesday morning. Bank officials said they would have to check the bonds, and Price told them he would return in the afternoon, authorities said.

THE SERIAL numbers of the bonds were turned over to authorities and checked out on the LEADS teletype system. Returning information identified the bonds as stolen, police said. The burglary occurred at a home located between Mundelein and Libertyville.

Lt. Alvin Herzfeld and Det. William Ostermann staked out the bank at 320 W. Higgins Rd. and arrested Price about 4 p.m. Police picked up the other man in Elk Grove Village after questioning Price. No charges have been filed against the other man.

The bonds were from various municipalities including some in Nevada and Chicago suburbs including Arlington Heights and Lake Forest, police said.

Price was being held in the Schaumburg lockup in lieu of $10,000 bond pending an appearance at 1:30 p.m. today in the Schaumburg branch of Circuit Court.

Chicago Symphony just the start

The Woodfield Merchants Assn. is providing an outstanding example of how a regional shopping center can become the community core for civic and cultural activity as well as a center for commercial enterprise.

the symphony for another appearance next year. But this is only the beginning.

To help celebrate its third anniversary beginning Oct. 16, the center is sponsoring a "Salute to the Arts" which will offer free performances by the award-winning Gus Giordano Dance Company, harpist Deb DeWyck, the Serendipity Singers, Free Street Theatre, Evanston Symphony and a music festival providing everything from Dixieland and classical to blue grass and a drum and bugle corps.

Through their initiative and investment, Woodfield merchants are making an impressive contribution to the Northwest suburbs,

An estimated 40,000 persons jammed Woodfield's Grand Court last week to hear a free concert by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. For many, it was their first opportunity to see and hear this great orchestra in live performance; for others, unable to afford Orchestra Hall prices, it was their only opportunity. Their response demonstrated how eager suburbanites are for such cultural opportunity.

Delighted by the extraordinary success of this first concert, the merchants already have invited

Reader offers an inflation answer

Inflation! One single word has changed so many life styles. With broom in hand, creditor on the phone and a prayer in my heart, I am thinking. Millions of families

Scolds fast drivers

A few days ago I was riding my bike to school, as usual. While going down Briarwood to my friend's house, a lady in a car went through a stop sign about 45 m.p.h. I had to stop very quickly to avoid her.

I, along with many other kids, would like people like her to drive with more caution on school mornings.

face the same problem all over the United States. As I write, I make mental note, the sugar bowl is empty and it is four long days 'til Pa's payday!

Groceries continue to sky-rocket in price. I read somewhere one woman is boycotting sugar. Somehow I've been doing it without being aware of it. I just plain can't afford it. Thank God for sugar coated cereals and the fact my husband and I drink coffee without any. Baking is out of the question, unless I use prepackaged mixes and those are even more expensive.

What is a family to eat? The answer, simply, stick to the basics. Buy sale items and try to eliminate costly extras. Sad to say, luxury items now seem to include toilet tissue and margarine!

Items may come down a few cents, but the prices were so far out of proportion to begin with, you haven't really saved anything.

I am closely reminded of the country's last depression by my father. I am also reminded that he made it through even with a large family to support. Maybe history does repeat, for I sit here with letters to the editor

my big family, broke but making it. If this is any hope or consolation to anyone at this time, I have not written in vain.

Hang in there, America, better times are coming, it just takes time! We'll merely have to stick it out, do without and work harder, that's all.

Wallace also seems amused by his lack

Target's the presidency

Wallace's running hard

by RANDALL H. HARBER

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — George C. Wallace, convinced he has clinched a record third term as governor of Alabama, already is campaigning for president.

Wallace won the May Democratic gubernatorial primary with 64 per cent of the vote and — to his mind — sealed the power base he has used for three past presidential campaigns and will use again in 1976.

The governor has been so confident that he has not campaigned at all in Alabama, preferring to fly to Louisiana, New Mexico, Missouri and Oklahoma to campaign for other Democrats.

Wallace said he is not going to hold any rallies and will not make any appearances for himself alone.

"I'm going to campaign for the ticket," he said. "We haven't campaigned because it hasn't been necessary. Traditionally the general election in this state has been anticlimactic. The Democratic primary showed my real support."

The biggest controversy of the race has been between Republican gubernatorial candidate Elvin McCary and the state GOP organization, which wants McCary to get out of the race.

GOP leaders fear McCary will force

Wallace to campaign, thus drawing a larger Democratic turnout and hurting other Republican candidates.

But the party has not swayed McCary, a witty, grandfatherly man with crewcut white hair who campaigns mainly at county fairs.

McCary has lambasted Wallace for caring more about his national ambitions than Alabama. But that issue, which almost defeated Wallace in 1970, seems to be attracting little attention.

McCary, who never has run a statewide race, says "a lot of people are tired of George Wallace."

He keeps a steady pace, passing out "McCary for Governor" coloring books and bumperstickers and speaking to county Republican meetings.

But privately, McCary admits he is running because the GOP needs a candidate, and he seems resigned that the Wallace juggernaut will crush him and the other Republicans.

Publicly, Wallace says he will not make up his mind about running for president until after the election, but he smiles and adds, "Of course, I have strong feelings."

When Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., ruled himself out for 1976, Wallace surged to the top of the Gallup Poll among Democratic presidential possibilities.

That poll so buoyed Wallace that he has found it difficult not to lash out at his potential opponents.

"All those senators and congressmen the party bosses talk about as being presidential aspirants, they are all talking about how bad inflation is. I'm in a much better position than they are. They voted for most of the things that have brought these troubles on us, I didn't," Wallace said, waving his arms and pounding the desk with his fist with a spirit he has not shown since the assassination attempt two years ago that left him paralyzed from the waist down.

"I didn't vote for all this foreign aid, and I didn't vote for bigger government spending and I didn't vote for busing — but they did."

Wallace coyly says he wants to sit back and let Sens. Henry Jackson, Edmund Muskie and Walter Mondale explain their voting records.

Wallace also seems amused by his lack

The Johnson administration with its Bobby Baker case, and the Nixon administration with its Watergate-related scandals, demonstrate dozens of instances of evil as well as the appearances of evil, and there was a need for a sharp turnaround by President Ford to restore faith in government.

He gave us a lift with his talk of openness and candor and the clean breast of his finances before the Senate and House committee, and when asked about a code of ethics he said it would be his example.

We all applauded for the moment, but there is much reason to wish that he will establish a code of ethics that is a more certain guideline than his example. His heart may be filled with pure compassion, but it looks like favoritism, to some critics.

The pardoning of Nixon is only the most obvious flaw.

That action may stretch his discretion to the maximum for a friend, but only a few question its legality. But what about the questionable legality of using the White House payroll to continue the salaries of Ronald Ziegler, Rose Mary Woods, Steve Bull, and assorted butlers, maids and a gardener to perform services for Mr. Nixon at San Clemente?

And what about the sloppy $850,000 budget to take care of Nixon's costs in the transition period? Is that an example of the kind of light federal spending that will beat inflation, and set a new tone for honesty and efficiency in government? If President Ford really puts his mind to it he can come up with a better code of ethics than his own example.

Gerald Ford

tainment of members of the ICC.

Assistant Attorney General T. La Mar Caudle in the Truman administration became a symbol of corruption and "conflicts of interest" because he accepted a $5,000 fee for selling an airplane for a businessman who had a tax problem pending in the Justice Department. It was not an adequate defense for Caudle even though as head of the Tax Division he approved prosecution of the same businessman for income tax evasion.

President Truman fired Caudle because close, personal relationships gave an appearance of "favoritism" in the decision-making process that was not to be tolerated.

In the Eisenhower administration, the Dixon-Yates scandal erupted because of the dual role of Adolphe H. Wenzell, a vice-president of the First Boston Corporation. Wenzell wasn't even a government decision-maker, but was simply an unpaid financial adviser for the Atomic Energy Commission and the Bureau of the Budget in the same time frame that the First Boston Corporation was a financial adviser to the Dixon-Yates power group.

The Supreme Court held that Wenzell's salary with First Boston Corporation was a sufficient pecuniary interest in the award of a contract to Dixon-Yates to make his participation as a government consultant a conflict of interest. Eisenhower cancelled the contract.

Sherman Adams was forced to resign because he made telephone calls to the SEC and FTC on behalf of millionaire industrialist Bernard Goldfine, a longtime friend who had given him a vicuna coat and oriental rug.

In the Kennedy administration the Billie Sol Estes case resulted in the resignation of an assistant secretary of Agriculture, James T. Ralph, and several others for accepting gifts from the Pecos, Texas millionaire. In the Labor Department, Secretary Arthur Goldberg demanded the resignation of an assistant secretary who admitted accepting $1,000 from Estes for "personal expenses" connected with his job.

Letters welcome

Controllers negotiating new contract

No O'Hare air traffic 'slowdown,' FAA officials insist

by STEVE FORSYTH

Federal Aviation Administration officials Tuesday said recent air traffic delays at O'Hare airport are solely the result of heavy schedules and runways under repair. They could there was any work "slowdown" by the air traffic controllers, who are negotiating a labor contract.

John Cyrocki, director of the Great Lakes Region of the FAA, told newsmen that there have been a number of irresponsible allegations about a controller's slowdown, and he blamed the news media for spreading the rumors.

Saying that delays are a way of life at O'Hare and will not diminish in the future, Cyrocki credited controllers with performing above standards despite runway closings.

"If they were slowing down, we'd be taking disciplinary action and you'd be hearing about it," said O'Hare Tower Chief Vince Mellone. His own comment on the slowdown was "That's a bunch of baloney."

Mellone said the airport has been getting "bad press" recently, referring to radio and newspaper reports that quote pilots as saying there is a slowdown.

Mellone and Cyrocki said personnel from some airlines have been telling passengers that delays are the result of a controllers' slowdown. Cyrocki challenged anyone to prove such statements are true. He said they have investigated several rumors and haven't found a legitimate source among the controllers.

AIR TRAFFIC CONTROLLERS in Chicago have been accused of slowing down air traffic at O'Hare Airport, but FAA officials have flatly denied such action is being taken. Air traffic delays are being blamed on heavy airline schedules and on runway improvement work.

O'Hare operations have suffered from a major construction program this fall, financed by federal and Chicago money. Two major runways have been repaved and grooved for better stopping in wet weather, and a third is now in beginning stages of work. Mellone said several taxiways were also deteriorating and had to be repaved, causing further delays in landings.

Despite the construction program, Mellone said, the controllers Monday night were bringing in 81 arrivals an hour and sending out 90 flights an hour in peak periods. "We call that pumping and banging," he said, adding that 70 landings an hour is considered satisfactory. "We've never had that done before."

CYROCKI AND MELLONE did agree there had been a slight decrease in efficiency toward the end of August when the airline industry announced it was revoking the right of controllers to ride along in jet cockpits. The industry had claimed the practice, which was supposed to be an educational process for controllers, was being abused.

Cyrocki said a meeting was called as soon as the pattern was detected, and the controllers resumed peak efficiency shortly thereafter. Since that time, the airlines have considered a modification of the program.

Mellone said the controllers have maintained a 96 per cent efficiency rate for the airport despite construction and a noise abatement program that involves rotating the use of runways. He said each rotation under the noise abatement program costs at least 20 minutes when aircraft must remain in a holding pattern.

By Nov. 4, which is the scheduled completion date for the third runway, 14-L, half of the runway surfaces at O'Hare will have been repaved and improved this year.

While runway repairs have been going on, the airlines have not reduced schedules at all, Mellone said. The controllers have also had to cope with weather and a temporarily increased use of Midway and other nearby airports in September because of a major manufacturer's convention in Chicago, he said.

Bottled milk cost going up 4c a gallon?

Consumers may have to face an immediate boost in bottled milk prices—billed as a means of avoiding a supply shortage further down the road.

This was the argument presented Tuesday by U.S. Rep. Gene Taylor, R-Mo., and other witnesses at a U.S. Dept. of Agriculture hearing in Rosemont.

The USDA called the public hearing, which may extend through Thursday, to consider an increase in the minimum price paid to farmers for milk used in the production of bottled (Class I) milk. Government action to hike farm prices could mean a 4-cent-a-gallon increase in bottled milk prices, the USDA estimated.

CONSUMERS WILL BE forced to pay for the increase, countered Aileen Gorman of the National Consumers Congress. She opposes the proposed price increase as "an inflationary measure which would in all likelihood bring little more than temporary relief."

Monopolistic practices by dairy cooperatives enable them to charge consumers an added premium above the federal price minimum, she continued. The National Consumers Congress represents 4,000 members, she said.

Judson P. Mason, director of the economics division of the National Milk Producers Federation, Washington, D.C., said at the hearing, "There is urgent need to amend each milk marketing order establishing the basic formula price at not less than $7.50 per hundredweight to become effective by Nov. 1, 1974 and maintaining such price as a minimum through March 31, 1975." This price would be 65 cents less than the March, 1974 price of $8.15 per hundredweight, Mason said. Milk production costs are expected to continue to rise at least through March, 1975, Mason continued.

About 80 per cent of all fluid-grade milk in the United States is sold under federal milk marketing orders. In 1973, this amounted to 66.2 billion pounds — or 7.7 billion gallons — valued at $5 billion (minimum order prices). Cooperatives may levy added charges. The federal marketing order program covers milk sold by 131,000 dairy farmers.

PASSERSBY on Michigan Ave. nue look at a cougar named Roger and a wombat called Charlie who were taken for a stroll by Dr. Paul Keene of the Illinois Veterinary Medical Assn. The walk was in demonstration to save endangered species.

Meet Roger, the friendly Elk Grove Village cougar

by United Press International

Roger the cougar, all 150 pounds of him, and Charlie, a 40-pound wombat, strolled along Chicago's fashionable Michigan Avenue today, petted and pawed by a small crowd of startled onlookers.

A zoo official, a state veterinary official and a pet store owner accompanied them, telling anyone who would listen that Charlie and Roger should not be pets.

"Exotic pets belong only in zoos," said Dr. Paul Keene, Illinois Veterinary Medical Assn. executive secretary. "Someday that will be the only place we will find them."

THE COUGAR AND wombat, a marsupial indigenous to Australia now living at the Brookfield Zoo, were paraded in a "Walk for Wildlife" to dramatize 108 endangered species.

Dr. Dale Osborn, Brookfield's curator for public information, said frequently zoos do not want such pets once their owners tire of them.

"Because of imprinting (becoming closely associated with its human owner), it may be difficult for the animal to associate with others of its own kind," Osborn said.

Tom Krause, an Elk Grove Village pet center owner supplying Roger, said recent federal and state regulations prohibit the public from purchasing such an animal as a cougar.

"WE ARE TRYING to show people animals no longer to be seen in the wild state because of man's negligence," he said. Roger, Krause added, was used for breeding and promotional purposes and was kept on a farm.

The cougar could not survive if released in its natural habitat because it had been declawed, he said.

He said Roger and Charlie the wombat were exceptions because of their expert supervision and care.

The short parade to promote public awareness to endangered species was sponsored by the National Wildlife Federation and the 7-Eleven Food Stores of Rolling Meadows, which purchased an 835-acre tract of land in South Dakota for use as a bald eagle preserve by the federation.

'Unable to work with disturbed kids'

Whipple attacks ability of accusers

John Whipple, former clinical director of Dwyer School, told the State Teacher Certification Board Tuesday that several of the teachers who have made charges against him were unable to work effectively with emotionally disturbed children.

Whipple, testifying at the hearing that will determine whether he is allowed to continue to work as a school psychologist in Illinois schools, said specifically that Barbara Hickey, one of his principal accusers, had "limited ability" to work with some children in the Dwyer program.

Dwyer School in Arlington Heights serves emotionally disturbed children from the Northwest suburbs. It is run by the Northwest Educational Cooperative.

Mrs. Hickey and other teachers from the Dwyer program have charged that Whipple unfairly evaluated them, that he harassed them and that he permitted child abuse, including excessive paddling, at the school.

COOK COUNTY School Supt. Richard Martwick has recommended that the certification board revoke Whipple's school psychologist certificate. The hearing by the board has run about 22 hours. It will continue in Springfield Oct. 25-26.

Whipple said he recommended that Barbara Hickey be transferred to another part of the Dwyer program last year because she had difficulty working with some children and staff members. Mrs. Hickey resigned in August after making the charges.

Whipple also said he recommended that another of his accusers, Linda Curtis, not be employed in the program this year. Miss Curtis, who was a first-year teacher last year, ran classes that had "a lack of structure, a lack of management controls and a lack of goals in the program," Whipple said.

Whipple also said he had recommended last year that another accuser, Keith Parrent, not be given tenure and instead be placed on third-year probation. He said Parrent "had a low tolerance level" for working with emotionally disturbed children. Parrent resigned from the program in 1973.

WHIPPLE DID TESTIFY that one of his accusers, Lynn Waldron, a social worker at the school, "did a fine job with children." He said he recommended her for a merit raise at the end of the last school year. He said he had criticized Miss Waldron for failing to keep appointments to see some children individually and that "she got very defensive about it."

Whipple said he evaluated staff members and made recommendations for salary increases, even though he does not have a certificate allowing him to work as an administrator in Illinois. He said the responsibility was delegated to him by Gloria Kinney, executive director of NEC, and John Wightman, director of NEC special education programs.

He said he never felt he should decline the jobs because of his lack of certification because "Dr. Kinney and Mr. Wightman felt I was capable and responsible."

Whipple said he did not check on certification of teachers hired by the program because "Mr. Wightman was in charge of certification."

AT THAT POINT, Leo Hennessey, associate superintendent for Martwick's office, who was questioning Whipple, said, "Adolph Eichmann (the Nazi leader) was in charge of the ovens." The hearing officer for the certification board ruled him out of order.

Under cross-examination, Whipple admitted he and other staff members smoked cigarettes in front of children, even though he thought there was a state law against it. He said he tried to reduce the practice of smoking but "it was not extinguished."

Whipple also admitted that he dated two teachers on the staff at different times and that last spring he appointed one of those teachers, Carla Stewart, to head the math program for the primary and elementary grades at Dwyer. He said she had the "expertise, motivation and personality" to improve the educational program.

Over objections from representatives from Martwick's office, Whipple's cross examination was interrupted late Tuesday to take testimony from an Arlington Heights woman who had a child in the program last year.

THE WOMAN, whose child is now 10½, said her boy was first placed in a class for the educable mentally handicapped before going to Dwyer.

The woman said having her child referred to Dwyer "kind of scared me" at first, but that the staff at the school and the psychologist who worked with her family helped her child.

The woman said her child is no longer in the program because this spring he was diagnosed as having a degenerative brain disease which has left him in a wheelchair. She said the staff at Dwyer School helped her with the child and volunteered to take movies of his activity when her neurologist would not believe there was anything wrong with the boy. She said the teachers gave both her and her child home phone numbers and would talk to them at night.

She said, "I was more than satisfied with the program. My husband and I often said if we were millionaires, we couldn't pay for the service they gave us. You can't pay for someone to love your child."

'Grassroots government' by '76?

Wirtz outlines 'local level' political movement

Grassroots government may be reborn by 1976 if citizen involvement can be stimulated at the local level, according to Willard Wirtz, U.S. Secretary of Labor under Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson.

Speaking at the annual conference of the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission in the Oakbrook Sheraton Hotel, Wirtz said, "There is a movement to take new forms of development." He said the movement is typified by "Common Cause" and Ralph Nader influences that develop outside the political arena and then try to get results by collaborating with the traditional political and governmental systems.

The citizen movement is based on two premises, Wirtz said — that citizens want to participate more in government and that they will participate if given the opportunity.

QUOTING A NEW Washington, D.C., study on attitudes, Wirtz said, "The people are grossly ignorant of the governmental process, they know it and know they have passed up the opportunity." He said the survey found that less than one-third of the nation's citizens have ever written a letter to a political representative or contributed to a political party or candidate.

"There is a strong feeling that they want to do more," Wirtz said, but they feel they need more opportunity.

He termed the new situation the "third force national movement," which deals with priorities and goals, not particular problems.

Wirtz blamed government inefficiency on the failure of the public to supply information. "The people aren't putting any real input to the whole situation. I have a great respect for the public as a client, but I have great exasperation for the public as a constituency," he said.

"The way government works, there is little time for education or the listening process. A governmental official spends 99 per cent of his time on the defensive."

Wirtz said public officials who have been accused of not having "the guts" to do anything would profit greatly from a priority-setting group telling them what the public really wants.

THE LOCAL EFFORT cannot be orchestrated from Washington, Wirtz said, but three national foundations, including the Rockefeller and Lilly organizations, have provided money for a citizen-involvement network. The network would be a clearinghouse for exchange of information by citizen groups, but would not be a movement to organize the groups.

Wirtz said 20 communities will be selected throughout the nation as a study network, and group efforts will be supported financially and monitored, but not controlled. "I see it as a reaffirmation of the spirit of the American revolution," Wirtz said. "The Bicentennial will be a total flop as a one-day birthday party or a collection of new buildings. We're celebrating an era (1776-1789) in which there was development of a process of government that included the people instead of including them out."

Resident named Mercy envoy

Ralph Walberg, a resident of Mount Prospect, has been named an ambassador of mercy for the 1974 Crusade of Mercy campaign which begins Thursday and runs through Dec. 12.

Walberg is one of approximately 50 speakers recruited from Crusade-supported agencies who will talk about their agencies as an example of the way in which Crusade funds help those in need.

Ambassadors of mercy are volunteer speakers who address employee groups as part of the company's program to explain the Crusade drive.

Walberg is executive director of the Countryside Center for the Handicapped in Barrington.

John E. Egan

It'll be 'Egan Water Plant' from now on

The new sewage treatment plant being built by the Metropolitan Sanitary District in Schaumburg Township has been given a new name.

The MSD Board of Trustees voted unanimously to dub the plant the "John E. Egan Water Reclamation Plant" in honor of the retiring MSD president. The plant, scheduled to open next spring, formerly was called the Salt Creek Water Reclamation Plant.

Egan, who will retire after the November election, has served 12 years on the MSD board, eight of them as president.

The resolution praised Egan for great leadership, said he served "with honor and distinction" and called the year he served as president "among the greatest of accomplishment" for the MSD. All other MSD plants currently in existence are named for their locale.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Is it really hypoglycemia?

My problem is hypoglycemia, but I do not understand it. How can a doctor suspect it from a routine office test? What blood level is considered too low?

When I am at my worst I become semi-comatose and before the condition I feel faint, weak and a bit as if I were drunk. I am aware that I invariably have terrible leg and feet cramps if I indulge in high carbohydrate foods in the evening.

I don't smoke and do not have a weight problem. I am a compulsive overeater and arrest this compulsion by belonging to a life-saving fellowship called "Overeaters Anonymous" which is similar to Alcoholics Anonymous.

Hypoglycemia (low blood sugar) is a complex problem. Many of the symptoms it causes are from the outpouring of adrenaline. Whenever the body is threatened our adrenal gland pours out adrenaline, our so-called "fight or flight" hormone. It causes the body to release stored glucose so its energy can be immediately available. So, when the blood sugar falls, pouring out adrenaline is one way the body protects itself.

There are a lot of other situations in life to cause your adrenaline to start pumping out. Anxiety of any sort can do this, fright or any emergency. A hairy ride in heavy traffic can do it.

Adrenaline causes increased and forceful heart beats. It causes sweating, tremors, and other symptoms identified with low blood glucose. But, anything that causes an excess release of adrenaline can cause the same symptoms. It is not too surprising then that anxious people, for psychological reasons, often have the same symptoms a person has with hypoglycemia. This is why so many people with basic anxiety problems and who do not really have hypoglycemia get wrongly diagnosed as being victims of hypoglycemia. It is a wastebasket term for the frequent anxiety situations of modern society. Often an obese person is fat from overeating because of underlying anxiety, not from real hypoglycemia.

YOUR SYMPTOMS are consistent with hypoglycemia but the only way to find out is to measure the blood glucose level when you are having these symptoms, preferably during a spontaneous attack. A casual blood glucose test in the doctor's office may not tell you much. In between attacks the level may be entirely normal. The blood glucose level is controlled by many factors.

And, a word about alcohol to all those who have the hypoglycemia-type problems. Leave it alone. Alcohol prevents your liver from using the enzymes. Alcohol prevents the normal enzymes in your liver from being able to form glucose from proteins and releasing glucose into your bloodstream.

One of the consequences of overindulgence is hypoglycemia. It just makes good sense then to avoid alcohol at all times. You need those normal liver enzyme functions to keep your blood sugar in balance.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Double squeeze is automatic

You can have a lot of fun with today's hand if you cover up the East and West cards. Now try to make your spade slam after East wins the first trick with the king of hearts and returns the five of clubs.

You win in dummy and can afford to play one round of trumps. Both opponents follow. Now, there is a very simple way to proceed. Play a second trump and go after diamonds. If the suit breaks 3-2 you will have a million tricks. A second line will be to try to ruff both your losing hearts. That will fail if West started with just two hearts and the jack of spades.

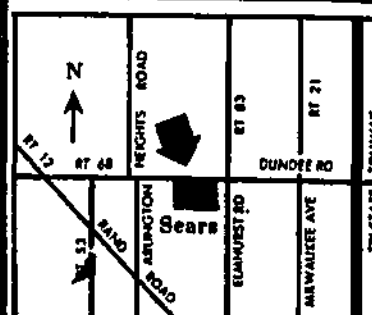

Is there a third way? There sure is! You can draw the defense's last trump; ruff a heart; ruff a club back to your hand and run off all your trumps.

If West has a diamond stopper he will be squeezed out of it since he will have to hang on to the queen of clubs. If East has the diamond stopper he will also be squeezed since he must hang on to the ace of hearts.

This play is known as an automatic double squeeze. Only West can guard against the jack of clubs; only East can guard against the queen of hearts. Therefore, neither one can protect diamonds.

Origer takes control, fires Jim Crossland

by MIKE KLEIN

Chicago Fire owner Tom Origer, the center of debate last week over alleged remarks about World Football League commissioner Gary Davidson, came out swinging again Tuesday. But Origer hit away at a new target, his own coaching staff.

Origer fired defensive coordinator Jim Crossland, hired secondary specialist Larry Lintner, gave a vote of confidence to head coach Jim Spavital and said he will not tamper further with the field staff during the remaining six games.

Crossland will not be with Chicago when it hosts Florida at 8:05 p.m. tonight in Soldier Field. The game was first set against Detroit which like Jacksonville has folded, leaving the WFL with 10 teams. Florida has beaten Chicago 46-21 and 29-0.

Crossland's dismissal is a bitter pill for Spavital to swallow. They've coached together since high school days in Perkins, Okla.

Spavital dismissed any pressure on his own job, despite a five game losing streak. "I feel like we're going to be here," he said. But the Fire head coach added he and assistant coach Tom Hudspeth have opportunities elsewhere in the pro game.

Fire coaches do not have signed contracts. But that's no big secret.

"I'm not going to relieve anybody else," said Origer. "I'm pretty satisfied with the coaches. I should blame Spavital for not getting rid of Crossland earlier but I could see there was personal relationship that made it hard."

Origer insisted, "I haven't given up on Spavital. He's offensive minded. To function, he must have good defensive coaches so he doesn't have to be constantly looking over their shoulders. We'll have to go out and get them."

Fire defense has yielded more points (382) than any other WFL team. Origer's displeasure became known last week. But Crossland did not expect to lose his job.

"What do you know," he asked this reporter who advised him of Origer's decision. "I didn't know Tom had spoken with anyone else," Crossland said. "I'm not putting you off, but I really don't have anything to say now."

Origer said the coaching change "probably should have been made earlier." And the millionaire businessman faulted himself for hiring only two defensive tutors.

"If we'd had a third, then two could have made up for any weakness in the other one," Origer said. "But I just didn't pay enough attention to defense as far as the budget."

Chicago's porous defensive secondary has allowed 2,792 gross yards passing. That plus injuries to Virg Carter, James Scott and Mark Keller have written a script of defeat.

The Fire hasn't won in five weeks and stands 7-7 after once entertaining thoughts of Central division and World Bowl titles.

Crossland's final straw apparently broke last Thursday when Chicago lost, 41-30, to the Charlotte Hornets, formerly New York Stars. Substitute quarterback Bill Cappelman managed four TDs against the WFL's best defense. But Charlotte butchered the league's worst defense.

Origer pulled no punches Tuesday. He criticized Crossland for shuffling personnel in and out. Only Harry Howard remains from Chicago's original secondary. "What we should have done was make the coaching change and leave the personnel the way it was," Origer said.

"Our secondary was green but I thought they all had the speed, ability and desire," he added. "A lot of them had good college records. Guys like Mike Carter and Hal Phillips (both were cut) desperately needed coaching, which they didn't get. Instead of improving each game, they went down."

Origer said coordination between Fire linebackers and the deep secondary has been "nonexistent. This is coaching. The job was not done. I can't say we didn't have the players. I think we did. We're not the best in the league but we could have been in the upper third."

Lintner's background includes the head coaching spot at Otterbein College in Ohio plus Mid-East scouting duties for the Fire. He comes highly recommended by Fire personnel director Bill Byrne.

"I've met the guy a couple times and he seems very knowledgeable," Origer said of Lintner. "If he looks like he can do the job, we'll bring him back next year."

Which pretty well sums up the entire picture for a coaching staff that must be feeling some pressure.

GETTING A GRASP on things is Schaumburg's Russ Zonca, who temporarily lost control of the pigskin in Saturday's 10-9 Saxon win over Rolling Meadows. The Saxon quarterback fumbled while trying to execute an option pitch, but he managed to fall on the ball before the Mustangs' Tom Baugh could get there.

Arlington woman wins 5th football contest

Marie Guska, of 121 S. Vall in Arlington Heights, gave the women of the area a 3-2 lead in winners by taking the fifth edition of Paddock's "Pick the Winners" contest.

Marie, who works in the cafeteria at South Junior High School, missed only two games out of 19 to tie H. M. Lawrence of Palatine. Both contestants incorrectly picked the tiebreaker, selecting Oregon over Northwestern, but Mrs. Guska was closer to the point total of 24.

"It was just luck," Marie said. "But my daughter goes to Arlington High School so I attend all their games and follow high school football pretty closely."

Like so many others Marie failed to foresee the outcome of the Forest View and Prospect game that the Knights managed to win. She also picked Rolling Meadows over Schaumburg which turned out to be a boo boo.

Marie now is eligible for the drawing Dec. 14 to pick the winner of a Rose Bowl trip for two.

The results of other high school games saw Hershey clobbering Wheeling, Elk Grove outlasting Conant, Palatine winning their first game of the season over Fremd, St. Viator remaining undefeated with a win over Holy Cross, Niles West tripping Maine West, Buffalo Grove winning their fourth straight over Arlington, and Maine East topping New Trier West.

The major colleges saw Purdue come back from their win over Notre Dame to drop one to Duke, the Fighting Irish recovered from their defeat and narrowly edged Michigan State, Ohio bombarded Northern Illinois and Nebraska smothered the Golden Gophers of Minnesota.

In the pro ranks the Monsters of the Midway swept past the New Orleans Saints for their second win, Cincinnati pulled a mild surprise by whipping Washington, Minnesota thumped the stumbling Dallas Cowboys, Buffalo swamped Green Bay and Atlanta tuned up for their game this week with the Bears by stopping the New York Giants.

In the tiebreaker Northwestern topped Oregon 14-10.

There were 453 entries in the fifth contest.

Unbeaten Hawks score in every period

Hoffman drives to another victory

Although Hoffman Estates' junior varsity team rolled up another impressive victory score-wise, 25-0, Bill Gourley wasn't thoroughly pleased with his Hawks' performance.

One of the reasons was Elk Grove. "They were much tougher physically than anybody we've played," admitted Gourley after his team's fifth straight win Monday on the Hoffman field.

"The Hoffman coach was quick to point out that his team wasn't afraid to hit. However, he said he "wondered just how ready his team was mentally for the game."

As far as statistics were concerned, the Hawks appeared to have played a solid offensive game. They scored in every quarter, rolled up 319 total yards and had a pair of long runs for touchdowns. But when it came to the gradual improvement Gourley expects from each game, the offense came up short in some phases. Or, as Gourley phrased it, "sporadic" and "wasn't sharp."

"I was very happy with them defensively," he said, singling out middle guard Chad McCreary, halfback John Borczak, linebackers Joe Gajewski and Joe Parille and safety Kevin Stalley.

"I thought they all had good games, particularly McCreary and Borczak. Overall, the play is improving."

The Hawk defenders limited Elk Grove to just 57 total yards, 29 of them on the ground.

Meanwhile, several Hoffman players were doing the damage offensively. Quarterback Wayne Jackson kept the Grove secondary jumping by hitting eight of 10 for 109 yards.

Chad McCreary

was Dave Lipko. He carried 21 times for 161 yards and scored two touchdowns. Lipko put Hoffman ahead for good in the first quarter with a one-yard run.

In the second quarter, Lipko brought the crowd to its feet with a 71-yard touchdown scamper. "There were two people in pursuit," remarked Gourley, "and he just ran away from them."

Danny Weiss had the home folks up jumping again right after the half when he broke an 80-yard kickoff return for the third score.

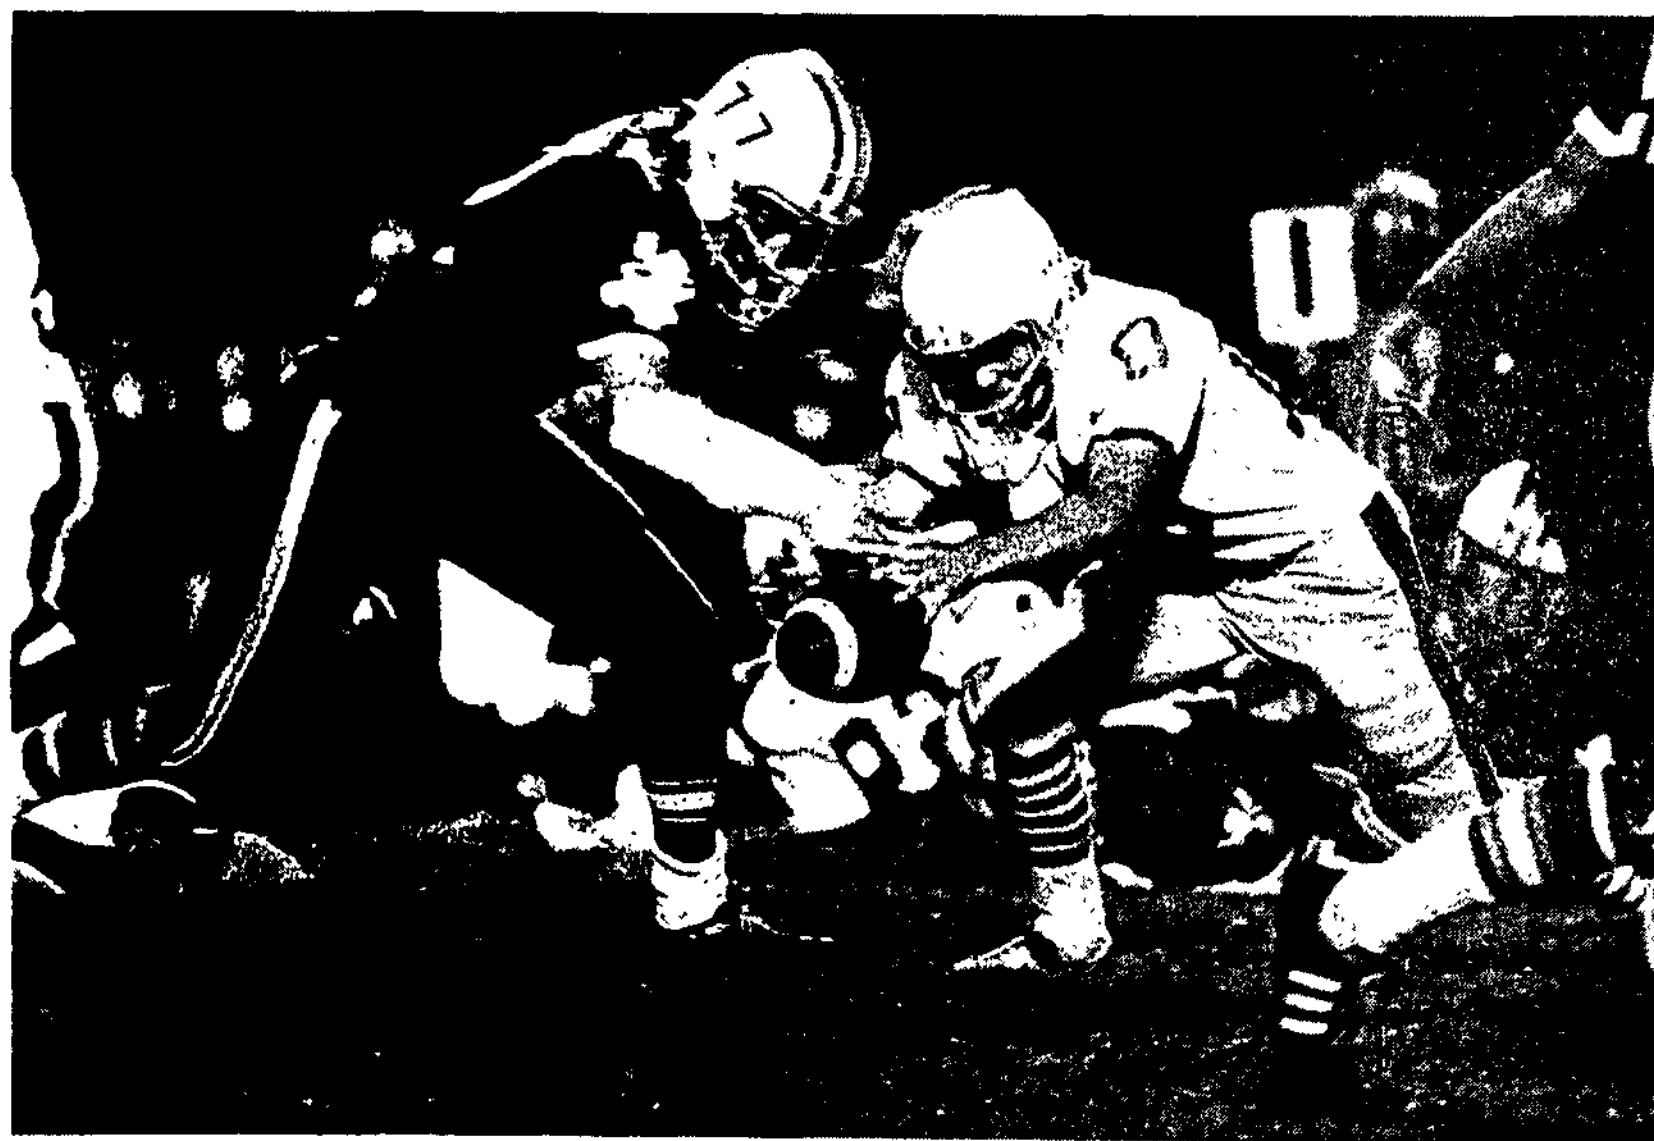

Parille, who also plays fullback when he isn't stopping opposing ball carriers, capped the scoring in the final period with a three-yard run.

Hoffman Estates will play a rare Monday morning game next week at Prospect High School.

The Columbus Day contest will begin at 10 a.m.

Arlington archers roll to impressive victory

Possibly the biggest dual meet in the state was played Monday at Arlington High School, archery-wise that is.

It was billed as a "revenge match" because Glenbrook North had beaten Arlington on Saturday in a prestigious 17-school invitational. Although closely fought, hosting North — using the slight edge of its home field — won 1428-1414.

On their home field this time around and using 10 archers each instead of only four, the Cardinals of Coach Linda Swanson rolled up a convincing 18½-2½ victory over the Spartans.

Some of the individual matchups were quite close, "but the big difference was in our depth," according to Swanson.

Of her top five, only No. 1 archer Kathy Boyd lost. Martha Otis, who also had edged her out Saturday, won 594 to 580. Otis' scores from 20 and 30 yards were matched to the pleasant surprise of the Arlington coach by Jennifer Hammerli. Hammerli, Arlington's No. 2 shooter, had a 282 from 30 and a 312 from 20.

This up-and-coming Cardinal junior edged out her opponent by 12 points, the second closest match of the day. It was the first time Hammerli had scored higher than her teammate, Boyd. Swanson said that such competition within her team would be helpful in getting ready for Saturday's Mid-Suburban Conference meet at Forest View.

The rest of the top five scorers finished like this — Kim Griffith with the tightest score of 312 at 20 yards to match the high of the day in that event. She won with ease, 566 to 373.

Other winners were Pam Brown (548 to 491), Joyce Norman (497 to 363), Diane Brouhard (520 to 427) and Dick Braun (415 to 270).

Fluctuating gasoline prices keep RV owners in 'park'

by GARY KALE

A proposed, but unlikely, 20-30 cent a gallon tax increase on gasoline could price the camping family right out of the vacation market.

There were signs this summer at the present level of fuel costs, that the recreational vehicle RV owner was hard-pressed financially on an extended outing.

To the trained observer of camping activities, there was much less vehicular traffic to state and franchised campgrounds. The friendly blinking of headlights between passing RVs became less noticeable as economy-conscious Americans deferred to the "short haul" in an effort to save on fuel costs.

"We weren't hit too hard because our camp is off an interstate highway," said an Amarillo, Tex., franchise owner, "But the little fellow in the boondocks can't make ends meet. He just isn't getting the customers."

"In years past, I could look at my register cards and see license plates from coast to coast. More often than not these days the people are from surrounding states out for just a couple of days instead of a few weeks."

Our recent trip cross country covered

6,819 miles and consumed 904.9 gallons of gas. The 25-foot home averaged 7.9 miles a gallon. The average cost was 54.3 cents a gallon and we shelled out $487.35.

A similar journey two years ago was at a cost of $292.27.

One cost-saving tip, learned early in the trip, was that popular brands of gas were the most expensive. However, if the RV driver is willing to venture a few miles off the super highways to explore nearby towns, he'll most often find that he can save a few pennies per gallon.

Keeping a daily log on gas expenditures, we discovered the 50.9 cents paid in Ridgewood, N.J., would be the cheapest for the next 600 or so miles. The price was 53.7 in Kyrletown, Pa., and 59.9 near Columbus, Ohio.

A flashing sign in New Castle, Ind., proclaimed regular gas for 49.9, but the next fillup at Altamont, Ill., found the price soaring to 57.9. Several Cuba, Mo., and Tulsa, Okla., stations were also good for the pocketbook at 50.9 for off-brand fuels.

It was 58.9 in Groom, Tex., and 49.9 in Amarillo. New Mexico prices, hovered at the lower level, while Casa Grande, Ariz., figures climbed like the temperature and we paid 57.9.

California, from San Diego up to Los Angeles, was in the 52.9 range, but then came the big ripoff, on the California-Nevada border, when the gauge read 67.9. We just took in enough to reach Las Vegas, where the cost dipped about 15 cents a gallon.

The gambling capital seemed to be a vast parking lot for all the motor homes we missed seeing on the road. The Stardust Hotel campground, one of several areas catering to the fun crowd, charged $4 a night and permitted use of its swimming facilities.

We hit two other high-priced gasoline pumps en route home, a station near Zion National Park, Utah, where the cost was 59.9, and one in North Platte, Neb., at the same price.

Colorado, especially the Denver-Boulder-Ft. Collins area, offered low 49.9 rates. One pump, in Loveland, Colo., was our favorite. It was a vintage 1930's crank-turn job that used to spew gasoline at "six gals. for a dollar" and now featured an economy-favored 45.9.

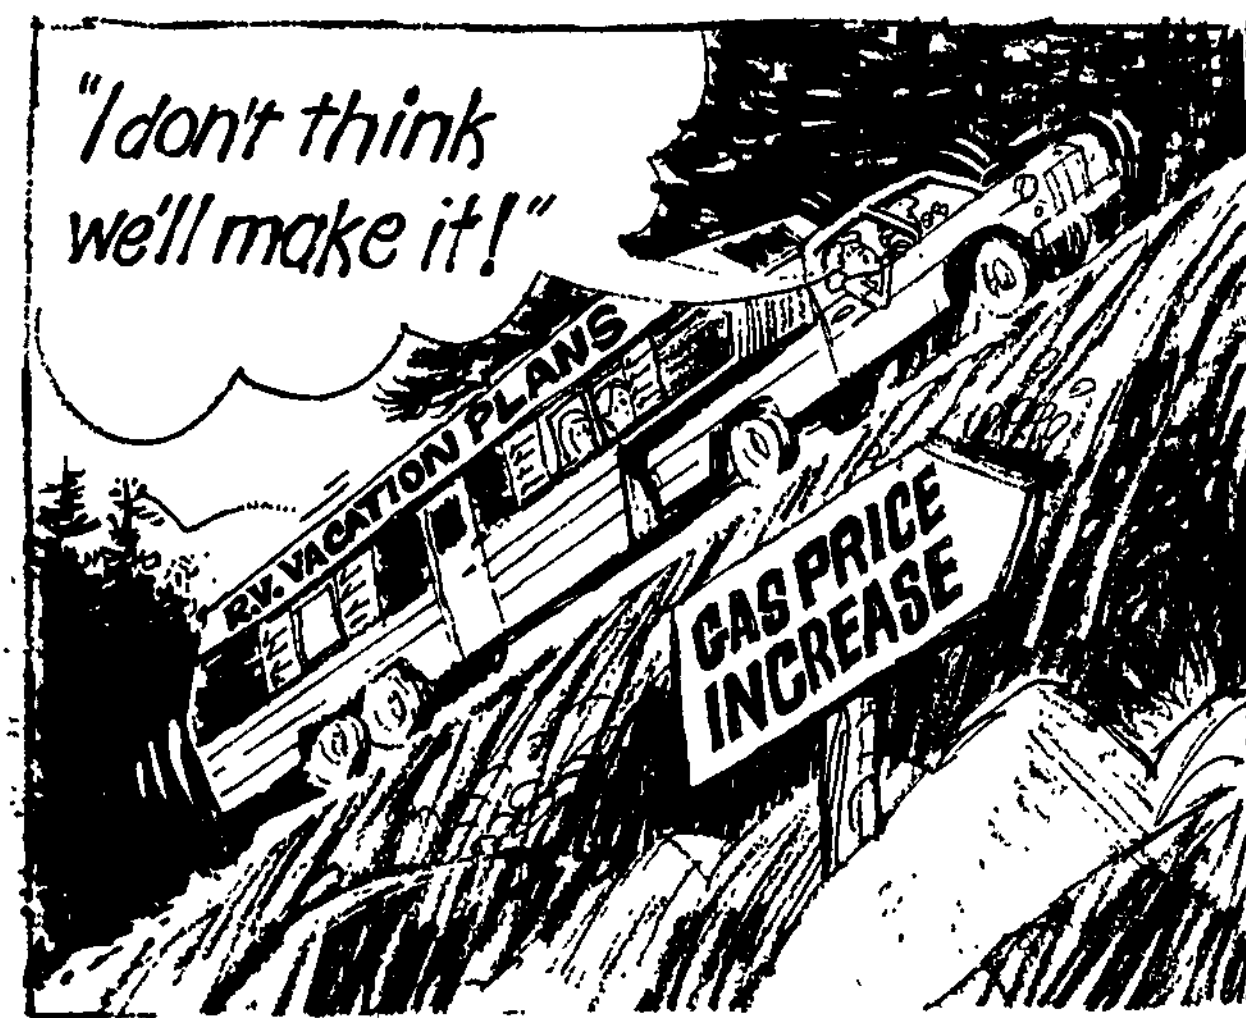

The midwest reflected our overall average of 54.3 cents a gallon.

A handy tip to RV owners planning long hauls: Stay at the national speed limit of 55 miles an hour. If you go faster, your engine gulps that precious fuel like you would your favorite drink. Our experience was 10 miles to a gallon at 50 mph and 8-plus at 55.

Those tortuous, high mountain passes consume great quantities of gas, too, so make sure your engines are finely tuned to get the most out of a gallon.

Motor vehicle camping is a great way to vacation. But those rising fuel prices could put these expensive rigs on the blocks and deprive a nation of sedentary job holders their one chance to soak up the outdoors.

And watch your shooting improve

by JIM COOK
Outdoor Editor

If there's anything worse than mincing a fish fillet to alleviate the tedious task of extracting bones through your teeth, it's losing a filling on stray buckshot while gobbling that first pheasant dinner.

The latter incident can be partially avoided if the hunter takes time to learn and understand the types of shells, shot sizes and effects of muzzle chokes on shot patterns.

Too often, pheasants are blasted out of the air from the simultaneous discharge by four shotguns who either didn't bother to predetermine some order of firing or, more likely, are using the wrong shot load.

The target should demand the type of gun and ammunition to be used. Attempting to drop a deer with a .410 gauge shotgun and No. 9 shot is straining success. Conversely, too heavy a load on small species such as quail, has a tendency to completely obliterate the bird.

Shot shells are loaded by weight, so small shot means more pellets per load. A No. 9 shot, for example, carries approximately 585 pellets per load. Each pellet is roughly .08 inches in diameter.

A size 8 shot load contains 410 pellets, each about nine-tenths of an inch in diameter. There are about 350 pellets in a size 7½ shell shot with diameters of about .095 and 225 pellets in a size 6 load at .11 diameter apiece.

The arithmetical progression should be obvious. The smaller the shot size, the larger, but less number of pellets per load. No. 5's hold about 170 pellets, 4's contain 135, 2's, 87 and BB's about 40.

The diameter of the shot, meanwhile, increases respectively to .12, .13, .15 and the BB which is .18 inches in diameter. Buckshot, of course, increases dramatically with the No. 4 almost one-quarter inch in diameter and the No. 00 exactly a third of an inch.

The size of the shot is directly proportional to the type of pattern achieved. The small shot, 7½, 8 or 9, for example, contains more pellets, thus insuring a denser pattern and a much better chance of a bullseye.

The larger shot, the 5's, 4's, 2's or BB's, meanwhile, offer greater range, but their effectiveness diminishes with less pellets per load.

Another factor that determines the density of the shot pattern is the choke or the amount of constriction in a gun's muzzle.

A full choke will keep the pattern dense up to 60 yards, but would be ineffective at short ranges. A medium choke would permit the shot to expand in pattern and proves most successful at ranges from 25-45 yards.

The improved cylinder choke is great for short distances since the barrel constriction is relatively slight, permitting a broad pattern and increasing the chances for a hit.

Another major misconception of the uninformed hunter is the distance the

The amount of constriction in a gun's muzzle, referred to as its 'choke', is one of the things that determines the size of the pattern spread of your shot charge.

Shot pattern effective at long range up to 50 to 55 yards, but too small and too dense at short range.

For two days, Friday, Oct. 11 from noon to 9:30 p.m. and Saturday, Oct. 12 from noon to 5:30 p.m., the Mall at Randhurst will look like a ski resort as Holiday Park sets up its Ski Deck Demonstration. They don't use snow, it's actually a carpet but it provides a base for experts to show off all of the tricks of the sport.

To see what's new in ski clothing, plan to attend the Winter Sports Fashion Show on the Mall at 7:30 p.m. on Friday or 2:30 p.m. on Saturday. Fashions are provided by the Sports chalet, Carson Pirie Scott & Co., and Montgomery Wards.

In addition to the demonstrations, there will be a continuous round of movies and clinics sponsored by the various ski manufacturers. The National Ski Patrol, a first aid group, will be on hand. Various ski clubs will have representatives available and will give you details about their organizations.

If you'd like to win ski item door prizes, you can stop in the Sports Chalet on the Town Hall Level and sign up.

Among the ski manufacturers participating in the show are Rossignol, San Marco, Olin, K-2, Solomon, Hanson, Head, Hexcel and Nordica.

Randhurst is located at the junction of Route 63 and 12 in Mt. Prospect.

Swordfish pierces existing record

A fisherman landed a 314-pound broad-bill swordfish off the east end of Catalina Island over the weekend after a four-hour, 20-minute fight.

The largest swordfish on record previously was a 204-pounder caught in April, 1973, Larry Barrett, 27, of Newport Beach, Calif., said he used a 30-pound test line and a "psychedelic" lure to make the catch.

His father, Richard Barrett, and a friend both fell overboard trying to gulf the fish.

TOURNAMENT MANAGER Bob Lang empties the stringer of bass caught by Illinois State Singles Bass Champion Larry Hopper who netted five big-mouths weighing five pounds, 13 ounces.

Hoffman Estates angler wins motor

by JIM COOK
Outdoor editor

At one minute before the four o'clock deadline, the sleek bass boats came racing from all four compass directions to Bob Lang's tournament headquarters on Lake Marie.

Sunday afternoon climaxed the two-day competition among some of the mid-west's foremost big-mouth anglers, but a common opponent — a pesky 35-mile per hour wind — may have been the big winner.

"Three-quarters of the lake area was unfishable because of the gusty wind," Land said. "The guys were very limited as to where they could fish and fish properly. It boiled down mostly to working protected shorelines and channels."

Despite the obvious drawbacks of trying to navigate the big rigs against the wind with a mere electric trolling motor, the 24 seasoned fishermen, competing individually, boated 63 bass totalling over 80 pounds.

Successfully battling the wind, thunder and lightning was Zion's Larry Hopper who captured the first-place trophy and prize money of $300. Larry caught five bass weighing five pounds, 13 ounces to earn 143 points.

The point system employed in the tournament is based on 10 points per fish (there was a 12-inch minimum) and one point per ounce.

Sending the outcome down to the wire was Oak Lawn's Ralph Rosinski whose 141 points just missed the Illinois State Singles Bass Championship title.

Rosinski's bass weighed more than Charleston's but the runnerup's 6-pound 5 ounce total was derived from only four fish. Still, the effort was worth a trophy plus $180.

Rounding out the top three was Ed Miller of Wooddale who landed three fish totalling 6 pounds, 11-ounces — the top scale-tipper of the tournament.

Larry Hopper of Hoffman Estates, meanwhile, carted home a Motorguide Super Bass Tracker Electric Trolling Motor by virtue of hooking the biggest bass of the contest — a 3-pound, 4-ouncer. Larry finished fifth in the overall derby with 88 points.

Also competing from the area were Bill Stanley of Mount Prospect (53 points), Don Schmidt of Barrington (35 points), Tony Gehrke of Rolling Meadows and Ralph Rybka of Hoffman Estates, both of whom were blanked.

"I would say that 90 per cent of the fish were taken in Channel, Catherine and Marie," Lang said of the three northernmost bodies of water in the Chain of Lakes.

"They were catching most of them on plastic worms, Big O's and Raiders with either white or yellow skirts. All 63 fish were released unharmed Monday morning."

WHOPPING WINNER. This little angler is very impressed with the three-pound four-ounce largemouth bass that won an electric trolling motor for Larry Hopper of Hoffman Estates during the two-day tournament on the Chain. (Photos by Jim Cook)

Sailboats lure sailors to lakefront

Chicago's first in-the-water sailboat show will be held in Burnham Park Harbor during the four-day weekend from Oct. 18-21, according to show president Gene McCarthy.

"In-the-water boat shows are becoming increasingly popular," stated McCarthy, "because they give sailors the opportunity to inspect the really big boats which simply cannot be effectively displayed and evaluated indoors. We felt that Chicago is such an important sailing center that it deserved to have this type of show."

McCarthy explained that the autumn dates were selected in an effort to give Midwestern sailors enough lead-time to place orders and get delivery for a full season of boating in 1975.

"Most of the exhibitors will be featuring their new models," he said, "so people attending the show will have first crack at them. Sailing has become so popular in recent years that manufacturers sometimes have problems keeping up with the demand."

"By seeing the new models in the fall, sailors can get their orders in early and be assured of delivery. I know that many of the exhibitors plan to offer special prices at the show, too," he continued, "so there will be opportunities to take advantage of some real savings."

McCarthy said that some 200 boats will be on display, covering the full range from small sailboards to ocean-going yachts. In addition, there will be extensive displays of sailing accessories, clothing and special services such as financing, insurance and sailing publications.

Show highlights include regularly scheduled demonstrations of Chrysler Corporation's sailing simulator, model sailboat racing demonstrations, a hot air balloon display, tours of Chicago police and fire boats, and a replica of a Navy aircraft carrier.

"We believe that sailing enthusiasts from all over the Midwest will find this show to be both interesting and valuable," commented McCarthy, "and we intend to make it an annual event."

"The reactions of both the manufacturers and sailors we've talked to have been very encouraging. They recognize that Chicago has long needed this kind of show to go along with growing popularity of sailing and the excellent sailing facilities that are available throughout the Midwest."

Hours for the show are 10 a.m.-7 p.m. Friday, Oct. 18; 9 a.m.-7 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, and 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Monday Oct. 21. Admission is $3.50. Burnham Park Harbor is located along Chicago's lakefront between the Adler Planetarium and McCormick Place.

Ten Pin Bowl captures five in women's action

by GENE KIRKHAM

The Paddock Women's Classic Traveling League had their most unusual night this season while bowling at Striking Lanes.

It is hard to win seven points in a well balanced league such as the Paddock Classic. In the action at Striking Lanes only one team was able to win five points with the other three match games coming out on a four and three basis.

The five point winner was Ten Pin Bowl as they came out on top in a very close match with Ziebart of Des Plaines.

Ten Pin won the first game with 892 as Ziebart won the second game with 862. Ten Pin followed by winning the third game with 913 which gave them enough to win the series point by only three pins, 2600 to 2597.

Peggy Harris of Ziebart led the scoring in this match with 599. Her series, which also led the league's individual scoring for this night, was consistently put together with games of 199, 211, and 190. Carol Miller rolled 189, 205, and 207 for 581 and Carol Anderson rolled a 204 game and a 553 series.

For the five-point winning Ten Pin Bowl, Ethel Juenger led with 556, Gloria Lucchesi had 543, Joan Plywack had 201 and 526, and Betty Peterman had 512.

Striking Lanes continues to lead the league as they won four of seven points from L-Tran Engineering.

L-Tran won the first game with a 919 as Striking came back to win the next two games with 923 and 943. L-Tran won the series point 2675 to 2655.

Striking Lanes' Bette Brelle led the scoring in this match with a 572 series which included a 231 game. Lu Schoenberger added 545, Judy Brumond had 538, and Alice Schroder rolled 215-529.

For L-Tran Isobel Kosi had 539, Vi Douglas had 537, and Toshi Inahara had 203-520.

Mason Shoes and Des Plaines Lanes had their fun in a four-three win which went to Mason Shoes. Mason won the first game by four pins and the third game by 15 pins while Des Plaines Lanes won the middle game which gave them enough to take the series point by 37

Deadline approaches for KC show

Fall International K.C. show —

Closing date for the Fourth International Kennel Club Fall Dog Show will be Oct. 16 at noon, in the superintendent's office, Webb Dog Shows, P.O. Box 346, Auburn, Ind., 46706.

To be held at the International Amphitheatre, Chicago, the event will have 31 judges from 14 states, Canada and Finland, headed by Mrs. John Marshall Jones, Palm Beach, Fla., who will select the Best in Show.

This show will be unbenched, which means that the dogs have to be at the show only at the time of judging for their particular breed or class. Benched shows, on the other hand, require dogs to remain on their benches for the duration of the show, except at such times as they are being judged or exercised.

Last year's fall show had 3248 dogs entered and this year that number is expected to increase. Many people are entering shows close to home in order to save on gas, plus the idea of a one-day, unbench show is well-liked, as handlers need spend only one day and can go on to another nearby show the next day.

Entry blanks are available at the International K.C., 4300 S. Halsted St., Chicago, Ill., 60609, or from Webb Dog Shows. Remember, entries must be in Webb's office by noon, Oct. 16, for the show on Saturday, Nov. 2.

Shih Tzu Club Match —

The Chicagoland Shih Tzu Club will hold a Fun Match Saturday, Oct. 12, at the Albert A. Anderson Florist location,

East, West lose in varsity golf

Maine East's varsity golfers strung together three losses last week and haven't won a dual meet all season. Niles East beat the Demons, 160-166, at Arlington Country Club, Niles North won, 167-170, at Chevy Chase and Maine South won, 155-166, at Rob Roy.

Demon scorers against Niles East were Ed Mendrala 41, Carl Sorensen 41, Tom Drozdz 42 and Tim Seelos 42. Versus Niles North, East counted Pat Ferguson 41, Pete Bonitsoma 43, Scott Schwartz 43 and Seelos 43. Place winners against Maine South were Schwartz 41, Seelos 41, Drozdz 42 and Sorensen 42.

In other varsity action, Maine West journeyed to Northbrook's Sportsman's Country Club where the Warriors lost 147-168, to Glenbrook North. West counted Tony Copley 41, Jim Kossick 42, Mike Hoepfner 43 and Scott Kisten 42.

At Fair Lanes Bowl

His Hart led the Wednesday Morning Menches at the Fair Lanes Bowl in Rolling Meadows last week with a 474 series and high game of 199.

Other games were called by Eileen Darnstedt 176, Madge Waarn 170, Marilyn Driake 167, Donna Dinges 164 and Shirley Sinks 162.

Tough conversions were made by Janie Ballering 2-7-10, Judy Jones 3-7-10 and Kere Estep 6-7-10.

2601 N. Harlem, Chicago, at 1 p.m.

Advanced entry fee is $3 and entry fee the day of the match is $3.50. For information and entry blanks, contact the match chairman, Mrs. Dorothy Naegele, 201 E. Olive, Prospect Heights, Ill., 60070.

The classes, by the way, will be divided by sex and include 3-6 months, 6-9 months, 9-12 months, American Bred and Open, with the Best Adult and Best Puppy receiving a trophy and rosette ribbon.

Wicket measuring—

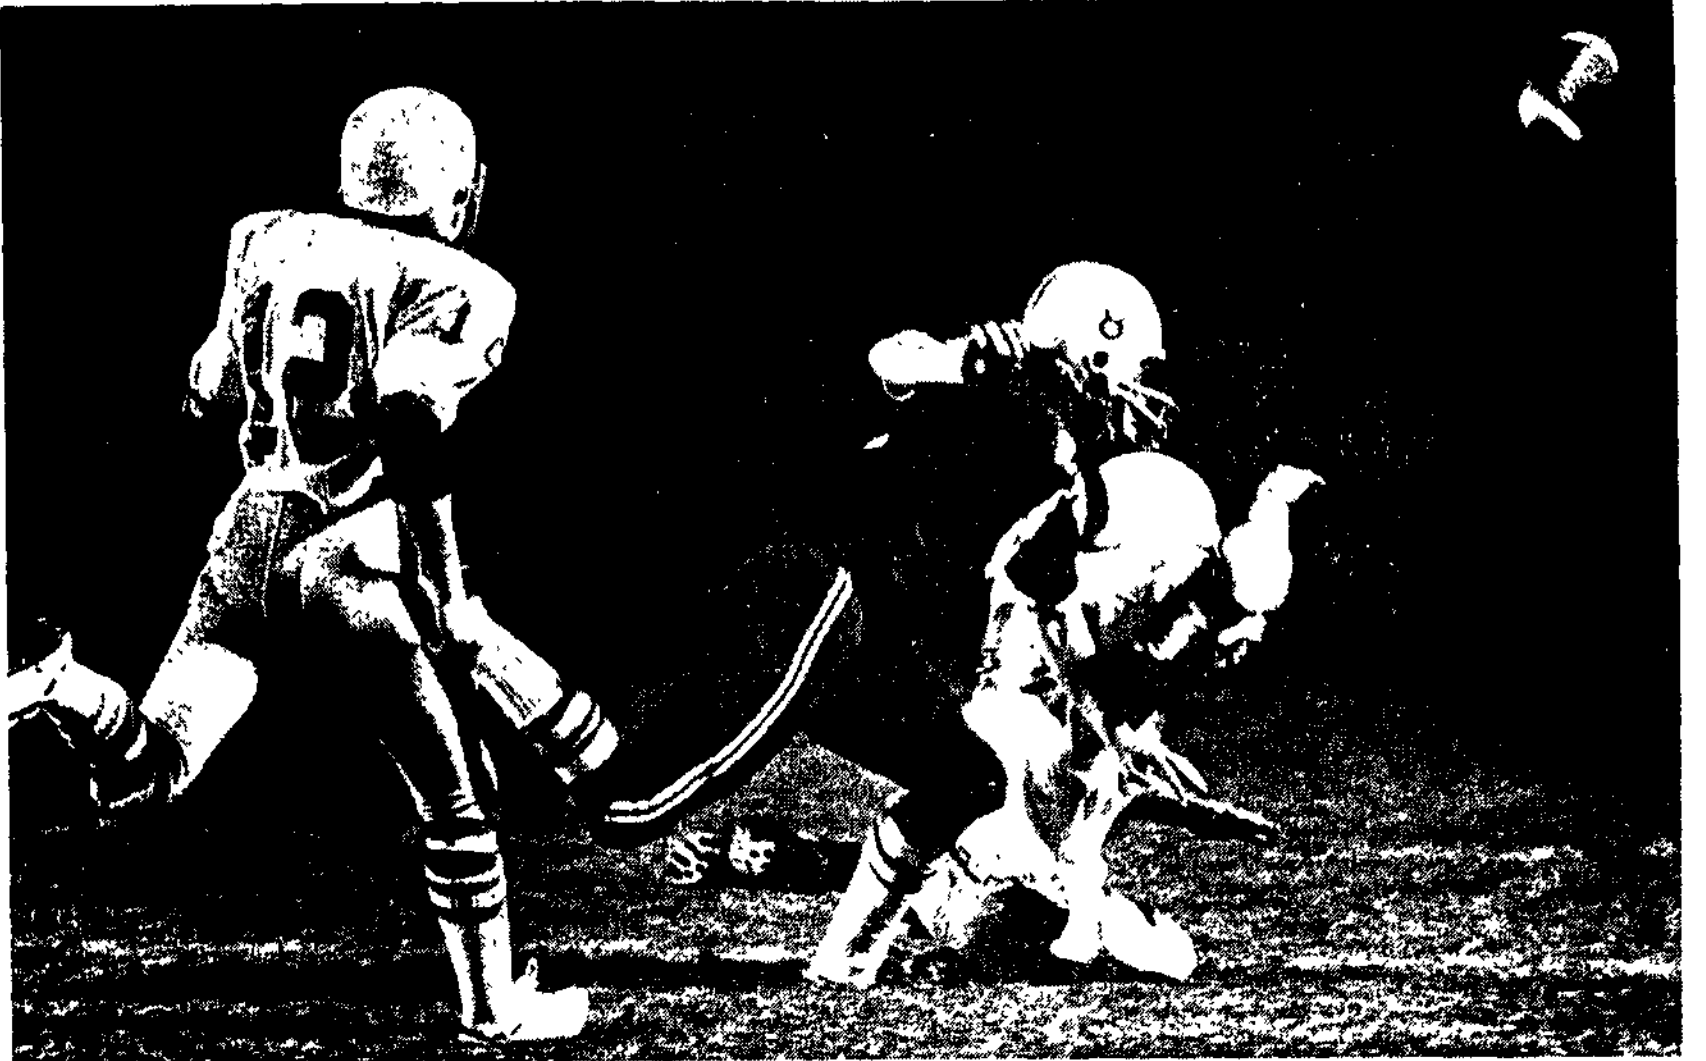

As of October 1, the measuring wicket became the official measuring device to be used at all AKC shows, to determine the height of dogs.

Now there will be no more pre-measuring of dogs prior to judging and the judge himself will measure a dog in the class if required.

This new device is a lot better than the old method and will save time plus making it much easier for the dog. If you are involved with a show-giving club and wish to order the new measuring device, they are available at cost, plus shipping charges, from the American Kennel Club, 51 Madison Ave., New York, N.Y. 10010, attention of Mark T. Mooty, AKC secretary.

Barsk and Bays —

Recently your editor was asked about a problem relative to housebreaking a dog. It seems the owner had been in it for some time. However, the key word in the conversation was "play" and believe me, when you take a dog outside, you don't let him play if he is supposed to do something else.

JUST OVERTHROWN. St. Viator wide receiver Pat Rooney splits his two Holy Cross defenders but Bob Walsh's pass evades everyone during this action Friday evening. Nick Legattuta trails for the Crusaders. Walsh completed one pass and scored one TD. Rooney recovered one of eight Cross fumbles in the Lions' 28-7 win.

Fire game to aid Hersey band for Rose Bowl trip

The Hersey High School Marching Band, one of the finest anywhere, will perform at the Chicago Fire football game, Wednesday, Oct. 23, against the Hawaiians at Soldier Field.

The band will be in the spotlight before the game and at halftime of the World Football League contest. Tickets for the game may be purchased through the Hersey Instrumental Association at the regular price of $7. All proceeds will go directly toward the fund that has been established to help send the band to the Rose Bowl Parade in Pasadena, Calif., on New Year's Day.

The Hersey band is still several thousand dollars short of the $50,000 needed to pay all expenses for the trip, which is now just two and a half months away.

The Hersey band, under the direction of Donald E. Canova with the assistance of Jim Rich, received a special invitation to perform at the Rose Parade. It will be the first time in more than 25 years that an Illinois High School band has marched in the annual parade which precedes the Rose Bowl game.

The Rose Parade would be the crowning glory for the band, which has performed at such prestigious places as the Cotton Bowl, Disney World, the Illinois State Fair, and with such celebrities as Doc Severinsen and Arthur Fiedler.

A run by Jim Leach, who also scored the all-important PAT, started the scoring. The Raiders scored on a short plunge after a long halfback pass put them on the two yard line. Their try for the extra point failed and the defenses of both teams fended off the other for a score.

DOLPHINS 14 - STEELERS 0

While total offense was about equal, a fired-up Dolphin defense held when it counted, and used the long bomb twice to drop the Steelers from the undefeated ranks. Two no-hitters

Johnny Vander Meer of the Cincinnati Reds, only man in baseball history to pitch two consecutive no-hitters, performed the feat on June 11 and 15, respectively, in 1938. His victims were the Boston Braves and Brooklyn Dodgers.

PEORIA, ROUND ONE. Fremd's Wil Fieldhouse (center) heads toward the finish in his eighth-place effort at the Peoria Central Invitational cross country meet last Saturday. Alton's Mike Sawyer and Champaign Central's Rick Rundus placed ahead of Fieldhouse, who nonetheless led his Viking teammates to a first place performance. Fremd's victory over state-champ York and several other schools on the state-meet course at Peoria leaves the Vikings of coach Ron Menely in good position to capture their second state title Nov. 2. (Photo by Al Messerschmidt)

Palatine coasts to throne; Three teams finish second

by KEITH REINHARD
Golf Editor

While Palatine was breezing to the title, Forest View, Prospect and Hersey all took different routes to the runnerup position in near-final Mid-Suburban League dual meet golf action Tuesday afternoon.

The Pirates romped past a pair of fellow 211 schools to assure themselves of a first place ranking regardless of what anyone else did. Meanwhile the only 211 representative not present with Palatine — Fremd — helped out as much as possible by teaming with Arlington to deal Hersey a double defeat.

And Forest View got in the act by nipping Prospect Tuesday at the site of next week's conference tournament. While two more MSL dual meets are still on the docket for Thursday, all the shuffling among the leaders is over and coach Bill Schultz's Pirates will take a firm two-point advantage into that loop showdown. Had the Vikings not tied an earlier meet with Conant, they'd be at second place now too in edging the Cards 201-204 on fifth scores after both had zipped past the Huskies 159-167.

The outcome, at Palatine Hills, had the Vikings winding up 8-3-1 in the league and Hersey dipping to 9-3. Cliff Garcia and Dave McKinney sparked the host cause with 39s and Mark Evans, Will Garcia and Curt Schneider rounded out a balanced attack with scores of 40, 41 and 42 respectively.

Redbird Tom Oleese outclassed everyone with a torrid 35 round and Brian Palmer backed him up with a 39. Ed Colleton's 42 and Bill Weber's 43 neutralized Oleese's hot shooting, however, to forge the 159-standoff and Schneider's 42 earned the nod over Doug Sandell's 45.

Hersey was headed up by Ed Stubbs at 40 with Keven Krahn adding a 41, Steve Hartmann a 42 and Ray Hafner a 44.

The Pirates were paced by Nick Zambolo's glittering 36 in scoring 156 to 177 for hosting Schaumburg and 185 for Hoffman Estates at Hilldale. Mike Sievers supported Zambolo with a 38 while Bob Capoun carried a 40 and Scott Grank and Paul Thompson threw in 42s, allowing Palatine to finish off the MSL campaign with an impressive 11-1 slate.

For the Saxons it was Mark Schultz and Ron Gentuso collecting 41s, Rick Malinsky a 45 and Bill Bronke and Jeff Infusino 50s. The Hawks had a 41 from Al Kalas, a 47 from Greg Turner, a 48 from John Mann and a 49 from Jim Larson.

In edging Prospect 158-160 on the Mount Prospect course both call home, Forest View upped their own MSL log to a final 9-3 while lowering the Knights to the same plane. Rick Keyser at 38 and Phil Roelofson at 39 keyed the Falcon surge with Ron Romack chipping in a 41 and Jim Moran a 40.

Paul Moats led Prospect with a 39 while Craig Ridley and Steve Spielman added 40s and Scott Spielman a 41.

In Suburban Catholic combat at Naperville Country Club, St. Viator closed out dual meet play by clipping Benet 158-163. It was the seventh triumph for the Lions against as many losses and a tie overall. Versus league foes they were 3-1-1.

Tom Hermanson, Greg Kay and Tim Brennan all pitched in with 30s for Viator while Mike Allare and John Langhenry came home at 41 apiece.

Headlining frosh-soph competition Tuesday was a 165-182 Knight win over Forest View that allowed them to wrap up their circuit title with a stellar 11-1 record. Prospect's Bobo Lopothko outgunned everyone including the varsity squads with a 37.

Hoffman sophs were led by Bob Demont at 38 and Mark Hojnacki at 39 in totaling out a 163 to topple Palatine (198) and Schaumburg (205). St. Viator also had a couple of sub-40 efforts from Bob Cantieri (38) and Tim Beatty (39) in subduing Benet 162-185.

Fremd completed a sweep for the day by hitting 176, to 185 for Hersey and 188 for Arlington in lower level action.

St. Viator holds 2nd spot in UPI's statewide poll

The Lions of St. Viator remained in second place in the UPI's 4 and 5A football poll this week following their fifth straight victory, a 28-7 streak past Holy Cross. Burbank St. Laurence held onto the top spot by snaring seven of twelve first place votes for a total of 96 points.

The number three ranked school, Evanston, has lost only once and that defeat came in the opening game of the season against St. Viator. The Wildcats started low in the poll and have been improving steadily with four straight victories.

A pair of non-Chicago area powers are ranked next with Rockford East taking fifth and Peoria Central sixth.

East Leydon from Franklin Park polled in seventh, Quincy eighth and Hinsdale Central ninth. Unbeaten Glenbrook North rounded out the top ten.

Geneseo garnered eight of 12 first place votes in the 1, 2 and 3A poll. The Mapleloofs are 8-0 this year and haven't been scored on. They also have an unbeaten string of 22 games.

by RICHARD HUGHES
NEW YORK (UPI) — During these troubled times on Wall Street, new attention is focused on the Dow Jones industrial average.

It is the most widely followed of numerous indicators of the ups and downs of stocks traded on the New York Stock Exchange. Many people, in fact, equate the Dow with the market itself.

Newspapers, radio and television have been proclaiming the news recently that the Dow is at a 12 year low, running below 600, and dropping steadily.

To many people this means the entire market is at a 12-year low. Indeed, most of the stocks traded in the NYSE are down, some significantly, as inflation takes its toll.

BUT THE DOW industrial is only an average of 30 blue chip stocks. It does not pretend to be an index of all 1,543 stocks listed on the NYSE. As Dow Jones says, it is designed to "give a general rather than precise idea of the fluctuations in the securities markets."

The Dow is the most popular indicator because it is the oldest, having been established in 1897, and because it has stood the test of time as a general barometer of the market.

"There's no question about it, it tells you the direction of the market," said Newton Zinder, a market analyst for E. F. Hutton. "But where you can be misled is in the actual magnitude of gain or loss."

Zinder says the Dow industrial sometimes will give a "distorted picture" because it is heavily influenced by fluctuations of individual stocks used in averaging.

FOR EXAMPLE, if duPont, one of the blue chips in the Dow, should drop 10 percent in price it would carry the average down, even if all other 29 stocks held their own. At the same time, the majority of all other common stocks might, for example, rise in price.

"Primarily, you would read that the market was down 10 points," Zinder said. "Well, in fact, the Dow was down 10 points."

"If one issue on the Dow takes a beating, it can knock hell out of the average even if the other stocks are in good shape," a NYSE spokesman said.

Saul Smerling of Standard & Poor's, which issues a broader based index of 500 common stocks, said the popular indexes "most of the time run in tandem" with actual conditions on the market.

But, he said, there are "odd times" when other things should be examined.

RECENTLY, he noted, the popular indexes, including Standard & Poor's and Dow, were down. But on the same day, more stocks gained in price than lost.

"This was an indication of the moment, an indication that the market was better than the averages," Smerling said. "But this was only fleeting. The advances were marginal and not a real indication of an aggressive turn. It was not a sustained change of attitude."

Smerling and Zinder recommended that investors watch the number of new highs and lows and on how many issues go up or down in a day.

THE NEW YORK Stock Exchange since 1968 has provided a composite index of all common stocks listed on the exchange which, a spokesman said, "reflects stock prices not just day by day but hour by hour and even minute by minute."

But, says James Parrish, a Denver stock broker, all indexes should be taken with a grain of salt.

"Anyone who's investing in the market ought to do more than look at the averages and say 'the market is up, I'm going to buy,'" he said.

Zinder added: "It's more important to look at individual stocks than any average."

Disaster act 'pure idiocy': farmer

WILLIAM FIELD, after getting money on ads urging the amendment $10,000 in disaster relief funds of the "idiocy" act, from the government, is spending the SHELBY, Mich. (UPI) — Farmer William Field says he is going to spend $5,000 that is left of $10,000 he received in government handouts so he can fight to repeal the law that permitted him to receive the money in the first place.

Field, who kept the money, is starting a series of advertisements in western Michigan newspapers, calling attention to a federal act allowing for disaster loans and grants and urging it be amended.

The law permits disaster loans — with the first $5,000 an outright grant. Field has received $10,000 in two years with virtually no strings attached. He also may be eligible to collect $5,000 next spring under the act he termed "pure idiocy."

More than 200 farmers in Oceana County, Mich., received a total of nearly $1.5 million last spring — more than a million in outright grants and the rest in low interest loans.

FIELD, 46, SAID THE idea behind the law, Federal Act 93-237, was to put money in the hands of people struck by national disaster the last few years.

He feels, however, the politicians and bureaucrats changed the meaning of the law.

"They stretched the meaning of the word disaster to apply to farmers hit by frost, and now it applies to any small business that can show a loss if it is in a declared disaster area," he said.

"Why didn't he return the money?"

"I intended to return the first $5,000 grant but we bought a summer home and came up short on money at the end of last year. So I couldn't," he said.

Venereal disease

Local clinics treating more cases as national VD rate climbs

by GENIE CAMPBELL

VD. Who me? Maybe you . . . and for sure three million other Americans.

Regardless how much time and energy are spent currently in educating the general public to the ugly consequences of venereal disease, 8,000 new cases of gonorrhea and syphilis break out every day.

Epidemic in proportion, VD is the second most contagious infection, next to the common cold.

Yet unlike a slight cough and a few sniffles, venereal disease is dangerous if left untreated. And it won't go away on its own. Sterility, heart disease, arthritis, blindness and even death can occur.

Why then, if many are already aware of the dangers, the increasing rate?

One segment of society puts the blame on "loose morals." Youth's promiscuity, they strongly proclaim, is the root of the cause.

OTHERS FEEL the high incidence of VD was here all the time, just never detected. Through more publicity and better education more people are aware of the problem and therefore seek treatment. Cases can be counted only if they are reported.

"We are definitely turning up more cases though it is hard to say whether it was here or not before," said the Cook County Health representative who runs the county VD clinic located in Niehoff Pavilion of Alexian Brothers Medical Center. It opened in March of this year to service the northwest suburbs.

Both he and Barbara Michellin, coordinator of the Crossroads Clinic in Palatine, which screens teenagers for VD, believe linking the high rate of venereal disease with "sexual openness" is unfair.

"Whether people are more promiscuous, I would not like to guess," said Bob, who asked that his real name not be used. All cases are treated confidentially at both clinics. Since an undesirable social stigma is still attached to VD, Bob must protect his own identity in regard for his patients.

"MORE PEOPLE ARE coming forward today, but no one knows for sure how great the number really is," said Barbara. Bob added, "It is still a known fact that doctors, who treat the largest number privately, do not report most cases to public health authorities even though legally required to do so."

"VD should be treated for what it is, an infection. But unfortunately it is still considered a 'social disease.' People are so ashamed, so secretive, so afraid to come forward," continued Mrs. Michellin.

There is reason for great concern. Gonorrhea, the dose or drip in slang, has increased 89 per cent just in the last four years. It is 30 times more prevalent than syphilis, or the clap, which has increased 30 per cent in the same time span.

NATIONAL HEALTH statistics indicate that one out of every four teenagers, aged 15 to 20, is expected to contract VD at least once before he/she leaves school.

"Chicago proper follows closely the national average while the suburban area is maybe a little less, perhaps one in five or six," said Mrs. Michellin.

The highest incidence of VD occurs in young adults aged 20 to 24 though teenagers run a close second and people under 30 altogether account for 85 per cent of all reported cases.

"But there really is no age barrier," said Bob. "We've seen patients here as young as 12 and as old as 65. Most are from this area and I would say either middle class or above."

"A lot of them come in because they are scared they have been in contact with a carrier. Others have guilty consciences. Maybe they've had a one-night stand and are not even sure who the guy or girl was."

"THEN WE HAVE regulars who are sexually active and stop by every couple of months just to make sure they haven't picked up anything."

Even though many tests turn out negative, clinics are pleased that people on their own initiative are seeking help. It indicates a general awareness of a mounting health problem that is difficult to bring under control.

Bob has only seen two cases of syphilis since he was assigned to the county clinic two months ago. Otherwise all detected cases of venereal disease turned out to be gonorrhea which a male can detect easily enough by the beginning symptoms of a burning sensation upon urination and also a milky, pus-like discharge from the penis (hence the word drip). These symptoms show up almost immediately, a day or two after intercourse with a carrier.

A woman however, is not so lucky. She may not know she has picked up the infection until the damage to her body is irreversible. Severe stomach cramps may be the first sign that indicates acute pelvic inflammation which could result in sterility.

FOR ONE 19-year-old girl referred to Crossroads by the Cook County Health Department, that's exactly what happened.

"The gonorrhea had spread so far by the time we saw her that she had to undergo a complete hysterectomy," said Mrs. Michellin.

For this reason it is crucial that the females be informed by an infected male with whom she has had sexual intercourse.

Crossroads Clinic, instituted two years ago by Dr. Douglas Finlayson who saw the need for one after discovering his own private practice was overloaded with teenage VD patients, screens every young person who comes through the doors, 80 to 100 a week, regardless if he or she has asked for testing or is there for other services offered by the clinic, including birth control.

Four cases of syphilis in the last year turned up at Crossroads, including one 14-year-old boy who contracted it during his first sexual encounter and a middle-aged divorcee who didn't even know she had it when she arrived at the clinic. She had come for a blood test because she was planning to remarry.

"HERE WAS THE classic example of how the VD stigma can affect someone. She was dejected and hurt far more psychologically than physically. She thought her whole life was ruined," said Mrs. Michellin.

Caught and effectively treated early enough, this woman experienced no discomfort or complications. Through reassurance by clinic personnel, her psyche was also restored enough for her to continue with her wedding plans.

Though Crossroads is primarily set up to treat the sexual problems of teenagers, no one is turned away.

"Some middle-aged adults do come to the clinic for VD testing though they are mostly from outside this area and often use fictitious names and addresses to conceal their identities," said Mrs. Michellin.

"It's the middle group we still have to get to . . . those who think that if you get VD you deserve it. They want to stick their heads in the sand hoping it will all go away," continued the clinic coordinator.

"Crossroads is not there to condemn or to condone, but rather to treat a medical problem for what it is . . . just as long as we are able to do it."

Mrs. Michellin is optimistic about the future.

"I show a lot of faith in the young people. Sex is not something to be whispered about. Why be so uptight over anything that is so natural?"

"WE DO NOT SEE promiscuous kids. They have a one-to-one relationship. I'll have to say, when that fizzles out there will be another, but at least, it's one-to-one while it lasts. There is nothing artificial between them."

Various theories have been raised as to how VD evolved. No one knows for sure though the method of contraction is assured, through sexual contact. Toilet seats, eating utensils, unsatisfactory sanitary conditions just don't cut it by themselves. One has to sexually engage with a carrier.

A blood test is given to detect syphilis while a smear is taken to determine gonorrhea. However, with the latter, the culture must be taken at the point of sexual contact. Gonorrhea can be contracted in the genital area, the rectum or in the throat.

With homosexuality on the rise, all men at Crossroads are automatically given an urethra and anal culture.

"IT'S EMBARRASSING to ask if they've been with another boy so this way it eliminates anyone just slipping by. Girls have always been given both tests so why shouldn't the men?" said Mrs. Michellin.

At Cook County's VD clinic in Elk Grove, those coming in for testing are asked where sexual contact took place. If a girl has contracted gonorrhea in her mouth, a culture taken from her vagina will still register negative. It is most important that the testing be done where the gonococcus germs might have entered.

Since penicillin was first discovered in 1943 to effectively treat both syphilis and gonorrhea, the cure is rather simple, immediate and inexpensive if diagnosed soon enough. Usually one massive injection clears up most infections of venereal disease though patients after treatment are asked to return for one checkup.

THOSE WHO FEEL sure they have been in contact with a carrier are automatically treated without testing.

If a man has an active case of VD, there is a 70 to 80 per cent chance that he will transmit it to his female sexual partner. If a woman is on the pill, those chances increase to almost 100 per cent. The pill changes the PH balance in the vagina to induce an atmosphere highly susceptible to gonococci and syphilis spirochetes.

Venereal disease (appropriately named after Venus, the Goddess of Love) already once reached epidemic proportions in this country during the early to middle '50s following World War II. Massive aid and manpower brought it down to a manageable level. Afterwards, cutbacks were made in governmental aid.

"Funds will have to be reinstated again to get on top of the problem," Bob feels.

There are preventative measures. "The best method is by having the male use a condom. It acts as a definite mechanical barrier," said Mrs. Michellin.

THE PILL which allows women to engage in sexual play without fear of unwanted pregnancy, might be influencing the rising rate of VD. There are no statistics, however, to prove this.

"Contraceptive foam or jelly which kills sperm will also kill the infectious germs," said Bob. "Simple good hygiene and washing helps too though this won't prevent it from occurring," he added.

"Women sexually active owe it to themselves to get tested periodically," voiced Mrs. Michellin. She advises women who regularly go for a pap smear every six months to tell their doctor to also take a smear for gonorrhea.

"You should insist upon it. And that's regardless of how well you think you know your partner."

Women and children first

Parent may curb minor's driving

by JULIE MARTOCCIO

Dear Atty. Martoccio:

One of my sons will be 16 in a couple of months, and naturally he's reached the age where he wants to drive my car. Before I consent to a license for him, I would like to know the answers to a few questions.

I'm a divorcee with three children to support so I can't afford to take any chances. Another thing that bothers me is that motorcycleists aren't required by law to wear helmets any more. I have an older son who rides one and I beg him to wear a helmet which he does only on occasion. Of all the dumb things to do! Change a law that protects a person from serious injury or worse. Why was this law changed? What must I do to protect myself if my son drives my car?

D.R.

Dear D.R.: In addition to having automobile insurance which covers your son in the event of an accident, there is a precautionary measure that you have at your command.

Any unemancipated minor, and your son is one of them since he lives at home and you are supporting him, must have his application for a driver's license with an accompanying letter of consent written and signed by his father, if available. Under your circumstances, however, where your husband is "acting like a stranger and never sees his kids," you would have the authority to sign the application. You also then have the privilege of cancelling it. All that's necessary is a letter written to the license department to that effect. If you feel that your son needs to know beforehand what your remedy is, I suggest you tell him. However, I'll bet he knows all the rules and regulations already! Driver's education in the high schools is doing a great job of training teenagers for the road. (Sometimes I think they are better behaved than adults.)

I feel the way you do about that law being repealed. However, the Illinois State Police are still urging drivers to wear helmets even though the courts reversed the law requiring the wearing of them.

Originally the court said, in upholding the law requiring helmets, that it had to decide between personal freedom and the need for public order and safety. Some protesting cyclists challenged the law on the grounds that it was an infringement of their right to dress as they pleased. This argument is an extension of the constitutional rights of free expression. (By the way, so is the current view of nude dancing!)

The court said the law must draw the line somewhere or we may find ourselves being told what kind of suit, shoes, etc. we are permitted to wear. Still, it seems to me that requiring a cyclist and passengers to be protected by glasses, goggles or a transparent shield and not requiring the wearing of protective head gear is inconsistent with their line of reasoning.

EQUAL RIGHTS: In the May 15 and July 3, 1974, issues of The Herald, I wrote about the legal limits of age 18 and objected to the phrase "that an 18-year-old is of legal age for all intents and purposes," pointing out a number of specific sections in the Illinois Constitution that denied 18-year-olds the privileges of an adult.

I also pointed out that an 18-year-old male who wished to marry in this state had to receive the permission of his parents but that some counties, by opinions from the state's attorney's office, were disregarding the law and permitting 18-year-old males to wed without their parents' consent.

Now, finally, the Illinois Supreme Court, heeding the pleas that this discrimination was unconstitutional, has made it definite. Both male and female may marry at age 18 without parental consent.

I'd like to add a word of caution though. The Illinois statutes still restrict 18-year-olds from acting in certain capacities, such as drinking, sale or delivery of explosives, various career areas (lawyers, optometrists, policeman), divorce, office holder, etc. They're mentioned in my May 15 column and if you're interested in knowing the complete list, I suggest you refer to it.

(Readers are invited to submit questions regarding legal problems of women and children. Names and facts that would identify the writer are withheld on request. Attorney Martoccio's column is to inform and not advise. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006).

Profile of 'political woman'

BY GAY PAULEY

Women have had the right to vote for more than half a century, but as for their role in political office, it's still life in the Dark Ages.

"In a society whose political arena is still overwhelmingly dominated by men, the woman politician is, in effect, a social deviant." That's the way one political science researcher, a woman, spells it concerning women in elective office.

If, however, you want a profile of the typical woman in politics, Dr. Jeanne J. Kirkpatrick, describes her this way: " . . . the average woman legislator is neither a fanatic nor even an avowed feminist."

"Usually she is a mature, stable woman whose background and personal style personify the traditional feminine role — even as the fact of her political career shatters the very conventions she represents."

MRS. KIRKPATRICK describes her as a "fairly attractive, 48-year-old mother of two nearly grown children. Although she has a college education, she has rarely worked outside the home."

"She lives in a small town where she was born and is financially supported by her reasonably successful husband, who has encouraged her to run for office. Running for office was an extension of volunteer community service."

Dr. Kirkpatrick drew this portrait from her research of state legislatures. She chose this particular category because "this is the highest political level where women are sufficiently numerous to provide a useful perspective on the kinds of women who make a commitment to political life . . ."

Mrs. Kirkpatrick, wife, mother of two teen-age sons, is professor of political science at Georgetown University, is vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee's commission on vice presidential selection and executive committee member of the Coalition for a Democratic Majority.

HER RESEARCH WAS under the auspices of the Eagleton Institute's Center for the American Woman and Politics, Rutgers University and the Carnegie Corp.

Basic Books, Inc., will publish the detailed report, "Political Woman," later in October.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick's research involved 48 women legislators in 28 states. Twenty-one of the women were Republicans, 25 Democrats and all had served more than one term. Forty male legislators in 28 states completed identical questionnaires; the researcher wanted to compare the political pattern of the sexes.

Women run for office for reasons different from those of men, she concluded. Women, she said, "ran not because they sought money, power or prestige, but because a lifetime of concerned citizen activism convinced them that political office was the only viable means of implementing the programs and changes they wanted to see in their communities."

Some other conclusions:

• The female is less likely to see her office as a political or financial stepping stone.

• She is less approachable by lobbyists and special interest groups. For one thing, she said, the vast majority . . . is supported by . . . husbands, leaving them as one woman in the sample put it "free to be virtuous."

• On the campaign trail, nearly all the women encountered prejudice from male opponents who used campaign slogans such as "Elect a man to do a man's job" and from female voters who resented a woman candidate because "it somehow lessens their own role as homemaker."

• And of the future for women in politics, Mrs. Kirkpatrick concluded that "a great expansion . . . can occur only as character-culture roles change . . . Because of the enormity of these obstacles, we are not likely to see full political equality for women in the near future."

The new Catholic wedding ritual with families participating was used for the Sept. 14 marriage ceremony of Anne Diehl and Robert Luhr.

The 11 a.m. service was held in the Glenview Naval Air Station Chapel with the best man and the maid of honor leading the processional to the altar. They were followed by the groom, who was accompanied by his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Robert O. Luhr, 419 Stuart Ln., Palatine. Then came Anne with her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Diehl Jr., 1401 Burning Bush Ln., Mount Prospect.

The groom's father read a passage from the Old Testament, and the bride's father, wearing the blue double-breasted suit he wore at his own wedding in 1948, read a passage from the New Testament. Officiating at the double ring service was the groom's cousin, Fr. Thomas Considine of DeKalb.

ANNE, WHO MET her bridegroom at the University of Illinois, Champaign, wore an ivory satin organza gown in simple classic lines and trimmed with Venise lace on the bodice and the sweep train. Her veil was held by a Juliet cap, and she carried stephanotis, yellow roses and baby's breath.

Her sister, Mary, Chicago, was her only attendant, and the groom's brother, James, was his only attendant. Mary wore a moss green knit with flowers of yellow roses and baby's breath.

A family style dinner was served at the reception at Corrado's in Arlington Heights, after which the newlyweds left for Dillon, Colo., where they spent a week honeymooning at the Luhrs' vacation home.

They are now residing in Lexington,

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Luhr

Flank steak easily broiled

Dear Dorothy: Have you ever used flank steak for London broil? Do you use a fancy marinade? If so, would you mind sharing it? — Mrs. Gertrude Corres

It's the one kind of meat that doesn't cause any hassling in this house. His ribs is after me constantly to buy meat that has as little fat as possible. Good flank steak has some marbling, but broiling draws much of the fat out. We broil without any marinade, carving at a diagonal — and are delighted with it just this way.

While I've never tried it, you might like to try Ann Frank's marinade. To one cup of dry red wine add one tablespoon of minced onion, one teaspoon of garlic powder and a pinch of oregano. Rub salt and pepper into the flank steak and place it, scored side down, in a shallow pan. Pour wine over the meat and cover. Let stand in the refrigerator several hours, turning the meat over at least once. Broil outdoors or in, for five minutes on a side. Slice thinly on a diagonal and place slices on a platter, pouring the warmed wine sauce over it.

Dear Dorothy: I'd like to know how to get a musty smell out of a room. The room isn't used much, but the doors are always left open. — Ann C. Simms Sounds as if there's moisture coming in somewhere, since mold spores must have moisture to grow. You'll have to trace the source to know how the problem can be solved. At any rate, once the heat has been turned on, you might get rid of the dampness.

Tip to brides: If you're like me and

A Paddock review

'Double Take' for those who remember

by GENIE CAMPBELL

"Double Take" was to be a return of Imogene Coca and Sid Caesar. As the Hickenloopers, a man and wife team that once highlighted "Your Show of Shows" on television, the two were to be reunited for the second time around at Arlington Park Theatre to cavort and cut up as only the two together could do, bringing back old memories with new material.

The old memories are there every time Imogene sets her mouth and clenches her fists ready to do battle and a very trim Caesar puts his face through such contortions as to make words most unnecessary and even in the way.

BUT OUTSIDE OF a few sketches that manage to ring loud and funny, the rest, meant to humorously portray the pitfalls and disappointments of matrimony after honeymoon enchantment wears off, were at best only mediocre. What with Mel Brooks as a contributing writer and Max Liebman as director (he also produced and directed "Your Show of Shows"), I did expect more.

Furthermore, what might suffice as individual interludes for a howling comedy hour cannot make it lumped together for two acts — two hours worth of theater with only narration by Mickey Deems utilized to pick up the loose ends from one skit and introduce the next.

Some of the sketches begin to ramble, which would be even more of a problem if it weren't for the spontaneous, ingrained rhythm that is so well developed between the two veteran comedians.

WHEN A SCENE begins to run dry, it is ended abruptly with a quick gulp and blackout. It leaves the theatergoer hanging . . . almost wondering if he did indeed miss something.

The setting is "anytime" though I wish an actual date had been designated for both styling and characterization was somewhat passe for my own amusement.

Imogene hogs the attention because most of the skits are written around her as a feather-brained, frivolous wife who doesn't know how to take a phone message, hires a maid when her husband's first raise comes through and throws tantrums when he fails to act the romantic hero.

WITH COCA-CAESAR in control, there are times to genuinely appreciate the accentuated almost slapstick comedy employed. But honestly, isn't there more inventiveness today than continuing to dote on the silly, forgetful wife?

Though Imogene was more often the center of attention in a hackneyed sort of way, it was Caesar who stole the show, particularly in the scene where he is unable to fall asleep. His sheet gets wound around in a ball, he slaps his feet to keep them still and launches into a solo performance when by chance he takes two "zippos" instead of "sleeps."

There is one slight drawback. Because Arlington is in-the-round, anyone sitting behind the bed missed out on some of Caesar's best expressions and flaying actions. I happened to be one of them.

LATER, AS THE nervous young man who comes to meet his fiancée's parents for the first time, he manages to clear the table of dishes, trip his beloved twice and walk out with the coat tree along with his topcoat.

For Caesar and Coca fans "Double Take" still has its nostalgic appeal. For others wondering what the old skits were like, take heart, this wasn't really it.

Another circus, different acts in town Sunday

Elk Grove Village Junior Women's Club's Circus benefit show will be this Sunday with two performances at 1:30 and 3:30 p.m. in Elk Grove High School Gymnasium.

"Uncle Ned" Locke and Cookie the Clown will be there to present the following acts: La Bella Raquel on her high rope, the Navarro Family on their unicycles, the Kellys and their balancing act and the Arwoods Acro-Pups and their canine antics.

Tickets at $1.75 are available at the door or from club members. For additional information readers may call 593-7252, 437-8382 or 439-4542.

Club members dressed as clowns will be on hand to direct traffic, sell popcorn and candy and act as ushers. Seating is first-come first-served starting one half hour prior to each performance.

Money earned from the circus will go to various Village groups and for scholarships.

The Ned Locke circus, sponsored last Sunday by Cypress and Fairway Chapters of ORT played to a capacity audience in Prospect High School. Featured were Willie Necker and his trained Dalmatian dogs, a trampoline act with audience participation, acrobatic monkeys and aerial performances.

Proceeds of the ORT productions will go toward providing schooling for underprivileged children around the world.

How To Write A Best Seller... A Result-Getting Want Ad!

You'll get the results you want with a properly written Want Ad. Lots of people get confused when it comes to writing a Want Ad. Do you? If so, here are a few simple rules to make ad writing easy. A good ad is just conversation in print. So when you're preparing to place an ad, just write it the way you'd tell your neighbors about it.

Don't leave your readers guessing! What do you want to sell? If it's an appliance, what's the brand? What's the size or capacity? Model? Year? Any accessories included? Does it need repair or is it ready to use? Now put yourself in your buyer's position. If you were reading this ad, what would you like to know? Price? By all means, put that in. In nearly every ad, price is the most important information. Anything else missing? If so, fill in those blanks, too.

Ready to write? Please, no abbreviations. Studies of advertising show that abbreviations decrease readability. You want people to read and understand your message. Make it as easy for them as you can.

When your ad is finished, read it over. It's fine to eliminate a word here and there, but don't "edit" to the point where the reader may have to guess at the meaning. You might save a few pennies and lose dollars in results.

All clear now? OK! Start collecting cash with Herald Want Ads. Dial 394-2400 today or mail in the handy coupon below!

Village board wrapup

Village revises flood-plain law

The Buffalo Grove Village Board Monday adopted a revised flood-plain ordinance to define more specifically requirements developers must adhere to in building in the flood plain.

Although Trustee Clarence Rech said the changes are not designed to restrict building, she said additions and changes in the ordinance are a way of "monitoring more carefully" development in the flood plain.

Mrs. Rech said the updated requirements for flood-plain building are based on U.S. Geological Survey maps and are more accurate than provisions in the ordinance passed in 1968.

Changes in the ordinance should reduce effects of flooding on flood-plain land in the village, she said.

$8,100 snow removal cost OKd

The board appropriated $8,100 to reimburse public works employees for snow removal work done during heavy snows last December.

To cover the cost, the board authorized a supplemental resolution appropriating the money from its share of state motor fuel funds.

Charles McCoy, public works director, said the added expense was due to extra man and equipment hours used during unexpected heavy snows.

Sewer machine payment OKd

The board approved a $17,000 payment for a truck-mounted sewer cleaning machine purchased two months ago. The purchase is being financed through the bank of Buffalo Grove.

McCoy said the machine will be used as part of a regular sewer maintenance program in the village.

Appearance control commission membership will increase from five to seven and plan commission membership will be reduced from 11 to 9.

Officials of both agencies said they sought the changes to increase the operating efficiency of the commissions.

Village gets Bicentennial panel

Buffalo Grove will have its own Bicentennial commission to coordinate the local observance of the national Bicentennial to be celebrated in 1976.

Mrs. Rech said she has received several telephone calls from local civic organizations interested in participating in Bicentennial activities.

Mrs. Rech said she would submit a list to the board of persons interested in serving with the group. Village Pres. Gary Armstrong will announce the committee appointments at an upcoming meeting.

Wheeling trustee candidates live in 2 or 3 areas

WHIP leader opposes 6-area plan

by JOE FRANZ

The president of the Wheeling Improvement Party (WHIP) said Tuesday a proposal to break the village into six aldermanic districts could create a "stumbling block" for his party if enacted before the next election.

Otis (Skip) Hedlund, president of WHIP, traditionally the underdog party, said he agrees with the suggestion "in general," but added the proviso: "If the timing is right. It could be a real problem if it takes place right away," he said.

The change was suggested Monday night by Trustee John Koeppen, who said it would provide equal representation for all areas of the village. Under the present system, trustees are elected at-large, and it is conceivable all trustees could come from one section of town.

Koeppen cited the present makeup of the board as an example, with four of six trustees, including himself, living in Precinct 55 in the Highland Glen subdivision. He said he would like to see his proposal enacted before the next election.

HEDLUND SAID if Koeppen's proposal is approved and takes effect before next spring's municipal election, it could create a problem for WHIP. "It looks like it could be a stumbling block because most of the people from WHIP live in two or three areas."

Hedlund said, however, he believes the proposal also would hurt Koeppen and three other trustees whose terms expire next spring.

"They basically have the same problem as WHIP," Hedlund said. "I would say go ahead and do it, but make it effective in 1976. That way the old system could be phased out." Donald Jackson is the lone village trustee in the Wheeling Improvement Party.

Koeppen has asked Village Atty. Paul Hamer to review the proposal and submit a report by Oct. 21. He has asked that the feasibility, procedure and timetable for making the change be outlined in the report.

If the report is favorable, he will ask that the proposal be put to the voters in a Dec. 10 referendum. The matter would be subject to village board approval.

Hedlund said if the proposal goes into effect before the next election he would like to see residency requirements for candidates dropped. That way, he said, a person could be elected from a district without living there.

UNDER KOEPPEN'S proposal two of the 12 precincts in the village would be put in each of the six districts and one trustee or alderman would be elected from each district. Koeppen said the village has expanded its boundaries to the point where at-large elections are not satisfactory.

The needs in each part of the village are different, he said, and should be reflected on the board.

As part of the proposal, Koeppen also has asked the village administration to review and determine if the village should switch from a part-time to a full-time village president. Under his proposal, the village president still would be elected at-large.

Koeppen Tuesday said reaction to his proposal by village residents has been favorable. "I haven't heard one person say a negative thing about it," he said.

Wheeling trustees study police call monitor ban

by RICH HONACK

Wheeling village officials are considering a ban on the use of short-wave radio receivers that can monitor police radio calls.

Trustee William Hein has asked the village attorney to look into the legality of an ordinance that would outlaw such receivers for the "safety of policemen." Hein said the radios are a detriment to policemen because they enable burglars, vandals and other criminals to monitor police movements.

"There is one store in town that has the system going. What if there were burglars in there and they tied the owner up. They could, if police officers were entering, be waiting to gun them down," Hein said.

Hein said that he also is looking at the possibility of putting scramblers on all police unit equipment. "They use this in Los Angeles County. Only policemen would understand the call and the public could not," Hein added.

THE TRUSTEE ALSO said the police department may go to ultra-high frequencies with several other departments for the same reasons. This would make most short-wave receivers out of range of the police calls, unless new equipment is added to the receiver.

"I have talked to Police Chief (Peter) Guttila, he agrees with me that something needs to be done," Hein said.

According to one police source, the meeting took place Monday at the police station with Lt. Thomas Conti. The source said that following the meeting, the officials declared that they had found a way to stop news leaks in the department.

The source said that police officials believe that residents monitor police calls and call newspapers to give them the information.

"Let me assure you this was not the reason for my requesting this ordinance," Hein told The Herald. "It is not my intention to stop these leaks. I have proposed this strictly for the safety of our policemen."

A SPOKESMAN FOR the Federal Communications Commission said Tuesday that he knows of no laws that prohibit monitoring of police broadcasts. "All we care about is outside interference caused by someone trying to transmit over our frequency," he said. "Receivers do not come under our jurisdiction. They are left up to the state."

The FCC spokesman said that he does know of several police departments that use scramblers or decoders.

Man charged with race track murder

Murder charges were filed Tuesday against a former employee at Arlington Park track in connection with the beating death of a California man in August.

Stanley Woods is being sought for the murder of John H. Walker, 51, Covina, Calif. Woods and a companion, John "One-Step Jack" Cochran are charged with the theft of Walker's car, police said.

Arlington Heights police said Walker died at McNeal Memorial Hospital, Berwyn, after he suffered "numerous" blows to the head during a fight at Arlington Park where he and Woods were employed as stable hands.

In statements given to local police in August Woods and Cochran, who also worked at the track, said they found the victim lying unconscious in a parking lot at the track. Believing him to be intoxicated, the pair told police, they put him in his car.

THEY ALSO reportedly told police they returned to the car later that day and upon finding Walker still unconscious, drove him to Hawthorne Park, Cicero, where Mrs. Walker worked. Cochran reportedly remained at Arlington Park.

A guard at Hawthorne directed Woods to take the victim to McNeal Hospital where he was admitted with a large lump on the back of his head, police said. Walker died without regaining consciousness.

About a week after the incident, Mrs. Walker reported that Woods and Cochran never returned her husband's car after taking him to the hospital.

When Arlington Heights detectives attempted to question Woods and Cochran further in late August, it was learned they had left the track.

WOODS HAS BEEN charged with murder and auto theft. There was no bond set for him. Cochran was charged with auto theft and $10,000 bond was set.

Walker's car was recovered in Tennessee, police said. It is believed the pair is still in Tennessee or Kentucky, police said.

Elk Grove man arrested with $75,000 in securities

An Elk Grove Village man was arrested Tuesday afternoon after he attempted to cash an estimated $75,000 worth of stolen municipal bonds at the Schaumburg State Bank, police said.

Theodore E. Price, 47, of 100 Wildwood, was charged with possession of stolen property. Another man was being held by Schaumburg police in an investigation of the incident.

The securities were believed stolen during a burglary of a Lake County home last spring in which more than $100,000 worth of items was reported stolen, police reported.

Schaumburg State Bank officials consulted police after a man identified as Price tried to sell the bonds to the bank Tuesday morning. Bank officials said they would have to check the bonds, and Price told them he would return in the afternoon, authorities said.

THE SERIAL numbers of the bonds were turned over to authorities and checked out on the LEADS teletype system. Returning information identified the bonds as stolen, police said. The burglary occurred at a home located between Mundelein and Libertyville.

Lt. Alvin Herzfeld and Det. William Ostermann staked out the bank at 320 W. Higgins Rd. and arrested Price about 4 p.m. Police picked up the other man in Elk Grove Village after questioning Price. No charges have been filed against the other man.

The bonds were from various municipalities including some in Nevada and Chicago suburbs including Arlington Heights and Lake Forest, police said.

Price was being held in the Schaumburg lockup in lieu of $10,000 bond pending an appearance at 1:30 p.m. today in the Schaumburg branch of Circuit Court.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford asked Congress Tuesday to impose a one-time 5 per cent surtax on corporations and all but low-income taxpayers to help combat an inflationary rate which he said could "destroy our country."

Addressing a joint session of Congress — which quits in three days to face the electorate — the President appealed for higher taxes as a means of helping inflation's worst victims, stimulating a sluggish economy and reducing the federal deficit, which helps drive up interest rates.

Ford's tax proposal would cost corporations $2.1 billion and individuals $2.6 billion.

For a typical $20,000-a-year family of four, the surtax would amount to $128 atop its normal federal income tax of $2,560.

A single person earning $10,000 would pay $54.78 more than his present $1,095.50 in taxes.

The surcharge would apply only to families with $15,000 or more in income or single people earning over $7,500.

People earning less would get tax relief next year from Ford's proposals. There would be new tax cuts, too, for businesses which expand or modernize. The surcharge — a tax on taxes due —

would be in effect only for 1975, starting next Jan. 1.

"I say to you with all sincerity that inflation, our present public enemy, will — unless it is whipped — destroy our country, our homes, our liberties, our property and finally our national pride — as surely as any well-armed wartime enemy," the President declared in somber tones.

Ford said he knew it was "politically unwise" to propose taxes four weeks before an election, and initial reaction from Congress seemed to bear out his judgment.

Most congressmen reacted cautiously and skeptically to the proposed surtax. Many suggested that the $15,000 base was too low, others said taxes could not be raised on middle incomes until loopholes for the rich were closed, and others expressed outright hostility to the idea. Significantly, however, in initial reaction a number of congressional leaders did not rule out the surtax entirely.

Acting contrary to Ford's proposals, the House Ways and Means Committee voted 15 to 6 earlier Tuesday to exempt from income taxes the first $500 of interest earned on savings accounts — a move that would cost the Treasury $1.8 billion.

The tax-writing committee called a hearing for 9 a.m. CDT Wednesday, asking

What the President proposes...

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Here at a glance are some of the new proposals put forward by President Ford in his anti-inflation message Tuesday:

Taxes

- A one-year, 5 per cent income tax surcharge on corporations and individuals beginning Jan. 1, 1975. It affects families with annual incomes over $15,000 and individuals over $7,500.
- An increase in the investment tax credit, a device for companies to speed up major equipment purchases, from 7 to 10 per cent for most corporations and 4 to 10 per cent for utilities.
- Allow corporations tax deductions for dividends they pay on qualified preferred stock.

Food

- Remove production restrictions on peanuts and extra-long-staple cotton.
- Request authority to allocate fertilizer in order to ensure that farmers have the amounts they need.

Energy

- Require rapid conversion of oil and natural gas-burning electric power plants to coal or nuclear energy where public health would not be endangered.
- More rigid compliance with the 55 m.p.h. speed limit and a renewed plea to consumers to voluntarily conserve energy by lowering thermostats this winter, keeping car engines in tune, using car pools and turning out unnecessary lights.

Parks, city to try again to agree on sale of property

by STEVE BROWN

Park district and city officials apparently will try again to reach an agreement over the purchase of park property on Pearson Street for use in the downtown redevelopment project.

The city council agreed to meet Tuesday with Des Plaines Park District commissioners in an effort to establish a price for the purchase of the district administrative offices and maintenance facilities at 748 Pearson St., Des Plaines.

The land is slated to be used as part of a parking lot for shoppers in conjunction with the $14 million Superblock project.

Park district officials, however, have balked at accepting the $133,000 the city has offered for the land. The district has estimated that it would cost between $30,000 and $600,000 to replace the 11,000-square-foot structure.

DURING MONDAY night's city council meeting, Des Plaines Park District Commr. Ed Keane asked the city council to renew discussions on the matter.

He also stressed the park district must replace the facilities and could not raise the additional funds without seeking a bond issue referendum.

Keane asked the council to increase their offer for the property so that additional facilities could be built.

The proposal, however, faces tough sledding because several aldermen said they saw no reason for paying for a replacement facility when the cost is so much greater than the appraised costs.

Ald. Ewald Swanson, 6th, said the city should not pay that much money for the project.

PARK OFFICIALS said they purchased the property in 1964 for $100,000.

Swanson's sentiments were not echoed by all of the aldermen.

Ald. Robert Hinde, 4th, said he hoped since the city and the park district were working for the same bosses — the taxpayers — he hoped both sides could work out an acceptable agreement.

Mayor Herbert H. Behrel agreed with Hinde during his Tuesday press conference and stated that he also hoped that an agreement can be reached. He added that he hopes political differences between himself and Park Dist. Pres. Thomas Mahon would not interfere in any agreement.

BEHREL SAID the city could possibly increase its offer for the land, but he doubted the city officials would agree to paying for a replacement facility.

The mayor noted that the city might be able to sell bonds more easily than the park district and ease the financing situation. Under such an agreement, the city would sell the bonds, but the park district would repay the debt through their regular operating funds.

High school board OKs lot purchase

The Maine Township High School Dist. 207 Board of Education has authorized the purchase of a lot at 626 Howard St. for extension of the Maine West High School athletic field.

The board Monday night authorized the expenditure of up to $60,000 for purchase of the property. The land is currently owned by Henry Koehler properties.

Mikva proposes board to curb airport noise

by STEVE BROWN

Democratic congressional candidate Abner J. Mikva has announced a program aimed at giving local communities more control over airport noise pollution.

Mikva's proposal, which he said Tuesday he would introduce if elected to Congress, involves the passage of federal legislation creating an airport noise pollution-control board in areas where 60 per cent of the persons living in an airport's noise impact area live outside the city which owns the airport.

Mikva said Chicago officials have always resisted efforts to modify airport regulations which would ease noise impact problems for surrounding communities. He added that previous Congressional efforts have also failed because they were partisan moves. He indicated he would seek bipartisan support for his proposal.

He explained the board would have the power to develop regulations concerning curfews for takeoffs and landings, jet engine use unnecessary to flight, runway allocation and the type of aircraft using certain airports.

WHILE MIKVA'S proposal is aimed at easing noise problems at suburban towns around O'Hare Airport, he said the regulations would affect airports across the country.

Using O'Hare as an example, the board would consist of the suburban representatives, and nonvoting members from Chicago, which owns the airport, the Federal Aviation Administration, the Civil Aeronautics Board and the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency.

Under the proposed legislation, any regulation challenged by airlines or the airport can be taken to the FAA, but the regulation can be overruled only if it is commercially impractical or proved to be a safety hazard. The board would also have the right to file suit, if it disagrees with the FAA's ruling.

Membership on the board would be limited to communities of 25,000 or more population with at least 50 per cent of its residents living within six miles of the airport's control tower, according to the Mikva proposal.

A spokesman for Mikva said the proposal would not cover smaller airports such as Palwaukee in Wheeling or the Glenview Naval Air Station in Glenview.

However, the spokesman added that such matters as the proposal's effect on smaller airports and membership on the noise pollution control board could be clarified during public hearing which would be held prior to the time the legislation is introduced.

Communities such as Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Park Ridge, Mount Prospect, Elmwood Park and Elmhurst would have representatives on the board, according to the proposal.

'It's unfair,' says man in the street

A Herald staff report

Middle-income families already are absorbing the brunt of taxes and inflation, say area residents reacting to President Ford's proposed income-tax surcharge.

Persons polled by The Herald Tuesday afternoon lent little support to the President's call for increased taxes on middle- and upper-income families and individuals. Saying they already were hurting from taxes and inflation, they called upon the federal government to do some belt-tightening of its own.

"I think it stinks," said Larry Brousseau. "They ought to be getting the money out of the guys that are really making it."

MANY OF THE persons polled said taxes already were too high and inflation was raising havoc with family budgets.

Tax hike 'not a solution'

by BOB LAHEY

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, predicted Tuesday night that Congress will reject President Ford's recommendation for a 5 per cent income surtax on families with incomes over $15,000.

Crane, vocally upset over parts of Ford's economic measures for both political and economic reasons, made the prediction in an appearance before the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce's annual dinner meeting hours after the President's televised message.

"An increase in taxes at this point is not a solution to any of our problems," Crane told the chamber members at the Lancer's Restaurant in Schaumburg.

In an address which can only be described as deeply pessimistic, Crane said the United States is on the brink of a depression "of the magnitude of 1929," and warned of grave danger of armed intervention by Western European nations against the Arab oil-producing nations that might well lead to "World War III."

HE SAID THE net effect of Ford's economic message would be inflationary, producing less in revenue through the surcharge on income taxes than would be lost through tax credits for business investment — which he welcomed — and the cost of possible public works projects outlined by the President.

Politically, Crane said, the President's surtax proposal struck yet another blow at Republican Congressional candidates. He said the surtax has direct impact on districts where Republicans normally

Transit chairman to serve on panel

Rex Wilson, chairman of the Des Plaines Mass Transit District, also has been named to serve on special interim transportation committee by Mayor Herbert H. Behrel.

Wilson will join Ald. George Olen, 2nd, John Seitz, 7th, and Richard Ward, 8th, to prepare a recommendation within the next 30 days on the future of bus operations in the city.

The committee is to study transit proposals submitted by the North Suburban Mass Transit District (NORTAN) and the Chicago Transit Authority for bus service in the city.

Joseph DiJohn, NORTAN's executive director, told the city council Monday, the district will take over the operation of United Motor Coach Co. some time next month.

Once the takeover occurs, DiJohn said he does not believe the district will continue many of the 11 bus routes in the city unless Des Plaines officials agree to provide funds to cover operating deficits.

NORTAN officials have estimated it would cost the city about $65,000 per year to continue the routes.

The CTA proposal would establish several new routes in the city, plus links with O'Hare Airport and the Jefferson Park rapid transit station on the Kennedy Expressway.

Payment delayed

Action was delayed by the city council on a request to approve about $42,178 in extra charges for the $1.6 million city hall building.

Ald. Joseph Szabo, 1st, chairman of the council's building, grounds and parking lots committee, presented the request Monday.

Several aldermen, however, questioned the expenditures and asked the matter be deferred for two weeks to give them more time to study the expenses.

Ald. Carmen Sarlo, 6th, made the deferral request and stated that he had not even seen a list of the extra charges for the new building.

In explaining the added costs, Szabo indicated many items involved changes in the electrical and heating systems. He also said Building Comm. William Baldaocini had negotiated the cost extras with the contractors and had managed to reduce the requested amount considerably.

Business fees approved

The council gave tentative approval to a revised business-license-fee schedule, which according to Ald. Charles Bolek, 3rd, will pay for the costs of the various inspections made by the city.

Bolek presented a list of expenses incurred by the building, finance, fire, health, police and planning and zoning departments indicating that the city spends about $194,000 per year in inspections.

He indicated that in 1973 the city collected about $76,000 in license fees, excluding special licenses such as for liquor licenses and vending machines.

He indicated the new system, which will require almost every business in the city to obtain a license, should narrow the gap between the costs and the fees.

Treasurer changes denied

Two different proposals relating to changes to the position of city treasurer were voted down by the council Monday after a lengthy debate.

The city code and judiciary committee had recommended that the city treasurer's position be made a part-time job with a salary of $3,000 per year after the 1977 city election.

Several aldermen objected to that proposal and noted that City Treasurer Thomas Mahon has recommended that the treasurer's post be abolished and the duties be turned over to the comptroller's office.

The council, however, voted down the proposal and another recommendation made by Ald. Spencer Chase, 3rd, to abolish the post.

The recommendations came as part of a continuing committee study on possible changes in the form of government. The council has already defeated a move to create the position of city manager and make the mayor's office a part-time position.

They also have voted to maintain the present number of aldermen and committee system which is now in effect.

The council is expected to receive a recommendation at its next meeting relating to possible changes in the city clerk's office.

Ald. Alan Abrams, 8th, chairman of the city code and judiciary committee, attempted to introduce a report on the clerk's office Monday, but the effort was blocked by Ald. Charles Bolek, 3rd, who indicated that consideration of the recommendation would take too much time and that the council had a crowded agenda.

Debate on Bolek's motion to prevent Abrams from giving his recommendation lasted over 10 minutes. Following a 9-7 vote favoring delay of the report, Abrams questioned whether or not the council could take such an action.

Mayor Herbert H. Behrel indicated that the council did have the right to delay hearing of a committee report.

Schools to waive fund-raising ban

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education has temporarily waived a policy which prohibits school groups from using children in fund-raising activities.

The policy, seldom enforced by the board, will be reevaluated next week by the policy committee.

Several parent groups in the district have had children help raise funds by going door to door and selling candy. Other parent groups were planning on asking children to help in upcoming fundraisers.

The board became involved when parents at Frost School in Mount Prospect requested permission to sponsor a candy sale. Judd Thompson, principal at Frost, came across the policy while checking the district manual.

The policy states, "No fund raising where money is solicited through the children enrolled in the schools of the district shall be permitted unless it has been recommended by the superintendent and has approval by the board of education."

Some board members were hesitant to approve door-to-door solicitation by children, but did not want parent groups which have ordered candy to be added with the loss.

Board Pres. Gerald Smiley said the policy committee will probably more clearly define what types of fund-raising projects are acceptable.

Many types of fund-raising projects which don't involve children selling, such as taffy apple sales or hamburger days in school, are common in the district.

Pluto listens to kids read it's no Mickey Mouse idea

Pluto the dog spends three months of the year languishing in a dark closet.

But in September, the bedraggled stuffed dog takes over as official listener for beginning readers in Charlotte Laman's first grade class at the Forest School in Des Plaines.

Mrs. Laman drafted Pluto last year to serve as a companion-mascot for her students.

"The kids always want someone to read to when they first learn to read," she said. "Since there's always a shortage of adults, I thought Pluto would serve the purpose."

Because of Pluto's condition, the youngsters are not allowed to handle him roughly.

"The kids are really cute — they're always telling each other not to touch. They know they can only sit and read to him," she said.

Does it bother the students that they're reading to a stuffed animal. Said Mrs. Laman: "It never enters their heads."

"The kids last year thought he was marvelous," she said. "It's no fun to read out loud if no one listens — and the dog always listens."

Behrel urges city consider CTA plan

Mayor Herbert H. Behrel said Tuesday he believes the city should seriously consider the bus operation proposal for Des Plaines submitted by the Chicago Transit Authority even though it may be more costly than other alternatives.

During his regular weekly press conference, Behrel said the newly formed transportation study committee should give serious consideration to the CTA proposal because it would provide additional service to Des Plaines residents and businesses.

Behrel explained that no firm cost estimates have been prepared as to what the service would cost the city.

The CTA proposal, which was presented in September but kept under wraps until Monday, would provide transportation within four blocks of 87 per cent of the city's residents and 93 per cent of the jobs.

THE TOTAL COST for the service would be more than $500,000 per year, but the real cost to the city is not known, Behrel said. The Herald reported incorrectly on Tuesday the service would cost $175,000 per year.

He explained the CTA would charge a 25 cent fare for intracity routes. In addition to four local routes, the CTA has also proposed a route to O'Hare Airport and to Chicago via the Northwest Highway.

The plan also provides for continued service to local schools.

Behrel said he believes the CTA will become the heart of the regional bus operations once the Regional Transportation Authority begins granting funds.

Californians arrested on bad check count

Two California residents were arrested by Des Plaines police Monday on a charge that they passed bogus checks in the city.

Police said Kenneth E. Culver, 32, and Susan Schmidt, 34, both of Pacific Grove, Calif., were charged with forgery and theft by deception after cashing checks at stores in Des Plaines.

The pair allegedly attracted attention while trying to cash a check at a local drug store and the owners of the store notified police.

The checks were apparently stolen last week from a woman's purse in Chicago, police said.

The bad checks also were passed at three other Des Plaines stores.

Culver is being held on $10,000 bond. Miss Schmidt was released Tuesday after posting $10,000 bond.

Both are scheduled to appear Thursday in the Des Plaines branch of Circuit Court.

Athletic unit meets

The Maine West Athletic Boosters will meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the school faculty lounge. Parents and interested friends of athletes are invited to attend.

Sabbath Eve services

Maine Township Jewish Congregation, 8800 Ballard Rd., Des Plaines, will conduct Family Sabbath Eve services Friday, at 8:30 p.m. Rabbi Jay Karzen will officiate, and Cantor Harry Solowinichik and the choir will chant the liturgy.

Jeff Marland, son of Dr. and Mrs. Jack Marland, 9027 Terrace Pl., Des Plaines, will observe his Bar Mitzvah at Sabbath morning services, Saturday at 9:30 a.m.

Nell Welch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Welch, 9144 Barbary Ln., Des Plaines, will observe his Bar Mitzvah at the Mincha-Maariv service, 5:45 p.m.

9% pay increase for grade-school teachers approved

The Des Plaines Dist. 62 Board of Education has ratified a salary agreement giving teachers an average 9 per cent pay raise.

The contract agreement — tentatively approved by board and teacher negotiators last month — was passed unanimously by the board at its Monday night meeting. Teachers formally ratified the settlement at a meeting Friday afternoon.

Board Pres. James Kremers said the agreement "represents a sizable effort" on the part of negotiators for both the teachers and the board.

DENNIS ANDERSON, president of the Des Plaines Education Assn., said he was happy the board approved the settlement unanimously, noting that "we've been a long time in working it out."

"I'm glad we came to an agreement with such amicable feelings. We're pleased with the ratification and we think it's a fine contract," he said.

The new contract provides pay raises ranging from 8.1 per cent for beginning teachers to 9.7 per cent for teachers at the top of the pay scale. Starting salary for teachers with bachelor degrees and no experience is $9,350. Top salary, for a teacher with 16 years experience and 60 hours of graduate work, is $19,610.

IN OTHER ACTION, the board approved administrator salaries for the 1974-75 school year. Salaries ranging from $15,000 to $19,999 were approved for Susan Mann, Spanish coordinator; Estelle Bradley, reading and learning disabilities coordinator; and Francis Pruy, library coordinator.

Salaries of more than $20,000 were approved for Supt. Eric Sahlberg; Robert Cowell, assistant superintendent; Harry Reinke, assistant superintendent; Robert Eschel, director of special services; Richard Ruffolo, director of instructional resources; Harold Brieschke, business manager; Glenn Helms, Algonquin Junior High principal; Robert Peterson, Algonquin assistant principal, and Robert Klein, Iroquois Junior High principal.

Also Robert Paulsen, Cumberland School principal; Mason Aldrich, West School principal; A. D. Mesenbrink, Central School principal; James Roy, Chipewa Junior High principal; Cecil Trainor, South School principal; John Stine, Maple School principal; Eugene Wasco, North School principal; Betsy Kuzich, Terrace School principal; William Walter, Plainfield school principal; Ronald Wuczynski, Orchard Place school principal; Vincent Reidy, superintendent of buildings and grounds, and Francis Simal, psychologist.

Man seized attempting to cash stolen securities

An Elk Grove Village man was arrested Tuesday afternoon after he attempted to cash an estimated $75,000 worth of stolen municipal bonds at the Schaumburg State Bank, police said.

Theodore E. Price, 47, of 100 Wildwood, was charged with possession of stolen property. Another man was being held by Schaumburg police in an investigation of the incident.

The securities were believed stolen during a burglary of a Lake County home last spring in which more than $100,000 worth of items was reported stolen, police reported.

Schaumburg State Bank officials consulted police after a man identified as Price tried to sell the bonds to the bank Tuesday morning. Bank officials said they would have to check the bonds, and Price told them he would return in the afternoon, authorities said.

THE SERIAL numbers of the bonds were turned over to authorities and checked out on the LEADS teletype system. Returning information identified the bonds as stolen, police said. The burglary occurred at a home located between Mundelein and Libertyville.

Lt. Alvin Herzfeld and Det. William Ostermann staked out the bank at 320 W. Higgins Rd. and arrested Price about 4 p.m. Police picked up the other man in Elk Grove Village after questioning

Price. No charges have been filed against the other man.

The bonds were from various municipalities including some in Nevada and Chicago suburbs including Arlington Heights and Lake Forest, police said.

Price was being held in the Schaumburg lockup in lieu of $10,000 bond pending an appearance at 1:30 p.m. today in the Schaumburg branch of Circuit Court.

PTA fund to honor girl killed by car

The Parkview School PTA has started a memorial fund for Darle B. Rosenstrater, a Parkview student who died this summer.

The fifth-grade student died in August after being hit by a car while crossing Wolf Road near Euclid Avenue. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Rosenstrater, 902 Sumac Ln.

Mrs. Myrna Kaplan, chairman of the fund committee, said money collected will be used to purchase items for the school library and media center. She said a plaque with Darle's name will be attached to the items.

The PTA will be selling all occasion cards for a minimum $1 donation. The cards are suitable for any occasion and state that a donation was made in the name of the recipient.

For further information, residents are asked to contact Mrs. Kaplan at 298-4685.

Groups of the Census, 1970

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford asked Congress Tuesday to impose a one-time 5 per cent surtax on corporations and all but low-income taxpayers to help combat an inflationary rate which he said could "destroy our country."

Addressing a joint session of Congress — which quills in three days to face the electorate — the President appealed for higher taxes as a means of helping inflation's worst victims, stimulating a sluggish economy and reducing the federal deficit, which helps drive up interest rates.

Ford's tax proposal would cost corporations $2.1 billion and individuals $2.6 billion.

For a typical $20,000-a-year family of four, the surtax would amount to $128 atop its normal federal income tax of $2,560.

A single person earning $10,000 would pay $54.78 more than his present $1,095.50 in taxes.

The surcharge would apply only to families with $15,000 or more in income or single people earning over $7,500.

People earning less would get tax relief next year from Ford's proposals. There would be new tax cuts, too, for businesses which expand or modernize.

The surcharge — a tax on taxes due —

would be in effect only for 1975, starting next Jan. 1.

"I say to you with all sincerity that inflation, our present public enemy, will — unless it is whipped — destroy our country, our homes, our liberties, our property and finally our national pride — as surely as any well-armed wartime enemy," the President declared in somber tones.

Ford said he knew it was "politically unwise" to propose taxes four weeks before an election, and initial reaction from Congress seemed to bear out his judgment.

Most congressmen reacted cautiously and skeptically to the proposed surtax. Many suggested that the $15,000 base was too low, others said taxes could not be raised on middle incomes until loopholes for the rich were closed, and others expressed outright hostility to the idea. Significantly, however, in initial reaction a number of congressional leaders did not rule out the surtax entirely.

Acting contrary to Ford's proposals, the House Ways and Means Committee voted 15 to 6 earlier Tuesday to exempt from income taxes the first $500 of interest earned on savings accounts — a move that would cost the Treasury $1.8 billion.

The tax-writing committee called a hearing for 9 a.m. CDT Wednesday, asking

What the President proposes...

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Here at a glance are some of the new proposals put forward by President Ford in his anti-inflation message Tuesday:

Taxes

- A one-year, 5 per cent income tax surcharge on corporations and individuals beginning Jan. 1, 1975. It affects families with annual incomes over $15,000 and individuals over $7,500.
- An increase in the investment tax credit, a device for companies to speed up major equipment purchases, from 7 to 10 per cent for most corporations and 4 to 10 per cent for utilities.
- Allow corporations tax deductions for dividends they pay on qualified preferred stock.

Food

- Remove production restrictions on peanuts and extra-long-staple cotton.
- Request authority to allocate fertilizer in order to ensure that farmers have the amounts they need.

Energy

- Require rapid conversion of oil and natural gas-burning electric power plants to coal or nuclear energy where public health would not be endangered.
- More rigid compliance with the 55 m.p.h. speed limit and a renewed plea to consumers to voluntarily conserve energy by lowering thermostats this winter, keeping car engines in tune, using car pools and turning off unnecessary lights.

Near Clearmont Drive

80-foot pedestrian bridge to be built over Salt Creek

An 80-foot pedestrian bridge should span Salt Creek at Clearmont Drive in Elk Grove Village by early spring.

Village officials Tuesday night approved a contract with M/E Alstot, March and Guillou Inc., Des Plaines, for design and engineering services in construction of the bridge.

Work will start immediately in three stages at a total cost of $14,000. Village officials have not decided if the bridge, to be used for pedestrian and bicycle traffic, will be made of steel, or a more rustic type and material.

The department of public works and engineering recommended the firm because it has done other work for the village. In addition to the contract cost, a $500 soil test fee has been included.

At Tuesday night's village board meeting, Robert Wing, 120 Essex St., told officials he owns property on the west side of the creek near the bridge area. He asked the board if it has plans to control trespassing on nearby properties by persons using the bridge.

Village Engineer Don Ciaglia said

Village a cinch for home rule

Elk Grove Village apparently will become a home-rule community as a result of a special census now being conducted.

Village Mgr. Charles Willis reported Tuesday night that a U. S. Census Bureau

there is a flood-plain right-of-way on the east bank of the creek but not on the west bank. There is, however, sufficient village-owned right-of-way from Clearmont Drive across the creek for a pedestrian walk-way.

Ciaglia said he does not foresee any problem with bridge users walking on nearby private property.

In other action, board members hired Carl Gardner and Assoc., a Chicago planning firm, as consultants to the plan commission. Trustee Nanci Vanderweel, chairman of the personnel committee, said committee members at a joint meeting with Plan Commission Chairman reau supervisor told him enumerators have already counted 24,000 residents, only 100 less than the 25,000 needed to obtain home-rule status. The current official village population of 22,600 was established in a special census in 1972.

Richard McGrenera interviewed three firms before selecting Gardner and Assoc.

The consultants will work with the commission on a hourly-rate basis for advice on specific projects. Trustee Edward Kenna expressed concern with about who will determine how much work the firm will do for the commission.

Mrs. Vanderweel said at this point, the matter has not been decided.

"The planner will be working for the village to assist the plan commission and we will decide on who calls who to serve when later," she said.

Free clinic offered for disabled children

The Elk Grove Village Elks Lodge is sponsoring a free evaluation clinic Wednesday, Oct. 16 for physically handicapped children at the Niehoff Pavilion of Alexian Brothers Medical Center, 955 Bisner Rd., Elk Grove Village.

The free clinic is sponsored in cooperation with the Illinois Elks Assn. Physically-Handicapped Children's Commission, which sponsor clinics in 28 lodge areas.

The clinic will operate from 9 a.m. to noon. The purpose is to identify any remedial problems in order to refer the handicapped child to physicians for appropriate services.

Any family who has a physically handicapped child from newborn to age 21 is encouraged to bring the child in for evaluation. Family physicians and school nurses are invited to send patients they believe may benefit from evaluation.

'It's unfair,' says man in the street

A Herald staff report

Middle-income families already are absorbing the brunt of taxes and inflation, say area residents reacting to President Ford's proposed income-tax surcharge.

Persons polled by The Herald Tuesday afternoon lent little support to the President's call for increased taxes on middle- and upper-income families and individuals. Saying they already were hurting from taxes and inflation, they called upon the federal government to do some belt-tightening of its own.

"I think it stinks," said Larry Brousseau. "They ought to be getting the money out of the guys that are really making it."

by BOB LAHEY

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, predicted Tuesday night that Congress will reject President Ford's recommendation for a 5 per cent income surtax on families with incomes over $15,000.

Crane, vocally upset over parts of Ford's economic measures for both political and economic reasons, made the prediction in an appearance before the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce's annual dinner meeting hours after the President's televised message.

"An increase in taxes at this point is not a solution to any of our problems," Crane told the chamber members at the Lancer's Restaurant in Schaumburg.

3 area residents linked to series of burglaries

Two residents of an unincorporated area near Des Plaines have been charged with one burglary in Mount Prospect and linked with some 30 other burglaries in the Northwest suburban area, Mount Prospect police said Tuesday.

Charged with the burglary Monday at the home of Charlene Miedler, 717 S. Williams St., Mount Prospect, were Charles N. Hardt, 20, and Robert L. Clark, 21, both of 9250 Noel Rd.

Mount Prospect police Tuesday night picked up a third suspect, and said he will be charged with possession of stolen goods. His name was withheld.

The two suspects have been linked to some 14 burglaries in Mount Prospect and two or three each in Schaumburg, Elgin, Des Plaines, Arlington Heights and Elk Grove Village. Other burglaries they have been linked to occurred in Palatine, Streamwood and unincorporated areas, police said.

The arrests of Hardt and Clark were made Monday night. Police said the pair were seen burglarizing the Mount Prospect home and were chased to Des Plaines where they abandoned their car. Through identification in the car, police traced the pair to their apartment.

Bond was set at $2,000 each for the Mount Prospect burglary. Other complaints have been drawn up against the pair and further charges are expected to be made today.

Schools to waive fund-raising ban

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education has temporarily waived a policy which prohibits school groups from using children in fund-raising activities.

The policy, seldom enforced by the board, will be reevaluated next week by the policy committee.

Several parents in the district have had children help raise funds by going door to door and selling candy. Other parent groups were planning on asking children to help in upcoming fundraisers.

Many types of fund-raising projects which don't involve children selling, such as taffy apple sales or hamburger days in school, are common in the district.

Background noise system nixed

The board voted Monday not to approve a bid for more than $7,000 which would have installed a background noise system in part of Friendship Junior High School in Des Plaines, which is having problems with noise in classroom areas.

The board has been investigating ways to solve noise problems at the school, following a request to do so from Friendship Principal Robert Brower.

The board received conflicting opinions on the value of the background noise system, from the building architect and a company hired by the board to do a sound study at the school, Smiley said.

Smiley added that there are no plans for a solution to the noise problem at the present time.

Educational goals approved

Eight educational goals were approved by the board to be included in the policy manual.

The goals include:

- Complete the review of the science program and recommend desired program changes and development.
- Review the physical education program and recommend changes.

- In grades six to eight, examine student alternatives in the selection of programs in art, music, foreign language, etc.

An additional goal called for the establishment of a group of teachers, administration, citizens and board members to discuss and recommend district goals.

Ervii car bid approved

The board voted 5 to 2 in favor of accepting a bid for a new car for Dist. Supt. James Ervii.

Approved was a bid from Lattot Chevrolet in Arlington Heights for a 1975 Chevrolet Vega for a price of $2,140.64 which included $875 trade-in price for the superintendent's present car, a four-year-old Chevrolet.

Board members Judy Zanca and Avis Wold voted against the purchase but did not explain their votes.

NEC pupils get free books

Parents in Dist. 59 whose children attend school outside the district will not be reimbursed for textbook fees.

The board voted unanimously in favor of paying textbook fees for an estimated 50 to 60 district children who attend special classes through the Northwest Educational Cooperative.

Dist. 59 attorney Frank Hines reversed his earlier opinion that the board could not legally pay the book fees, paving the way for the board action, which will cost the district between $300 and $600 per year.

District getting funds for school?

High School Dist. 211 soon may receive $4.8 million in state funds for construction of a sixth high school. If the money is approved the district will not spend $5 million of the $22 million up for approval in a bond referendum next week.

Dist. 211 Board Pres. Robert Creek said Monday the funds seem "very close" to approval by the Illinois Capital Development Board. The Dist. 211 board moved up the date of its next meeting from Oct. 24 to Oct. 21 hoping to have approval of the state funds so it can authorize use of the money.

Voters will be asked to approve $22 million in bonds Oct. 19 for construction of the sixth school and additions to four other high schools.

Creek said it is now too late to change the ballots for the referendum to reduce the figure. Because the ballot lists specific uses of the money, the district cannot spend the money on another project without another referendum.

If the state money comes through and the referendum is approved, Creek said the district would spend only $17 million of the $22 million in bonds. The remaining $5 million in bonds will not be sold.

Dist. 211 has been seeking approval of the state money for the sixth high school for months. Frustrated by the delay, the board decided to go ahead with a referendum to finance the project without state money.

The sixth high school is needed to accommodate a projected 9 per cent increase in student enrollment in the district per year.

Teacher hired for purchasing

A mathematics teacher at Fremd High School was hired as the director of purchasing for Dist. 211 by the board of education Monday night.

Paul Fuller, has been employed as a math teacher for Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15.

He will assume the position as Dist. 211 director of purchasing at a salary of $15,500 as soon as his position as math teacher is filled. The former purchasing director, Thomas Favale, left two weeks ago to become business manager at a parochial high school in Joliet.

COORDINATING ALL PUBLIC health services in Elk Grove Village is Nancy Yiannias. As health services coordinator Mrs. Yiannias will work with the local board of health and sanitation. She holds a master's degree in public health and hopes to expand present services.

Must determine needs

Village's new health director surveys situation

by JERRY THOMAS

A 1972 Comprehensive Health Survey in Elk Grove Village showed a need for a health service coordinator — and Nancy Yiannias has filled that need.

Mrs. Yiannias took the job this week and one of her first goals "may be to conduct a new survey." The last 294-page survey is two years old and she feels it needs updating. She added, however, the old survey is a good description of her job duties.

A simple description, however, is that she coordinates public health services within Elk Grove Village. "Since I am very new to the community, obviously my first task will be to determine what services already exist and what kinds of services are needed and then fill in the gaps," she said.

MRS. YIANNIAS will work closely with the board of health and village sanitation Barbara Watson. "The backbone of a public health department is the environmental health services such as sanitation and food dispensing operations in inspections and nursing services," Mrs. Yiannias said.

"Elk Grove Village has a good working board of health and environmental services, but we lack nursing services. We have the availability of Cook County nursing services but it is limited," she said.

Mrs. Yiannias has taken over the Community Blood Assurance Program set up by Trustee Nancy Vanderweel. New community health services she would like to see are mass screening for hypertension and diabetes and perhaps immunization clinics.

"It is premature to talk now about what Elk Grove Village needs because frankly it will take weeks of review of village ordinances and some time for me to find out just what is available in the community," Mrs. Yiannias said.

SHE EXPECTS to have a set of priorities and goals established after several meetings with the board of health.

"Right now I'm getting to know both my job and the community," she said, "and trying to find out what's in the many paper boxes in my new apartment."

Mrs. Yiannias, her husband Andrew and their son, Chris, 4, moved from Berwyn and settled in their Elk Grove Village home this week.

Mrs. Yiannias holds a master's degree in public health from the University of Michigan and majored in biology and social science. She taught for several years and has worked with the Stickney Public Health District as Health Education Director and with the Chicago Heart Association in the program department.

Attempts to cash them in Schaumburg

Man arrested with stolen securities

An Elk Grove Village man was arrested Tuesday afternoon after he attempted to cash an estimated $75,000 worth of stolen municipal bonds at the Schaumburg State Bank, police said.

Theodore E. Price, 47, of 100 Wildwood, was charged with possession of stolen property. Another man was being held by Schaumburg police in an investigation of the incident.

The securities were believed stolen during a burglary of a Lake County home last spring in which more than $100,000 worth of items was reported stolen, police reported.

Schaumburg State Bank officials consulted police after a man identified as Price tried to sell the bonds to the bank Tuesday morning. Bank officials said they would have to check the bonds, and Price told them he would return in the afternoon, authorities said.

THE SERIAL numbers of the bonds were turned over to authorities and checked out on the LEADS teletype system. Returning information identified the bonds as stolen, police said. The burglary occurred at a home located between Mundelein and Libertyville.

Lt. Alvin Herzfeld and Det. William Ostermann staked out the bank at 320 W. Higgins Rd. and arrested Price about 4 p.m. Police picked up the other man in Elk Grove Village after questioning Price. No charges have been filed against the other man.

The bonds were from various municipalities including some in Nevada and Chicago suburbs including Arlington Heights and Lake Forest, police said.

Price was being held in the Schaumburg lockup in lieu of $10,000 bond pending an appearance at 1:30 p.m. today in the Schaumburg branch of Circuit Court.

Schools delay decision on textbook fees

A resolution for a referendum to eliminate textbook fees has been postponed in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 after a board member objected to a lack of provisions for disposing of books used by children with contagious diseases.

School board member Edward Bedard asked the board to table the resolution, citing the Illinois School Code which states, "No books shall be distributed which have been in the possession of any person having a contagious or infectious disease."

Bedard said he did not want to vote on the resolution without knowing how the books would be disposed of.

When the administration said it had no plan for disposing of the books the board voted 4 to 3 to table the resolution for a free textbook referendum until its Oct. 17 meeting. In the meantime the administration will consult the district's attorney to write a plan.

The referendum is scheduled for Nov. 2. If it is approved by voters, textbooks will be provided free to students. Books now cost $3.50 for kindergarten students and $7.50 for students in first through eighth grades. No fees have been charged this year pending the outcome of the referendum.

Rotary official at local club

Rotary Club members in Elk Grove Village heard District Gov. Frank Potter, a rotarian for 16 years and special speaker at their Thursday meeting, describe the ideals of Rotary as a key to increased membership.

Potter told members to "renew the spirit of Rotary, serve it with pride and others will want to share the experience." The general object of Rotary is to develop fellowship and understanding between businessmen and work for community betterment by encouraging high standards in business and professional services. Also, the encouragement of international good will and peace.

Potter reminded the members that service is Rotary's only goal. He urged the members to contact rotarians in other countries to broaden their horizons and world understanding.

Next Thursday's Rotary program will be devoted to membership.

Visiting Rotarians at the noon program in Elk Grove Village were Donald S. Straza and Jim Coburn of Des Plaines; Jim McCabe and Will McMillon of Newkirk, Okla., and Ed Oehrling of Arlington Heights.

Elk Grove Rotary Club member Jim Knecht attended a Rotary Club meeting in Houston, Tex., last week.

You better not pout if you're not counted

The U. S. Bureau of Census is completing its special census of Elk Grove Village. To ensure that each resident is counted, officials have asked those who were not contacted by a census taker to fill out the attached form.

Diane Barone, supervisor of the census, expects to have an unofficial count by the end of the week.

Village officials expect the higher population figure will place the village in a home-rule status giving it greater autonomy and about $54,000 a year in extra funds.

Elk Grove's population in 1972 was 22,880. The home-rule status provided in the 1970 Illinois Constitution is afforded to municipalities larger than 25,000.

President Ford and members of Congress, 1974.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford asked Congress Tuesday to impose a one-time 5 per cent surtax on corporations and all but low-income taxpayers to help combat an inflationary rate which he said could "destroy our country."

Addressing a joint session of Congress — which quits in three days to face the electorate — the President appealed for higher taxes as a means of helping inflation's worst victims, stimulating a sluggish economy and reducing the federal deficit, which helps drive up interest rates.

Ford's tax proposal would cost corporations $2.1 billion and individuals $2.6 billion.

For a typical $20,000-a-year family of four, the surtax would amount to $120 atop its normal federal income tax of $2,550.

A single person earning $10,000 would pay $54.78 more than his present $1,095.50 in taxes.

The surcharge would apply only to families with $15,000 or more in income or single people earning over $7,500.

People earning less would get tax relief next year from Ford's proposals. There would be new tax cuts, too, for businesses which expand or modernize.

The surcharge — a tax on taxes due —

would be in effect only for 1975, starting next Jan. 1.

"I say to you with all sincerity that inflation, our present public enemy, will — unless it is whipped — destroy our country, our homes, our liberties, our property and finally our national pride — as surely as any well-armed wartime enemy," the President declared in somber tones.

Ford said he knew it was "politically unwise" to propose taxes four weeks before an election, and initial reaction from Congress seemed to bear out his judgment.

Most congressmen reacted cautiously and skeptically to the proposed surtax. Many suggested that the $15,000 base was too low, others said taxes could not be raised on middle incomes until loopholes for the rich were closed, and others expressed outright hostility to the idea. Significantly, however, in initial reaction a number of congressional leaders did not rule out the surtax entirely.

Acting contrary to Ford's proposals, the House Ways and Means Committee voted 15 to 6 earlier Tuesday to exempt from income taxes the first $500 of interest earned on savings accounts — a move that would cost the Treasury $1.8 billion.

The tax-writing committee called a hearing for 9 a.m. CDT Wednesday, ask-

What the President proposes...

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Here at a glance are some of the new proposals put forward by President Ford in his anti-inflation message Tuesday:

Taxes

- A one-year, 5 per cent income tax surcharge on corporations and individuals beginning Jan. 1, 1975. It affects families with annual incomes over $15,000 and individuals over $7,500.

- An increase in the investment tax credit, a device for companies to speed up major equipment purchases, from 7 to 10 per cent for most corporations and 4 to 10 per cent for utilities.

- Allow corporations tax deductions for dividends they pay on qualified preferred stock.

Food

- Remove production restrictions on peanuts and extra-long-staple cotton.

- Request authority to allocate fertilizer in order to ensure that farmers have the amounts they need.

Energy

- Require rapid conversion of oil and natural gas-burning electric power plants to coal or nuclear energy where public health would not be endangered.

- More rigid compliance with the 55 m.p.h. speed limit and a renewed plea to consumers to voluntarily conserve energy by lowering thermostats this winter, keeping car engines in tune, using car pools and turning out unnecessary lights.

Hoffman Estates hospital gets final OK from state

by TONI GINETTI

Final approval has been given by the Illinois Public Health Department for construction of a hospital in Hoffman Estates, hospital planners announced Tuesday night.

The approval, given in a letter dated Sept. 30, means the hospital will not require review by the new Health Facilities Planning Board created under new health legislation passed by the state General Assembly this summer.

Review by the new 13-member board, which has yet to be appointed by Gov. Daniel Walker, could have delayed approval for the Hoffman Estates hospital another nine to 12 months.

The state approval was authorized only one day before the Oct. 1 deadline when the new planning board's authority was to have taken effect. Arthur Salk, architect with Shayman and Salk of Chicago, designers of the 312-bed hospital, said the letter confirms state authorization to build the facility.

"WE HAVE COMPLIED," Salk told the hospital committee Tuesday night. "We have received our approval. Our interpretation of the law is that we are covered by the grandfather clause."

The hospital, to be built on 22 acre near Barrington and Higgins roads, will be built by American Mediacorp Corp., a Pennsylvania-based hospital builder with 40 facilities in the United States. The medical facility will be built through private funding.

A timetable for construction has not been prepared, but Terry Scheusler of American Mediacorp Tuesday night said it is hoped the hospital will be open by late 1976. Bidding for work on the facility must now take place and it is expected to take several months before contracts are awarded, Salk and Scheusler said.

The Pepper Construction Co. has been designated as the general contractor.

Study surrounding the need and feasibility of a hospital to serve the Hoffman Estates-Hanover Park area began in 1969. Richard Regan, chairman of the citizen's hospital study committee said Tuesday night the need for the hospital is still acute. "I know what it takes to take a child from here to any of the area hospitals," he said.

Scheusler added officials had sought to ensure approval of the facility before the Oct. 1 deadline to avoid possible lengthy review delays. "I think it was to the benefit of everyone involved that we get these plans done as soon as we could because this hospital is needed," he said.

Some 60 physicians have made a commitment to join the hospital staff. Dr. Walter Miller, coordinating efforts to bring doctors to the hospital, told the committee Tuesday. Dr. Miller, who is on the staff of Northwest Community Hospital, said overcrowding at local suburban hospitals is chronic and reiterated the need for the new facility.

While plans for the Hoffman Estates hospital have been approved, there is still question surrounding the planned 160-bed branch facility of Rush-Presbyterian St. Luke's Hospital at Schaumburg and Barrington Roads. The site was selected instead of a smaller parcel near Schaumburg Road and Illinois Boulevard, but the switch may now mean approval from the planning board will be necessary before the hospital can be built.

The beds were from various municipalities including some in Nevada and Chicago suburbs including Arlington Heights and Lake Forest, police said.

Price was being held in the Schaumburg lockup in lieu of $10,000 bond pending an appearance at 1:30 p.m. today in the Schaumburg branch of Circuit Court.

Elk Grove man arrested with $75,000 in securities

An Elk Grove Village man was arrested Tuesday afternoon after he attempted to cash an estimated $75,000 worth of stolen municipal bonds at the Schaumburg State Bank, police said.

Theodore E. Price, 47, of 100 Wildwood, was charged with possession of stolen property. Another man was being held by Schaumburg police in an investigation of the incident.

The securities were believed stolen during a burglary of a Lake County home last spring in which more than $100,000 worth of items was reported stolen, police reported.

Schaumburg State Bank officials consulted police after a man identified as Price tried to sell the bonds to the bank Tuesday morning. Bank officials said they would have to check the bonds, and Price told them he would return in the afternoon, authorities said.

THE SERIAL numbers of the bonds were turned over to authorities and checked out on the LEADS teletype system. Returning information identified the bonds as stolen, police said. The burglary occurred at a home located between Mundelein and Libertyville.

Lt. Alvin Herzfeld and Det. William Ostermann staked out the bank at 320 W.

'It's unfair,' says man in the street

A Herald staff report

Middle-income families already are absorbing the brunt of taxes and inflation, say area residents reacting to President Ford's proposed income-tax surcharge.

Persons polled by The Herald Tuesday afternoon lent little support to the President's call for increased taxes on middle- and upper-income families and individuals. Saying they already were hurting from taxes and inflation, they called upon the federal government to do some belt-tightening of its own.

"I think it stinks," said Larry Brousseau. "They ought to be getting the money out of the guys that are really making it."

MANY OF THE persons polled said taxes already were too high and inflation was raising havoc with family budgets.

"Personally, I can't see how it's going to curb inflation. We're being taxed to death already," said Anne Johnson of Hoffman Estates.

She added, "Most people I know are having a hard time making ends meet right now."

Jean Fritz, Arlington Heights, said the surcharge was going to hit young married couples the hardest.

Tax hike 'not a solution'

by BOB LAHEY

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, predicted Tuesday night that Congress will reject President Ford's recommendation for a 5 per cent income surtax on families with incomes over $15,000.

Crane, vocally upset over parts of Ford's economic measures for both political and economic reasons, made the prediction in an appearance before the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce's annual dinner meeting hours after the President's televised message.

"An increase in taxes at this point is not a solution to any of our problems," Crane told the chamber members at the Lancer's Restaurant in Schaumburg.

In an address which can only be described as deeply pessimistic, Crane said the United States is on the brink of a depression "of the magnitude of 1929," and warned of grave danger of armed intervention by Western European nations against the Arab oil-producing nations that might well lead to "World War III."

HE SAID THE net effect of Ford's economic message would be inflationary, producing less in revenue through the surcharge on income taxes than would be lost through tax credits for business investment — which he welcomed — and the cost of possible public works projects outlined by the President.

Politically, Crane said, the President's surtax proposal struck yet another blow at Republican Congressional candidates. He said the surtax has direct impact on districts where Republicans normally

District getting funds for school?

High School Dist. 211 soon may receive $4.8 million in state funds for construction of a sixth high school. If the money is approved the district will not spend $5 million of the $22 million up for approval in a bond referendum next week.

Dist. 211 Board Pres. Robert Creek said Monday the funds seem "very close" to approval by the Illinois Capital Development Board. The Dist. 211 board moved up the date of its next meeting from Oct. 24 to Oct. 21 hoping to have approval of the state funds so it can authorize use of the money.

Voters will be asked to approve $22 million in bonds Oct. 19 for construction of the sixth school and additions to four other high schools.

Creek said it is now too late to change the ballots for the referendum to reduce the figure. Because the ballot lists specific uses of the money, the district cannot spend the money on another project without another referendum.

If the state money comes through and the referendum is approved, Creek said the district would spend only $17 million of the $22 million in bonds. The remaining $5 million in bonds will not be sold.

Dist. 211 has been seeking approval of the state money for the sixth high school for months. Frustrated by the delay, the board decided to go ahead with a referendum to finance the project without state money.

The sixth high school is needed to accommodate a projected 9 per cent increase in student enrollment in the district per year.

Teacher hired for purchasing

A mathematics teacher at Fremd High School was hired as the director of purchasing for Dist. 211 by the board of education Monday night.

Paul Fuller, has been employed as a math teacher for Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15.

He will assume the position as Dist. 211 director of purchasing at a salary of $15,500 as soon as his position as math teacher is filled. The former purchasing director, Thomas Favale, left two weeks ago to become business manager at a parochial high school in Joliet.

Late bus plan continues

Late buses for students in extracurricular activities will run for another month in High School Dist. 211 on an experimental basis.

Bus service for each of the five high schools in the district began Sept. 23 after parents asked the board of education to come up with a plan for providing transportation for students in the evening. The buses leave the schools at about 6:40 p.m. each school day.

The board agreed to run the buses to determine how many students would ride. The bus is now free to students but board members have discussed continuing the bus by charging a fee.

An average of 180 students districtwide rode the buses in the first two weeks of operation. The board decided Monday to continue the experimental bus for another month before it decides whether to make the routes permanent.

In the meantime, school officials will study the cost of the bus service and the problem of supervising students in the school at night who are waiting for the bus to arrive.

LWV endorses vote

The League of Women Voters of Palatine has endorsed the Oct. 19 $22 million bond referendum for school construction.

In a letter to the Dist. 211 board of education, the league said it supports the passage of the referendum because money is needed for a sixth high school in Palatine and auditoriums and swimming pools for the schools "will provide the opportunity for further enrichment for all students in the district."

However, the league criticized the district for not scheduling the referendum on the date of the general election, the short notice given to study the issue, the absence of planning the pools in cooperation with local park districts, and placing pools and auditoriums on the same ballot with the sixth school.

Fire district audit due soon

Completion of an audit of Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District records is expected in two weeks, Village Pres. Virginia Hayter said this week. The audit is being conducted to determine the deficit in the district which the village will assume this month.

Fire protection service will shift from the district to the village this month. A deficit of $250,000 and possibly more is expected to exist in the district. A 5 per cent utility tax which will add 5 cents to every dollar billed on gas, electric and telephone bills has already been levied by the village to help pay for the district deficit.

The tax will be imposed for two years beginning Jan. 1 and is expected to cost most homeowners $20 to $50 per year.

Road funding approved

Two appropriations for supplemental funding for road work were approved by the village board this week. The board authorized the expenditure of $547.75 from motor fuel tax funds to pay for 1971 road work whose cost was originally underestimated. John Hossack, superintendent of public works, said an audit by the state revealed the shortage.

The appropriation of $45,000 for additional costs for the improvement of Jones Road also was authorized by the board.

Plan commissioner named

Natalie Karney, 216 Jefferson Rd., was appointed to the village plan commission. Mrs. Karney, an engineer, was appointed by Mrs. Hayter to a term ending in 1977. Her appointment fills one of two longstanding vacancies on the board, Mrs. Hayter said.

Fire study group dissolved

The village board fire study committee, which had been appointed to consider the formation of a municipal fire department, was dissolved this week. The board, at the recommendation of Trustee Dyrle Rathman, voted to dissolve the committee. Rathman, who was chairman, said the committee had completed its work.

Only Trustee Bruce Lind voted against the action, saying he thought the committee should remain until the dissolution of the fire protection district and formation of the municipal fire department is officially completed.

WEATHER-BEATEN FENCES and flowers stretch along the countryside near the outskirts of the area. The Northwest suburban region was once composed of rural towns until rapid growth in the past 20 years.

Village wins plea for new judge in employes' suit

Hoffman Estates has received approval of its request for a new judge in the case against the village by former public works employes.

Village Atty. Edward Hofert said Tuesday the petition to remove Circuit Court Judge Nathan Cohen from the case has been granted. The village had sought the judge's removal because of remarks he made last year criticizing the firing of 28 public works employes following their one-day strike.

The strike was called to protest the village's handling of contract negotiations. The ex-employes are seeking to have their jobs reinstated through the court action.

Hofert said no court date or new judge has yet been named.

IN ANOTHER MATTER, no action was taken Monday during an executive session of the village board called to discuss Kaufman and Broad Homes, Inc.'s lawsuit against the village.

Officials declined to discuss the session. Village Pres. Virginia Hayter said Tuesday the meeting "discussed the total K&B situation."

Hofert said he did not know what action may come in the suit, adding only that he "possibly" may request another executive session to consider the litigation.

The suit was filed by K&B in June following adoption of a resolution halting the issuance of further building permits for development in K&B's Barrington Square complex.

The action stemmed from the bribery scheme involving K&B and six former village officials who accepted money from the company in 1968 in exchange for favorable zoning for the Barrington Square project.

A countersuit against the company by the village has been authorized by the village board but has not been filed. The case will be heard Nov. 16 before Circuit Court Judge Walter P. Dahl.

Village may seek water from lake

Diminishing well-water levels may force Hoffman Estates to seek water from Lake Michigan as a supplemental supply, said Richard Regan, village plan commission chairman.

Regan told the village board Monday the supplemental water source should be considered because underground well-water tables in the suburbs are being rapidly depleted. He urged the board to consider either joining the DAMP (Des Plaines-Arlington Heights-Mount Prospect-Palatine) Water Commission or seeking an independent allocation of Lake Michigan water.

DAMP, a cooperative commission, formed in 1957 to provide Lake Michigan water for its members. Des Plaines, one of the original members, has left the commission.

CONCERN FOR future water supplies has been expressed in most Northwest suburban communities which rely primarily on wells for their water supply.

But building and the paving over of areas where water once drained and replenished shallow wells has caused the wells to dry, Regan said. Communities are being forced to tap deeper well supplies, which soon may lead to a diminishing deep water table, he warned.

Regan said completion of a water supply survey now being conducted by the Northeastern Illinois Plan Commission should be the first step by the village to stimulate recognition of the water supply problem. An allocation of Lake Michigan water, either independently or through DAMP, should then be sought, Regan said.

But Village Pres. Virginia Hayter warned against going through DAMP for the allocation. She said hearings on Lake Michigan water are scheduled for December and will be the last held to determine lake water allocation.

She urged the village to "think in terms of making its own presentation" at the hearings to request the water.

Mrs. Hayter also warned the water situation is already severe in some suburbs and noted as an example to the Village of Carol Stream where 10 dry or non-useable wells were recently drilled in an attempt to provide new water.

If that situation starts occurring in Hoffman Estates, it will become "very expensive to be in the water business," she warned.

"IT MAY TAKE an ordinance to properly direct this in the future," Regan said.

Allocations of Lake Michigan water have been considered by the village in the past. Last year Gerald F. Rehm, an engineer with Greeley and Hansen water consultants, advised the village against joining DAMP and seeking instead a direct water pipeline to Chicago.

He suggested at the same time a shared-cost venture be sought with surrounding villages, perhaps Elk Grove Village and Schaumburg. Cost for the pipeline system at the time was estimated at $4 million.

Testing will begin today for persons interested in conducting the special census in Hoffman Estates. The testing will be conducted by the U. S. Bureau of the Census at the village municipal building, 1200 N. Gannon Dr.

The census is expected to take two to three weeks. It will determine the exact population in the village, which is expected to be more than 32,000.

The figure is important to the village because state income tax rebates and motor fuel tax rebates are based on a municipality's population.

Persons selected will be paid 13 cents per name correctly recorded in the count.

Power politics in Schaumburg Township

You need 'clout' to get elected here, too

Slating for the April election is on the minds of political strongholds in Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates. And as slating draws near, the Oct. 24, convention in Schaumburg is drawing the attention of local politicians.

Convention time is party time, and politics in the village will be pulling their weight for all its worth.

Political pull has proven a powerful tool in recent elections in Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg Township. Most village trustees acknowledge that their political identification was a significant factor behind their election.

DECLARING POLITICAL affiliation is not enough. A demonstration of true party loyalty through contacts and working for the party and name and face recognition throughout the community is the combination for election, say trustees.

The strength of certain party members vying for spots on the Schaumburg United Party ticket will soon be seen as SUP prepares for its convention.

Conventions are required by law as an alternative to party primaries for political groups which remain organized year after year. In 1971 the Republican Organization of Schaumburg Township held its first convention to present a slate for the Hoffman Estates Board of Trustees. The next year SUP decided to hold its first convention to set a slate for the Schaumburg board election.

State Rep. Donald Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, also is Republican Committeeman for Schaumburg Township. He said the first ROOST convention was held to get more citizen response about the party platform and candidates. Its success prompted a second convention in 1973 and the party plans another convention next year for the 1975 election.

WHEN SUP HELD its first convention in 1972, Totten said "SUP is imitating the innovative convention idea first adopted by the GOP in Hoffman Estates." SUP said the convention was held to generate greater community involvement in the party's decision-making process.

Whether SUP imitated ROOST or found a way to create more involvement in the party, it decided to continue this form of selection and will select a six-member slate for the April, 1975, village elections at the October convention.

Township and village officials hold close identification with political parties. In contrast, the other elected boards in the community — the school and park boards — find candidates from community organizations.

A caucus system for school-board-candidate selection was attempted in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54. It failed because too few community members showed interest in becoming caucus representatives. As a result, board members present themselves individually and usually are grounded in school matters through the PTA.

Park board members obtain background for their positions primarily from homeowners groups and athletic associations . . . all to be shown in the articles that follow.

In Schaumburg politics

Historically, the only way up is through United Party

The Schaumburg United Party holds the reins of power in the Village of Schaumburg. Active party membership and support of the party's leaders and policies can mean eventual positions in the village government.

SUP officially formed three years ago as an outgrowth of the United Citizens Party. Both political organizations revolved around the policies and programs set by Village Pres. Robert O. Atcher.

Atcher has been the central figure in Schaumburg politics since the village incorporated in 1956 and has been village president since 1959.

WITH ATCHER'S announcement that he will not seek reelection for the village presidency in 1975, Trustee Raymond Kessell has become the lone SUP member seeking the party's nomination for that post at the Oct. 24 convention. Sandy Caracello will run for a third term as village clerk and is unopposed.

Beverly Wegrzyn is the first woman to seek SUP support for a trustee's seat and is after a two-year term. She has worked for the party at the precinct level, has been on the board of health and does auxiliary work for the Rush Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital planned for Schaumburg.

Her nomination at the convention will come from former trustee Peter Justen. Mrs. Wegrzyn's second will come from Klitty Conley, wife of the convention's chairman Dennis Conley.

Also seeking the party nod for a two-year term is Neil Hornstrom, active with the Schaumburg Jaycees and a group from which many in the village have made the village board.

SEEKING FOUR-YEAR terms are Ed Olsen, an incumbent; Tom Kossin, a party regular; Allan L. Larson, who has done extensive work for the party and is currently a zoning board member; and James A. Rogers, immediate past president of the Schaumburg Jaycees.

Those who have earned the party's nod and achieve election to the village board have first become active in SUP, proved themselves consistent with SUP policies and frequently have been first appointed by the board to a village commission or committee. Throughout these steps, political contacts were made and remembered at convention time.

Other citizen service organizations also have been stepping stones to public recognition. Included in these organizations are homeowners groups, the Jaycees, Young Republicans and school PTAs. Noticeably absent from ascent to power in Schaumburg is affiliation with the Republican Organization of Schaumburg Township, the major source of political support in Schaumburg Township and Hoffman Estates.

The now inactive Young Republican organization in Schaumburg was an unusual group of Republicans who banded together in the late 60s because they could not mesh with ROOST. Most of the members were over 35 years old and the chief organizer was Atcher. This also became a founding ground for SUP.

TRUSTEE ED OLSEN, currently seeking SUP support for election to an additional term, is a typical example of SUP ascension to power. Olsen was appointed to the board in January to fill the vacancy from Denis Ledgerwood's resignation.

Olsen was one of the organizers of the Lancer Park Homeowners Assn. Until about three years ago, he was a vocal opponent of Atcher, the village administration and SUP policies.

Before the first SUP convention in 1972, Olsen changed his position and was lauded as the party's strongest organizer and worker in Lancer Park.

Nine months before Olsen was appointed to the board, he was named to the Lancing Board of Appeals to succeed Harry Mamach. Mamach's resignation from the zoning board and as SUP managing director followed an apparent policy conflict with SUP regarding precinct representation and SUP policy formation.

TO BE REELECTED, a trustee also must continue to support SUP and Atcher's policies.

Sigval Thorsen, who was elected a trustee in October 1969 to fill a vacancy on the board, found this to be true when he was not included in the 1971 SUP slate.

Thorsen questioned approval of a proposal that would have lowered the minimum room sizes to meet Federal Housing Authority Title 235 standards. At that time, he said his resistance to the proposal was the "straw that broke the camel's back."

SUP also demands uniformity within its ranks. Last year two independent candidates who lost in the April elections sought to become members of SUP in August. Helen Jackson and Suzanne Popp were turned down because they would have been bringing in "diverse opinions," Kessell said.

So historically in Schaumburg, the only way up is SUP.

SMILING FACES are found after party conventions in Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates only on those who have worked for candidates on successful-bound slates. The candidates usually have worked hard for party support prior to convention and for citizen support prior to election, but can't make it to an elected village post without party support.

ROOST pulls most of the strings here

The Republican Organization of Schaumburg Township pulls the power controls in Schaumburg Township and Hoffman Estates government.

Since 1969 only Republicans have been elected to positions on the Hoffman Estates Village Board. ROOST has had similar success in the township where all the positions are held by active ROOST members.

Besides being a member of ROOST, trustees on the Hoffman Estates board said that candidates must knock on doors and get their name recognized throughout the community to be elected.

HOFFMAN ESTATES president, Virginia Hayter, credits her exposure to the community through organizations like the Girl Scouts and Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education as a significant factor in being elected as a trustee in 1969.

Mrs. Hayter was a member of the school board, on the local PTA and active in the Girl Scouts. She also was co-chairman of the Schaumburg Township group formed to support the establishment of Harper College.

This exposure and later exposure as a village trustee helped her win her term as president, she said. She also said her involvement, membership and support by ROOST helped her get elected.

ANOTHER EXAMPLE of the weight ROOST holds in Hoffman Estates is the election of Trustee Dyrle Rathman to the board.

Rathman, 38, has been a member of the Republican Party since he was 21 years old. He met State Rep. Donald Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, through Little League baseball coaching and became an active member of ROOST.

Totten, who also is Republican Committeeman in Schaumburg Township, is one of the chief organizers of ROOST. He sets most of the major policies and is a key figure for recruiting new members.

Besides his political affiliation, Rathman has been active in the Hoffman Estates Athletic Assn. for 12 years and has held the HEAA presidency twice.

Rathman said his political affiliation helped him get elected in 1971 as well as his community involvement. He said community involvement is one way to get name recognition and exposure to the public.

ALL OF THE ELECTED positions in the township board are held by ROOST members. In the 1973 election, a slate composed of three Schaumburg United Party members lost to the ROOST slate. Candidate Charles R. English during the campaign said "at present only insiders of the local Republican organization benefit from the township governments."

Park officials—a diversified lot

Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates park boards contain an assortment of individuals. The commissioners come from a variety of backgrounds with as many sources of support.

The Schaumburg Park Board prides itself as being representative of the entire community. Four of the commissioners served with their local homeowners associations prior to running for the board.

Joseph Roberts of Hanover Park, who heads up the business end of the board, is the exception to this rule. He said his interest in politics was one factor behind his running for the two-year post. He also served as the campaign manager for former state Rep. Jacob John Wolf.

THE OTHER commissioners found their starts in Lancer Park, Weathersfield, Timbercrest and Sunset Hills homeowners associations — which resulted in representation from different areas of the park district.

Michael Doherty exemplifies the general path commissioners follow to the board.

Doherty, elected in 1971, became active in the park district as the Lancer Park Homeowners Assn. representative for eight months. He ran against the slate put up by the Schaumburg Athletic Assn., saying the SSAA view geared strictly to athletics was too "narrow."

Hoffman Estates commissioners do not fit any general pattern of progression to the board. However, all the board commissioners live north of Golf Road.

Previous community involvement by the commissioners includes membership in the Jaycees, village committees and area athletic associations.

THEIR OCCUPATIONS range from Board Pres. George Seaver who is an airline pilot; Tom Barber, a manager of catalog sales for Montgomery Ward; and Shirley Gibbons, a housewife active in Barrington Square politics and a member of the environmental Committee of Hoffman Estates.

Seaver also was a village trustee where he served on a committee for park improvements. Fred Weaver served as the park district liaison for the village and as a plan commissioner.

George Rush is the only member bringing prior involvement with athletic associations onto the board. Rush currently is president of the Hoffman Estates Community Baseball Assn.

Grade-school board link is parent, teacher unit

One common denominator connecting all the members on the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education is their active participation in the community Parents-Teacher Assn.

Each elected board member originally was active in his local school PTA before entering the governing board for the area elementary and junior high schools. Most also became active on the board's committees prior to being elected to the board.

This year's election proved this to be a powerful combination when two women defeated two incumbents seeking reelection. Margaret Pageler and Esther Karras defeated Adam Jelen Jr. and Sherwood Spatz.

Mrs. Pageler and Mrs. Karras both were active on the board's committees and were officers within the PTA.

MRS. KARRAS was president of the Schaumburg Area Council of PTA's for the 1972-74 term. The area council is the regional board that directs the local school PTA organizations.

She also is an honorary life member of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers affiliated with the PTA.

Mrs. Pageler was past president of the Hillcrest PTA and received active support and endorsement by the Schaumburg Education Assn. She had been defeated in her initial attempt at a board seat in 1973, but continued to serve on the board of education, legislation and community relations committees.

Another common trait among board members is having youngsters in the elementary and junior high schools.

DUES-PAYING MEMBERS of the two politically strong parties in Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates get to select the slate of candidates that traditionally are elected to serve in village government.

Those slated usually have paid extra dues to the party doing precinct work.

GOP women hear Sen. Jesse Helms

U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms, the first Republican to be elected to the Senate from North Carolina since Reconstruction, will be at a meeting of the Women's Republican Club of the 12th Congressional District Wednesday, Oct. 16.

Helms, a strong conservative, and Gov. James Holshouser were the first Republicans seeking major office to become beneficiaries of a gradual but steady trend in the South toward the GOP when they won office in 1972.

Also speaking at the meeting will be U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th.

The meeting will be held at 1 p.m. at the Buchler YMCA, Northwest Highway and Countryside Drive, Palatine. It will be preceded by dessert at 12:30 p.m. The public is invited.

Elrod reveals tax returns

County Sheriff Richard Elrod has made public federal income tax returns for the years 1970-73.

Elrod's returns show an average income of $29,600 over the four years ranging from $18,950 in 1970 to $31,300 in 1973. He said most of the $1,800 earned over his sheriff's salary of $29,500 came from rental on a building in which he inherited a one-eighth interest from his father.

Elk Grove GOP dinner Saturday

Elk Grove Township Republicans will conduct their annual dinner dance Saturday at the Lancer Steak House, Algonquin and Meacham roads, Schaumburg.

Mrs. Lucy Borkowski, an officer of the GOP women's organization of the township, is serving as chairman of the dinner-dance for the second consecutive year. She said tickets may be obtained from precinct captains or by calling 827-3442.

The dinner dance is the major fund-raising event of the GOP organization to raise money for conducting election campaigns, according to Township Committeeman Carl R. Hansen.

Wheeling GOP party slated

The ninth annual Wheeling Township Republican Organization dinner-dance will be held Saturday at the Marriot Motor Hotel Grand Ballroom.

Tickets are $17.50 with cocktails at 6:45 and the dinner at 8 p.m.

Making preparations for the dance are members of the Wheeling Township Young Republican organization. For more information contact Carol Perkinson, dinner-dance publicity chairman, at 398-3592.

Crane coordinators named

Township coordinators for the reelection campaign of U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, have been named in the 11 townships of the district, said Irl Marshall, chairman of the election committee.

Included among them are Earl Lewis of Mount Prospect, Elk Grove Township; Edward Lewis of Palatine and Bill McMinn of Rolling Meadows, Palatine Township; Mrs. Walter (Linda) Wing of Schaumburg, Schaumburg Township; and William F. Griffith of Arlington Heights, Wheeling Township.

Mrs. Gerald (Lola) Brask of Arlington Heights is a vice chairman of the Crane committee.

Election coordinator graduate

Helmut E. Meyer of Arlington Heights was one of 30 graduates at a recent school for election coordinators conducted by the Illinois Board of Elections.

Meyer was among the 30 selected from several hundred applicants, according to Michael E. Lavelle of Chicago, chairman of the board. They will assist local officials in the administration of election laws throughout the state.

The school was conducted over seven weeks, followed by two weeks of field training.

Policies called 'unacceptable'

School superintendents' group opposes Bakalis

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — A statewide association of school superintendents is "overwhelmingly" against the appointment of Michael J. Bakalis to succeed himself as state school chief, a spokesman for the group said Monday.

John G. Wargo, executive director of the Illinois Assn. of School Administrators, also said the group's governing board will tell the state Board of Education that anyone with Bakalis' policies is unacceptable to the IASA.

The new board of education has the responsibility of choosing the state's first appointed school superintendent whose term begins next year. Bakalis, first elected in 1970, wants the job.

BUT WARGO SAID the 1,000-member IASA doesn't want Bakalis because he opposed full funding of the school aid formula, "diluted" local control of schools and accused school administrators of wasting money.

"At the fall conference last Friday," said Wargo, "One of the roughly 300 members present moved that the board of directors oppose the selection of Bakalis for these reasons."

"The motion was debated extensively and then the membership voted overwhelmingly for the motion," Wargo said. Several minutes later, Wargo said, IASA President John G. Alford convened a meeting of the 21-member board of directors. It decided to send a delegation to the state board of education to say the IASA opposes anyone with Bakalis' approach.

Michael Bakalis

The IASA opposition to Bakalis is not technically official, Wargo said, because no binding decisions could be made at the fall conference. But Wargo conceded the state board of education will be told the IASA is strongly opposed to Bakalis.

WARGO SAID Bakalis should have supported school funding at the level prescribed by the new aid formula instead of going along with Gov. Daniel Walker's request for some $70 million less.

In addition, Wargo said, Bakalis' intervention in the Decatur school strike and his stand on corporal punishment (letting a note from parents avoid physical punishment for students) was not appreciated by school administrators. "Nor did they like his public statements saying school administrators have been wasteful," Wargo said.

Illinois Democrats certain this is their year in House

by PAMELA REEVES
United Press International

Illinois Democrats think they have a good chance in next month's election of picking up between one and three congressional seats now held by the GOP.

In this year of heavy inflation, some top Republican strategists fear they are right.

Republicans now have 14 of the state's 24 congressmen, but GOP Representatives Leslie Arends, R-15th, Harold Collier, R-6th, are retiring this year, and U.S. Rep. Samuel H. Young, R-10th, faces a rematch with a man he beat by only 7,000 votes in 1972.

It is in those three districts, the 15th in north central Illinois, the 6th in Chicago's western suburbs and the 10th in the northern and Northwest suburbs, that political experts of both parties expect the closest races.

In the 15th, where Arends is retiring, Republican Industrialist Clifford Carlson, 59, is facing Tim Hall, 49, of Dwight, a teacher who got 43 per cent of the vote when he ran against Arends in 1972.

As one strategist put it, "the Republicans aren't together in that district and the Democrats are, at least for the congressional race."

Carlson, who served one year in Congress when Rep. Charlotte Reid resigned in 1972 to accept a presidential appointment, is much wealthier than Hall. But Hall says he only spent $12,500 in 1972 when he got that 43 per cent of the vote against long-term incumbent Arends.

The return of Ed Hanrahan?

In the 6th District, where Collier is retiring, GOP State Rep. Henry Hyde, 50, is running against former Cook County State's Atty. Edward V. Hanrahan, 53.

The district is conservative and generally Republican and Hyde, a leading conservative spokesman in Illinois, has fairly good financing and a well-coordinated campaign.

the 1969 Black Panther raid in which two Panthers were killed, he won many ardent friends — and an equal number of ardent enemies.

That raid, Hanrahan's frequent angry outbursts and his quarrels with Mayor Richard J. Daley have cost him heavily. His brother, Dick, says bitterly they have received only $1,000 from the Democratic National Committee, nothing from the Democratic telethon and nothing from the Illinois or Cook County Central Committees.

Despite all those problems, Hanrahan is considered a strong runner because of his good name recognition. One respected GOP strategist predicts Hyde will win by 60 per cent of the vote, but most people think the race could go either way.

Sam-n'-Ab show's on again

The race where most politicians think Democrats stand the best chance of picking up a Republican seat is in the 10th district, where GOP Rep. Samuel H. Young faces Abner Mikva.

Mikva, 48, a liberal Democrat, served two terms in Congress 1968 to 1972 from Chicago's South Side, but moved to Evanston because redistricting in 1972 would have forced him to run against Rep. Ralph Metcalfe in a predominantly black district.

As a newcomer to the north and Northwest suburban district, Mikva came within 7,000 votes of 233,000 cast of defeating Young, and as one Republican put it, "he's had two more years to get acquainted in the district and has sort of matched Sam's activities."

Both campaigns are well financed, but Mikva has more enthusiastic volunteers who are eager to avenge the 1972 loss.

Incumbents are favored

Aside from Young, all incumbents in both parties are rated odds-on favorites by most political experts, but there are several well-organized challenges that could result in upsets.

Samuel Young

Election '74

In the 20th District, which includes Springfield and 11 central Illinois counties, GOP incumbent Paul Findley is facing Peter Mack, who served seven terms in Congress ending in 1962.

"Mack's probably the best candidate the Democrats have had since Findley got in because Mack was in 14 years," one Democratic strategist said. "But I think Findley will win."

Another potential upset is in the 17th District, which includes parts of Cook, Iroquois, Kankakee and Will counties. Incumbent GOP Rep. George O'Brien faces John J. Houlihan, a former state representative whom O'Brien defeated in the 1972 congressional race by 55 per cent of the vote.

Democrats give Houlihan, who is popular with labor, an outside chance of winning, but polls in key areas of the district show him running behind O'Brien.

One other area where Democrats see a possible upset is in the 3rd District, in south suburban Cook County, where GOP Rep. Robert Hanrahan, 40, is seeking his second term. His challenger is Martin A. Russo, 30, who has never run for public office before. Russo formerly worked in the Cook County state's attorney's office.

Remember Paul Simon?

Leaders in both political parties think former Lt. Gov. Paul Simon will defeat Val Oshel, mayor of Harrisburg who came within 17,000 votes of 210,000 cast of defeating Rep. Kenneth Gray in 1968.

Gray, a Democrat from the 24th District in Southern Illinois, is retiring, so a Simon win would not add to the Democratic total in the Illinois Delegation. But it would mean a political comeback for Simon from the defeat he suffered in the 1972 gubernatorial primary at the hands of Gov. Daniel Walker.

Inflation key issue

The only other races that have excited much interest are those of Rep. Robert McClary in the 13th District in Kane, Lake and McHenry counties, and Rep. Thomas Rallsback, R-19th, the Rock Island-Moline area. Both Republicans voted, as members of the House Judiciary Committee to impeach President Nixon. Those votes might have become an issue had Nixon not resigned, but strategists in both parties say neither McClary nor Rallsback faces a serious challenge now that the Watergate issue has all but faded.

The big issue in most of the congressional campaigns is inflation, with Democrats blaming the Republican administration and Republicans blaming the Democratic Congress. And of course it is the fondest hope of all challengers that voters will just blame everyone in Washington, and opt for new faces.

District getting funds for school?

High School Dist. 211 soon may receive $4.8 million in state funds for construction of a sixth high school. If the money is approved the district will not spend $5 million of the $22 million up for approval in a bond referendum next week.

Dist. 211 Board Pres. Robert Creek said Monday the funds seem "very close" to approval by the Illinois Capital Development Board. The Dist. 211 board moved up the date of its next meeting from Oct. 24 to Oct. 21 hoping to have approval of the state funds so it can authorize use of the money.

Voters will be asked to approve $22 million in bonds Oct. 19 for construction of the sixth school and additions to four other high schools.

Creek said it is now too late to change the ballots for the referendum to reduce the figure. Because the ballot lists specific uses of the money, the district cannot spend the money on another project without another referendum.

If the state money comes through and the referendum is approved, Creek said the district would spend only $17 million of the $22 million in bonds. The remaining $5 million in bonds will not be sold.

Dist. 211 has been seeking approval of the state money for the sixth high school for months. Frustrated by the delay, the board decided to go ahead with a referendum to finance the project without state money.

The sixth high school is needed to accommodate a projected 9 per cent increase in student enrollment in the district per year.

Teacher hired for purchasing

A mathematics teacher at Fremd High School was hired as the director of purchasing for Dist. 211 by the board of education Monday night.

Paul Fuller, has been employed as a math teacher for Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15.

He will assume the position as Dist. 211 director of purchasing at a salary of $15,500 as soon as his position as math teacher is filled. The former purchasing director, Thomas Favale, left two weeks ago to become business manager at a parochial high school in Joliet.

Late bus plan continues

Late buses for students in extracurricular activities will run for another month in High School Dist. 211 on an experimental basis.

Bus service for each of the five high schools in the district began Sept. 23 after parents asked the board of education to come up with a plan for providing transportation for students in the evening. The buses leave the schools at about 6:40 p.m. each school day.

The board agreed to run the buses to determine how many students would ride. The bus is now free to students but board members have discussed continuing the bus by charging a fee.

An average of 180 students districtwide rode the buses in the first two weeks of operation. The board decided Monday to continue the experimental bus for another month before it decides whether to make the routes permanent.

In the meantime, school officials will study the cost of the bus service and the problem of supervising students in the school at night who are waiting for the bus to arrive.

LWV endorses vote

The League of Women Voters of Palatine has endorsed the Oct. 19 $22 million bond referendum for school construction.

In a letter to the Dist. 211 board of education, the league said it supports the passage of the referendum because money is needed for a sixth high school in Palatine and auditoriums and swimming pools for the schools "will provide the opportunity for further enrichment for all students in the district."

However, the league criticized the district for not scheduling the referendum on the date of the general election, the short notice given to study the issue, the absence of planning the pools in cooperation with local park districts, and placing pools and auditoriums on the same ballot with the sixth school.

WITH THE ADDITION of sod and plantings last week, Rolling Meadows Gateway Park began looking more like a park than a vacant lot. The small corner at Wilke and Kirchoff roads has been turned into a pleasant place to walk or rest by the city's recycling, ecology and beautification committee over the summer.

Man arrested with stolen securities

An Elk Grove Village man was arrested Tuesday afternoon after he attempted to cash an estimated $75,000 worth of stolen municipal bonds at the Schaumburg State Bank, police said.

Theodore J. Price, 47, of 100 Wildwood, was charged with possession of stolen property. Another man was being held by Schaumburg police in an investigation of the incident.

The securities were believed stolen during a burglary of a Lake County home last spring in which more than $100,000 worth of items was reported stolen, police reported.

Schaumburg State Bank officials consulted police after a man identified as Price tried to sell the bonds to the bank Tuesday morning. Bank officials said they would have to check the bonds, and Price told them he would return in the afternoon, authorities said.

THE SERIAL numbers of the bonds were turned over to authorities and checked out on the LEADS teletype system. Returning information identified the bonds as stolen, police said. The burglary occurred at a home located between Mundelein and Libertyville.

Lt. Alvin Herzfeld and Det. William Ostermann staked out the bank at 320 W. Higgins Rd. and arrested Price about 4 p.m. Police picked up the other man in Elk Grove Village after questioning Price. No charges have been filed against the other man.

The bonds were from various municipalities including some in Nevada and Chicago suburbs including Arlington Heights and Lake Forest, police said.

Price was being held in the Schaumburg lockup in lieu of $10,000 bond pending an appearance at 1:30 p.m. today in the Schaumburg branch of Circuit Court.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford asked Congress Tuesday to impose a one-time 5 per cent surtax on corporations and all but low-income taxpayers to help combat an inflationary rate which he said could "destroy our country."

Addressing a joint session of Congress — which quits in three days to face the electorate — the President appealed for higher taxes as a means of helping inflation's worst victims, stimulating a sluggish economy and reducing the federal deficit, which helps drive up interest rates.

Ford's tax proposal would cost corporations $2.1 billion and individuals $2.6 billion.

For a typical $20,000-a-year family of four, the surtax would amount to $128 atop its normal federal income tax of $2,560.

A single person earning $10,000 would pay $54.76 more than his present $1,095.50 in taxes.

The surcharge would apply only to families with $15,000 or more in income or single people earning over $7,500.

People earning less would get tax relief next year from Ford's proposals. There would be new tax cuts, too, for businesses which expand or modernize. The surcharge — a tax on taxes due — would be in effect only for 1975, starting next Jan. 1.

"I say to you with all sincerity that inflation, our present public enemy, will — unless it is whipped — destroy our country, our homes, our liberties, our property and finally our national pride — as surely as any well-armed wartime enemy," the President declared in somber tones.

Ford said he knew it was "politically unwise" to propose taxes four weeks before an election, and initial reaction from Congress seemed to bear out his judgment.

Most congressmen reacted cautiously and skeptically to the proposed surtax. Many suggested that the $15,000 base was too low, others said taxes could not be raised on middle incomes until loopholes for the rich were closed, and others expressed outright hostility to the idea. Significantly, however, in initial reaction a number of congressional leaders did not rule out the surtax entirely.

Acting contrary to Ford's proposals, the House Ways and Means Committee voted 15 to 6 earlier Tuesday to exempt from income taxes the first $500 of interest earned on savings accounts — a move that would cost the Treasury $1.8 billion.

The tax-writing committee called a hearing for 9 a.m. CDT Wednesday, asking for 9 a.m. CDT Wednesday, asking

What the President proposes...

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Here at a glance are some of the new proposals put forward by President Ford in his anti-inflation message Tuesday:

Taxes

- A one-year, 5 per cent income tax surcharge on corporations and individuals beginning Jan. 1, 1975. It affects families with annual incomes over $15,000 and individuals over $7,500.
- An increase in the investment tax credit, a device for companies to speed up major equipment purchases, from 7 to 10 per cent for most corporations and 4 to 10 per cent for utilities.
- Allow corporations tax deductions for dividends they pay on qualified preferred stock.

Food

- Remove production restrictions on peanuts and extra-long-staple cotton.
- Request authority to allocate fertilizer in order to ensure that farmers have the amounts they need.

Energy

- Require rapid conversion of oil and natural gas-burning electric power plants to coal or nuclear energy where public health would not be endangered.
- More rigid compliance with the 55 m.p.h. speed limit and a renewed plea to consumers to voluntarily conserve energy by lowering thermostats this winter, keeping car engines in tune, using car pools and turning out unnecessary lights.

Residents may have to pay millions

Village to fight exclusion from MSD tunnel project

Palatine officials are preparing to fight a Metropolitan Sanitary District decision excluding the village from a tunnel and reservoir plan and thus costing local residents millions of dollars for new sewer work.

The flood control committee was directed by the village board Monday to review 18 sanitary district plans for reducing Palatine's pollution and flooding problems. The committee will recommend to the board the best move for Palatine in solving its pollution and flooding problems.

This is the preliminary step to reapproaching MSD officials and asking them to reconsider their decision to drop Palatine from the system or asking them to share with Palatine the local share of an alternative sewer plan, Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig said.

Trustee Robert J. Guss Jr., chairman of the flood control committee, and Harwig indicated Monday they felt the only solution to pollution and flood control is the tunnel reservoir plan.

THE TUNNEL AND reservoir system is designed to solve flooding and water pollution problems by building reservoirs and digging deep tunnels. MSD engineers contend leaving Palatine in the tunnel-reservoir plan could jeopardize grants for the entire system because it is not the most cost effective plan for Palatine.

The plan for Palatine suggested by sanitary district engineers is to separate combined sewers in the older, central section of the village, at a cost estimated at $11.1 to $12.7 million.

"The citizens of Palatine cannot afford the sewer project," said Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones, who contends Palatine is not being treated fairly by MSD. Jones has threatened court action to halt the entire plan unless MSD officials provide an equitable alternative to Palatine's water and sewer problems.

Harwig indicated the village probably has less than a year to reapproach the MSD officials and ask them to include Palatine in the tunnel and reservoir plan again or help finance an alternative. Once MSD has applied for a U.S. Environmental Protection Agency grant, Palatine would have to file an objection if an equitable solution to Palatine's problem could not be worked out, Harwig said.

WHILE PALATINE officials try to resolve their problems with MSD, they are faced with a deadline from the EPA to stop pollution of Salt Creek.

The EPA is requiring the village to take steps to reduce its pollution which only occurs when there is flooding causing the combined sewers to overflow and back up into the creek.

Walter Hodel, the village's consulting engineer, has been directed to respond to the EPA and ask for a one-year extension in the abatement of pollution because of conflicts in the EPA time schedule. The extension would give Palatine until Dec. 31, 1979 to solve its pollution problems, provided it had received a federal EPA grant.

UNDER THE time schedule, Palatine must file a preliminary report on its plans by March 1, 1975. Harwig said the preliminary report still may recommend the tunnel-reservoir plan.

Harwig has indicated it is unlikely Palatine would receive a federal grant if it is forced to solve its own water and sewer problems because the larger regional pollution abatement programs like the MSD tunnel-reservoir plan would be given funding priority.

Even if Palatine did get a federal grant to separate its combined sewers it could still be in violation of EPA pollution regulations unless a treatment plant is built to handle storm water, he added.

'It's unfair,' says man in the street

A Herald staff report
Middle-income families already are absorbing the brunt of taxes and inflation, say area residents reacting to President Ford's proposed income-tax surcharge.

Persons polled by The Herald Tuesday afternoon lent little support to the President's call for increased taxes on middle- and upper-income families and individuals. Saying they already were hurting from taxes and inflation, they called upon the federal government to do some belt-tightening of its own.

"I think it stinks," said Larry Brousseau. "They ought to be getting the money out of the guys that are really making it."

MANY OF THE persons polled said taxes already were too high and inflation was raising havoc with family budgets.

"Personally, I can't see how it's going to curb inflation. We're being taxed to death already," said Anne Johnson of Hoffman Estates.

She added, "Most people I know are having a hard time making ends meet right now."

Jean Fritz, Arlington Heights, said the surcharge was going to hit young married couples the hardest.

"It's unfair in the respect that people

LWV proposes housing commission be named

The establishment of a housing commission to determine the housing needs of Palatine has been urged by the Palatine Township League of Women Voters.

Jean Tindall, president of the league, read a statement to the village board Monday asking them to support the Regional Housing Coalition's balanced distribution plan for 800 low- and moderate-income units in the Northwest suburbs and immediately establish a housing commission.

The proposed housing commission would be charged with studying the housing needs of residents of the village and preparing a housing assistance plan for Palatine. The plan would be designed to prevent outside agencies from coming into the village and dictating its housing or a court imposed housing plan. A housing assistance plan also could qualify Palatine for community development funds to help with the redevelopment of the downtown area and sewer renovation.

The health, safety and welfare committee of the board voted to refer the question of establishment of a housing commission to Village Planner Wilton Battles for a recommendation if there is a need for a housing assistance plan.

Fire exhibits slated Saturday

The Palatine Fire Dept. will sponsor a demonstration of fire and paramedic equipment at the Palatine Mall Shopping Center Saturday as part of national Fire Prevention Week.

The demonstration will be given by firemen from noon to 4 p.m. at the mall. Smoke the Bear also will be present at the shopping center, and the fire department will present awards to children who submitted the best fire prevention posters through their area schools during the week.

The fire department also will be conducting tours of the Slade Street Fire Station during fire prevention week, this week, and will be making special presentations at area schools.

Tax hike 'not a solution'

by BOB LAHEY
U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, predicted Tuesday night that Congress will reject President Ford's recommendation for a 5 per cent income surtax on families with incomes over $15,000.

Crane, vocally upset over parts of Ford's economic measures for both political and economic reasons, made the prediction in an appearance before the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce's annual dinner meeting hours after the President's televised message.

"An increase in taxes at this point is not a solution to any of our problems," Crane told the chamber members at the Lancer's Restaurant in Schaumburg.

In an address which can only be described as deeply pessimistic, Crane said the United States is on the brink of a depression "of the magnitude of 1929," and warned of grave danger of armed intervention by Western European nations against the Arab oil-producing nations that might well lead to "World War III."

HE SAID THE net effect of Ford's economic message would be inflationary, producing less in revenue through the surcharge on income taxes than would be lost through tax credits for business investment — which he welcomed — and the cost of possible public works projects outlined by the President.

Politically, Crane said, the President's surtax proposal struck yet another blow at Republican Congressional candidates. He said the surtax has direct impact on districts where Republicans normally

Panel proposes entertainment law

Live entertainment in Palatine may not be so lively in the future if a proposed entertainment ordinance is adopted by the Palatine Village Board.

The law would require all establishments with live entertainment to have a special-use license. A change in the type of entertainment would require a new license.

The health, safety and welfare committee of the board unanimously approved the proposed entertainment ordinance Monday and referred it to the administration, finance and legislation committee for the setting of fees.

The proposed ordinance further specifies that live entertainment in commercial districts shall not produce noise levels great enough to interfere with the rights of others, impose undue health, sanitation or safety burdens on the village or create excessive demands on the police department.

Liquor license denial urged

Denial of a request from Swiss Bavarian Village, 533 N. Hicks Rd., for a new liquor license will be recommended to the Palatine Village Board.

The health, safety and welfare committee of the board voted unanimously to deny a request to permit the restaurant to serve liquor until 1 a.m. on weekdays and 2 a.m. on weekends. Swiss Bavarian Village has a class B liquor license permitting the sale of liquor until midnight everyday except Saturday when it is served until 1 a.m.

Pizza restaurant OK'd

Plans for an Italian restaurant, specializing in pizza in the Palatine Hills Mall, Northwest Highway and Smith Street, have been approved by the planning, building and zoning committee.

The committee will recommend the board grant a special-use permit to Terra Developments Inc., for the construction of Barro's Pizza. The proposed restaurant would be part of a family-owned chain of 24 restaurants on the West coast.

Church zone variation urged

Approval of a request for a zoning variation for Immanuel Lutheran Church, 203 N. Bothwell St., to permit the construction of a combination bulletin board and bell tower will be recommended to the Palatine Village Board.

The planning, building and zoning committee voted to recommend approval of the zoning variation Monday.

Tentative OK for sign variation

A sign variation request from Brunswick for its bowling alley on Northwest Highway has received tentative approval.

The planning, building and zoning committee has voted to recommend the Palatine Village Board grant a three-foot height variation to Brunswick permitting the construction of a 23-foot sign. Brunswick had originally requested a five-foot variation.

Dist. 211 wrapup

District getting funds for school?

High School Dist. 211 soon may receive $4.8 million in state funds for construction of a sixth high school. If the money is approved the district will not spend $5 million of the $22 million up for approval in a bond referendum next week.

Dist. 211 Board Pres. Robert Creek said Monday the funds seem "very close" to approval by the Illinois Capital Development Board. The Dist. 211 board moved up the date of its next meeting from Oct. 24 to Oct. 21 hoping to have approval of the state funds so it can authorize use of the money.

Voters will be asked to approve $22 million in bonds Oct. 19 for construction of the sixth school and additions to four other high schools.

Creek said it is now too late to change the ballots for the referendum to reduce the figure. Because the ballot lists specific uses of the money, the district cannot spend the money on another project without another referendum.

If the state money comes through and the referendum is approved, Creek said the district would spend only $17 million of the $22 million in bonds. The remaining $5 million in bonds will not be sold.

Dist. 211 has been seeking approval of the state money for the sixth high school for months. Frustrated by the delay, the board decided to go ahead with a referendum to finance the project without state money.

The sixth high school is needed to accommodate a projected 9 per cent increase in student enrollment in the district per year.

Teacher hired for purchasing

A mathematics teacher at Fremd High School was hired as the director of purchasing for Dist. 211 by the board of education Monday night.

Paul Fuller, has been employed as a math teacher for Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15.

He will assume the position as Dist. 211 director of purchasing at a salary of $15,500 as soon as his position as math teacher is filled. The former purchasing director, Thomas Favale, left two weeks ago to become business manager at a parochial high school in Joliet.

Late bus plan continues

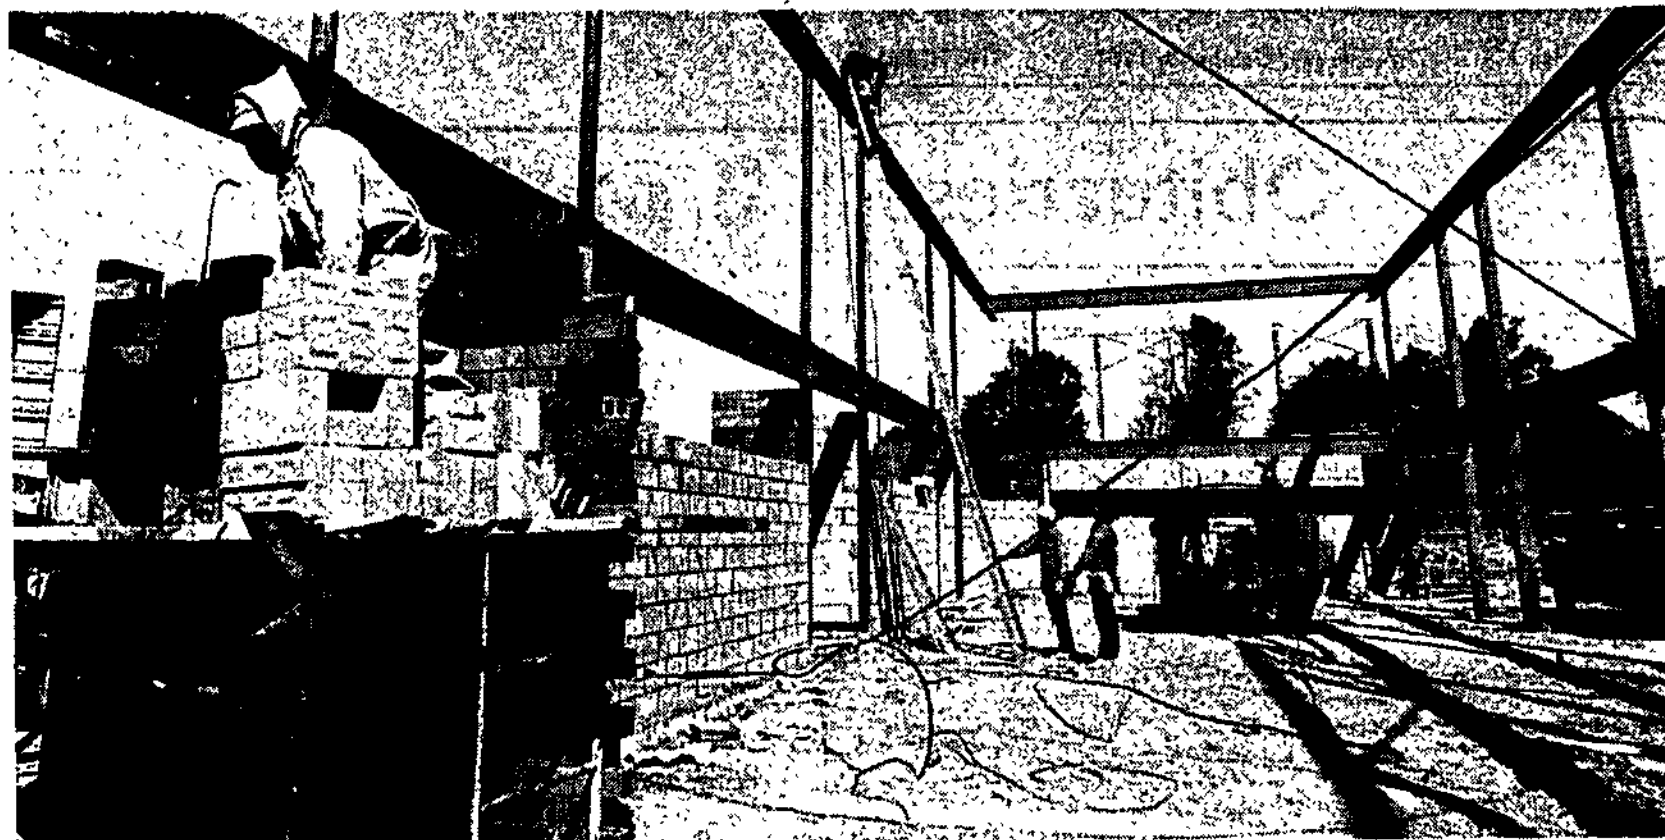

Late buses for students in extracurricular activities will run for another month in High School Dist. 211 on an experimental basis.

The board agreed to run the buses to determine how many students would ride. The bus is now free to students but board members have discussed continuing the bus by charging a fee.

BRICKLAYERS ARE working fast, attempting to enclose the new Palatine Library before winter. The building is under construction at the corner of Benton Street and Northwest Highway. Completion of the library is scheduled for mid-May. The $1.5-million facility is being paid for with funds from a $1.3-million building program that was approved by Palatine residents in a November referendum, and with funds from a special federal grant.

Old Madrid office building planned

Construction is expected to begin next month for an office building in the Old Madrid complex at Baldwin and Hicks roads.

Plans for the two-story office building, adjacent to the existing 14-story apartment building, were submitted to the Palatine Building Department Monday. Formal application for a building permit is expected this week.

Howard Sellergren, developer of Old Madrid, said he hopes to break ground for the office building within a month. The office building will house a branch of Sellergren Interiors, which is now located in Park Ridge. Architectural plans prepared by Robert Harry Jessen & Associates, Inc. call for a Mediterranean design.

Engineering plans for improvements including underground water mains and sewers, streets, street lighting, retention basins and sidewalks also have been submitted to the building department. Sellergren has indicated he hopes to start some of the underground work on the 63-acre property soon.

NO PERMIT is necessary for the ground work but the plans must be approved by the village's engineering consultants. Consoer and Townsend, before construction can start, said Henry Apida, building director.

Construction plans for the office building will be reviewed by the building department, fire department, public works department, health department and consulting engineers prior to the issuance of a building permit.

Sellergren said Monday he plans to apply for building permits on two other office buildings within the next two weeks.

Revised plans for the development of the entire Old Madrid complex call for the construction of a 10-acre recreation-commercial development, eight-acre office-commercial development, 18-acre shopping center and nine midrise condominium buildings. The entire development will be completed by the end of 1980 under plans approved by the village board.

Man charged with murder at race track in August

Murder charges were filed Tuesday against a former employee at Arlington Park track in connection with the beating death of a California man in August.

Stanley Woods is being sought for the murder of John H. Walker, 51, Covina, Calif. Woods and a companion, John "One-Step Jack" Cochran are charged with the theft of Walker's car, police said.

Arlington Heights police said Walker died at McNeal Memorial Hospital, Berwyn, after he suffered "numerous" blows to the head during a fight at Arlington Park where he and Woods were employed as stable hands.

In statements given to local police in August Woods and Cochran, who also worked at the track, said they found the victim lying unconscious in a parking lot at the track. Believing him to be intoxicated, the pair told police, they put him in his car.

THEY ALSO reportedly told police they returned to the car later that day and upon finding Walker still unconscious, drove him to Hawthorne Park, Cicero, where Mrs. Walker worked. Cochran reportedly remained at Arlington Park.

A guard at Hawthorne directed Woods to take the victim to McNeal Hospital where he was admitted with a large lump on the back of his head, police said. Walker died without regaining consciousness.

About a week after the incident, Mrs. Walker reported that Woods and Cochran never returned her husband's car after taking him to the hospital.

When Arlington Heights detectives attempted to question Woods and Cochran further in late August, it was learned they had left the track.

WOODS HAS BEEN charged with murder and auto theft. There was no bond set for him. Cochran was charged with auto theft and $10,000 bond was set.

Walker's car was recovered in Tennessee, police said. It is believed the pair is still in Tennessee or Kentucky, police said.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford asked Congress Tuesday to impose a one-time 5 per cent surtax on corporations and all but low-income taxpayers to help combat an inflationary rate which he said could "destroy our country."

Addressing a joint session of Congress — which quits in three days to face the electorate — the President appealed for higher taxes as a means of helping inflation's worst victims, stimulating a sluggish economy and reducing the federal deficit, which helps drive up interest rates.

Ford's tax proposal would cost corporations $2.1 billion and individuals $2.6 billion.

For a typical $20,000-a-year family of four, the surtax would amount to $128 atop its normal federal income tax of $2,560.

A single person earning $10,000 would pay $54.78 more than his present $1,095.50 in taxes.

The surcharge would apply only to families with $15,000 or more in income or single people earning over $7,500.

People earning less would get tax relief next year from Ford's proposals. There would be new tax cuts, too, for businesses which expand or modernize. The surcharge — a tax on taxes due — would be in effect only for 1975, starting next Jan. 1.

"I say to you with all sincerity that inflation, our present public enemy, will — unless it is whipped — destroy our country, our homes, our liberties, our property and finally our national pride — as surely as any well-armed wartime enemy," the President declared in somber tones.

Ford said he knew it was "politically unwise" to propose taxes four weeks before an election, and initial reaction from Congress seemed to bear out his judgment.

Most congressmen reacted cautiously and skeptically to the proposed surtax. Many suggested that the $15,000 base was too low, others said taxes could not be raised on middle incomes until loopholes for the rich were closed, and others expressed outright hostility to the idea. Significantly, however, in initial reaction a number of congressional leaders did not rule out the surtax entirely.

Acting contrary to Ford's proposals, the House Ways and Means Committee voted 15 to 6 earlier Tuesday to exempt from income taxes the first $500 of interest earned on savings accounts — a move that would cost the Treasury $1.8 billion.

The tax-writing committee called a hearing for 9 a.m. CDT Wednesday, asking (Continued on page 3)

What the President proposes...

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Here at a glance are some of the new proposals put forward by President Ford in his anti-inflation message Tuesday:

Taxes

- A one-year, 5 per cent income tax surcharge on corporations and individuals beginning Jan. 1, 1975. It affects families with annual incomes over $15,000 and individuals over $7,500.

- An increase in the investment tax credit, a device for companies to speed up major equipment purchases, from 7 to 10 per cent for most corporations and 4 to 10 per cent for utilities.

- Allow corporations tax deductions for dividends they pay on qualified preferred stock.

Food

- Remove production restrictions on peanuts and extra-long-staple cotton.

- Request authority to allocate fertilizer in order to ensure that farmers have the amounts they need.

Energy

- Require rapid conversion of oil and natural gas-burning electric power plants to coal or nuclear energy where public health would not be endangered.

- More rigid compliance with the 55 m.p.h. speed limit and a renewed plea to consumers to voluntarily conserve energy by lowering thermostats this winter, keeping car engines in tune, using car pools and turning out unnecessary lights.

BOLI recommends $94,443 alley improvement project

by LUISA GINETTI

A $94,443 alley improvement project to be financed by homeowners and businessmen along east Prospect Avenue and west Northwest Highway was approved Tuesday night by the Mount Prospect Board of Local Improvements.

The special assessment project calls for the paving of gravel alleys along Prospect between Pine Street and Wapella Avenue, and along Northwest Highway between Mount Prospect Road and Owen Street.

Kenneth O. Stonesifer, attorney for the board, told a group of about 20 persons attending the public hearing that the assessment for the work has been tentatively set at $28.74 per foot.

Commercial establishments will be assessed at the full price of their equalized front footage while residences would be assessed at one-third the equalized frontage of their lots Stonesifer said. Homes with lots abutting alleys along side lots as well as front lots would be assessed another 30 per cent lower, the attorney added.

A BUSINESS with 100 feet of frontage, therefore, would be assessed $2,874, while a home with 100 feet of frontage would be assessed at one-third this figure of $958.

Board officials said the assessment will be payable in one lump sum or over a 10-year period.

Robert F. Moore, chairman of the board, said the majority of lots affected by the assessment are non-residential with only 17 homeowners and about 50 businesses in the area.

Board officials said the tentative rate could be reduced if the village board, which must act on the recommendation, decides to contribute funds to the project to offset the cost of public benefits to be derived from the work. Areas of public benefit to be suggested to the village board include an estimated $8,000 cost for storm sewer installation and an $800 cost for removing and replacing sidewalks.

IF THE recommendation for the project is approved by the village board, a motion will be filed in Circuit Court to levy the assessment. A public hearing will then be scheduled at which time persons with objections to the assessment, such as residents with complaints about the amount of their own assessments, may be heard.

If the court approves the special assessment, the board of local improvements will advertise for bids on the work and award a contract.

Moore said the project, whose primary purpose is to improve drainage, dust control, water control and snow removal in the alleys, could be ready for bidding in the spring.

Lions' Candy Day set here Friday

Members of the Mount Prospect Lions Club will be at railroad stations, shopping centers and street intersections Friday, seeking donations for the annual Candy Day to help the blind.

A goal of $4,000 has been set, according to Candy Day chairman Ed Geary.

All proceeds will go to the Leader Dog School for the blind, Hadley School for the Blind, Dialogue Recorded Service for the Blind, Camp Lions for Visually Handicapped Children, Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness and the Lions of Illinois Fund for Emergency.

'It's unfair,' says man in the street

A Herald staff report

Middle-income families already are absorbing the brunt of taxes and inflation, say area residents reacting to President Ford's proposed income-tax surcharge.

Persons polled by The Herald Tuesday afternoon lent little support to the President's call for increased taxes on middle- and upper-income families and individuals. Saying they already were hurting from taxes and inflation, they called upon the federal government to do some belt-tightening of its own.

"I think it stinks," said Larry Brousseau. "They ought to be getting the money out of the guys that are really making it."

MANY OF THE persons polled said taxes already were too high and inflation was raising havoc with family budgets.

"Personally, I can't see how it's going to curb inflation. We're being taxed to death already," said Anne Johnson of Hoffman Estates.

She added, "Most people I know are having a hard time making ends meet right now."

Jean Fritz, Arlington Heights, said the surcharge was going to hit young married couples the hardest.

Tax hike 'not a solution'

by BOB LAHEY

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, predicted Tuesday night that Congress will reject President Ford's recommendation for a 5 per cent income surtax on families with incomes over $15,000.

Crane, vocally upset over parts of Ford's economic measures for both political and economic reasons, made the prediction in an appearance before the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce's annual dinner meeting hours after the President's televised message.

"An increase in taxes at this point is not a solution to any of our problems," Crane told the chamber members at the Lancer's Restaurant in Schaumburg.

In an address which can only be described as deeply pessimistic, Crane said the United States is on the brink of a depression "of the magnitude of 1929," and warned of grave danger of armed intervention by Western European nations against the Arab oil-producing nations that might well lead to "World War III."

HE SAID THE net effect of Ford's economic message would be inflationary, producing less in revenue through the surcharge on income taxes than would be lost through tax credits for business investment — which he welcomed — and the cost of possible public works projects outlined by the President.

Politically, Crane said, the President's surtax proposal struck yet another blow at Republican Congressional candidates. He said the surtax has direct impact on districts where Republicans normally

PTA fund to honor girl killed by car

The Parkview School PTA has started a memorial fund for Darle B. Rosenstrater, a Parkview student who died this summer.

The fifth-grade student died in August after being hit by a car while crossing Wolf Road near Euclid Avenue. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Rosenstrater, 902 Sumac Ln.

Mrs. Myrna Kaplan, chairman of the fund committee, said money collected will be used to purchase items for the school library and media center. She said a plaque with Darle's name will be attached to the items.

The PTA will be selling all occasion cards for a minimum $1 donation. The cards are suitable for any occasion and state that a donation was made in the name of the recipient.

For further information, residents are asked to contact Mrs. Kaplan at 298-4685.

Jaycees to consider coupon plan

Next year the Mount Prospect Jaycees may adopt the Rolling Meadows 'coupon plan for Halloween treats,' according to Dick LaNasa, president of the local organization.

The Rolling Meadows plan is one in which merchants sell coupons which residents buy and distribute to trick-or-treaters. The youngsters redeem the coupons at the local shops for merchandise.

The coupons are in penny and nickel denominations and $2,000 worth were purchased last year in the nearby suburb. They are on sale for one month prior to the holiday and can be redeemed for two weeks following. Youngsters get their choice of goodies at the stores but not cash.

The Mount Prospect Jaycee board met last week and discussed the possibility of setting up such a plan.

LaNasa said, "It's too late this year to develop a coupon system but we certainly will consider it and perhaps try to enact one next year. It would insure a safer Halloween so far as treats are concerned. Parents wouldn't have to worry about kids eating things that may have been tampered with. The safety factor is tremendous."

In Mount Prospect this year the traditional October 31 date will be the official village day for costumes little ones to knock on doors. For the past two years the 'treat' day was held on the Sunday before Halloween.

THE VILLAGE public relations gal, Dolores Haugh, is speaking to the Extensioners Thursday. She'll be telling them some of the town's plans for the upcoming bicentennial celebration.

AT ILLINOIS State University last weekend, a Mount Prospect girl had a big part in the pre and post game activity at the football game pitting ISU against Central Michigan.

Jean Freyman of 514 Prospect Manor was the center of attraction out on the field, twirling her baton. She was right in the middle of the Redbird marching band, a full contingent of cheerleaders and a bevy of pom pom girls.

Jean has been twirling for years, was constantly in the spotlight "doing her thing" at Prospect high school for four years. Now, as a freshman at state, she's still spinning the baton.

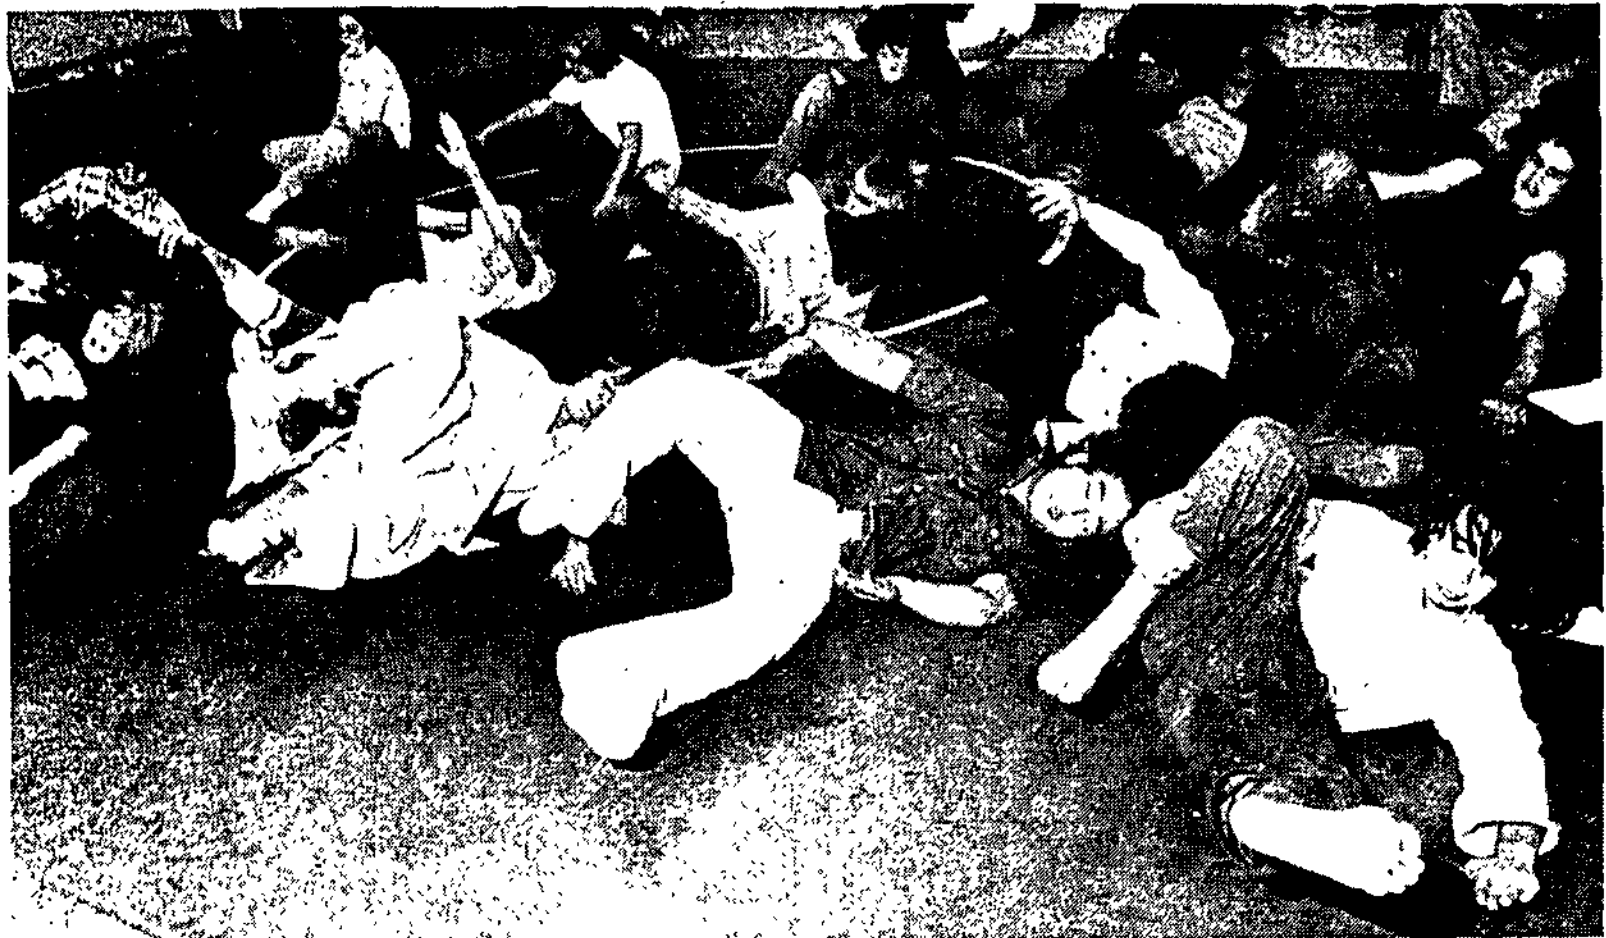

IT WAS ALSO High School Band Contest Day at ISU and Hersey was on hand and took top prize. The band parent's organization is having an auction next Saturday, Oct. 12 at the Mount Prospect Plaza, Rand and Central roads, 11 a.m. Merchants are contributing items which will be on the block.

The Rose Bowl-bound band now has about $20,000 of their $50,000 needed for the trip.

DON'T FORGET TO buy your Burning Bushes, the official shrub of the village. Two and a half foot tall dwarf type plants cost $5.

North sliders should call 255-8028 to make arrangements to pick up bushes. South sliders, 255-2255.

Would really be super if every piece of property in town had at least one of the bushes.

3 area residents linked to burglaries

Police from several suburbs are considering burglary charges today against two men arrested Monday for the burglary of a Mount Prospect residence.

Mount Prospect police have several additional charges prepared against the suspects, Charles N. Hardt, 20, and Robert L. Clark, 21, both of 9250 Noel Dr. in an unincorporated area near Des Plaines. Sgt. Patrick Hallihan of the Mount Prospect police said the pair have been linked to 14 burglaries in Mount Prospect, including several last winter in the Weller Creek area and Monday's burglary at 717 S. Williams St.

Hallihan said the pair also have been linked to two or three burglaries each in Schaumburg, Arlington Heights, Elk Grove Village, Des Plaines, Elgin and the unincorporated areas. Additionally, he said they have been connected with a burglary in Palatine and one in Streamwood.

A THIRD MAN was arrested late Tuesday. Police said he will be charged with possession of stolen property in connection with burglaries in Mount Prospect. His name was withheld.

Hardt and Clark were arrested Monday night after police were called to a burglary in progress at 717 S. Williams St. A short chase through Des Plaines side streets followed, with Arlington Heights and Des Plaines police assisting.

Police said the suspects left the car in Des Plaines and fled on foot. However, police, by using identification left in the car, were able to discover where the pair lived and made the arrests there that night. Each is being held on $2,000 bond in the one burglary.

Property has been recovered from the Williams Street burglary in Mount Prospect and one Elk Grove burglary. Also, Hallihan said numerous other items were found in the suspects' apartment and have been put on display by Elk Grove Village police for victims to identify.

Dist. 59 wrapup

Schools to waive fund-raising ban

The Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education has temporarily waived a policy which prohibits school groups from using children in fund-raising activities.

The policy, seldom enforced by the board, will be reevaluated next week by the policy committee.

Several parent groups in the district have had children help raise funds by going door to door and selling candy. Other parent groups were planning on asking children to help in upcoming fundraisers.

The board became involved when parents at Frost School in Mount Prospect requested permission to sponsor a candy sale. Judd Thompson, principal at Frost, came across the policy while checking the district manual.

The policy states, "No fund raising where money is solicited through the children enrolled in the schools of the district shall be permitted unless it has been recommended by the superintendent and has approval by the board of education."

Some board members were hesitant to approve door-to-door solicitation by children, but did not want parent groups which have ordered candy to be saddled with the loss.

Board Pres. Gerald Smiley said the policy committee will probably more clearly define what types of fund-raising projects are acceptable.

Many types of fund-raising projects which don't involve children selling, such as taffy apple sales or hamburger days in school, are common in the district.

Educational goals approved

Eight educational goals were approved by the board to be included in the policy manual.

The goals include:

- Complete the review of the science program and recommend desired program changes and direction.
 - Review the physical education program and recommend changes.
 - In grades six to eight, examine student alternatives in the selection of programs in art, music, foreign language, etc.
 - Study the cumulative record system and develop changes in it.
 - Install new math and new social studies programs. (Programs have already been chosen)
 - Improve junior high school reading instruction and continue to improve writing skills.
 - Continue preparing and offering inservice training.
 - Organize and start reading clinic for reading teachers.
- An additional goal called for the establishment of a group of teachers, administration, citizens and board members to discuss and recommend district goals.

Leaf pickup gets under way here

Leaf pickup service in Mount Prospect is under way and village crews will work six days a week through Nov. 30 clearing up fallen and raked leaves.

There is no time schedule for pickup service, according to Public Works Director David Creamer, but as loads increase additional hours will be spent clearing leaf piles.

Residents should rake leaves into the gutter or at the curb to facilitate pickup service.

Creamer said photography buffs will find fall colors at their peak within the next two weeks. More than 700 trees, including sugar maples, oaks and acerburns, the official village tree, have been planted and will provide a long session of color change.

While the municipality does not control property outside its boundaries, it is given some voice in the zoning of property within 1½ miles. For example, when the owner of a parcel of land in unincorporated Wheeling or Elk Grove township applies to the County Zoning Board of Appeals for a zoning change, the Village of Mount Prospect can file a statutory objection if village officials oppose the rezoning.

The objection means the zoning change would have to be approved by a three-fourths, rather than a simple majority of the Cook County board.

By having a comprehensive plan to specify certain zoning uses, even for property outside Mount Prospect, the village has some legal basis for lodging an objection to a zoning change which does not conform to the overall plan.

THE PRESENT Mount Prospect comprehensive plan, which has remained unchanged since its adoption in 1968, does not include such major boundary changes as the 1971 annexation of the New Town section in the northeast portion of the village.

Grier has said the updated plan will call for the 1½-mile area outside the village to extend to Palatine Road on the north, the Northwest Tollway on the south, the Tri-State Tollway on the east and the Village of Arlington Heights on the west.

Final action on the plan will come from the village board.

$2.5 million U.S. funds to be sought

The Village of Arlington Heights will go after nearly $2.5 million in federal funds available to it over the next five years.

The money is available under the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. To apply for it, Arlington Heights will have to come up with a schedule of community improvements and specific plan of subsidized housing for low-income persons.

A special committee, chaired by Village Pres. Ralph H. Clabour, and made up of representatives from the village board, the Arlington Heights Park District, the chamber of commerce, homeowners associations, the housing commission and the environmental control commission will be named to identify the village's community objectives.

The federal money can be used for a wide range of local activities including land acquisition, public works, slum clearance and redevelopment.

Bus purchase held up

The village has held up the sale of two buses once used by Metron Systems Corp., pending approval of a $50,000 contract purchase by the Arlington Heights Park Board.

The park district may buy the two vehicles to replace a pair of school buses. Payment would be spread out over 10 years, and would include utility tax money paid by the park district but normally refunded by the village.

$11,500 for Dwyer OK'd

The village board has agreed to spend an additional $11,500 to complete the paving of Dwyer Avenue north of Campbell Street this year. Without the extra money, reconstruction of the street would have been delayed until next spring.

A similar addition of $2,500 was added to the Ridge-Walnut grade crossing project.

In each case the money will be used to buy a special cold-weather street surfacing material.

Homecoming week activities under way at Prospect High

A week of activities are planned for Prospect High School's 18th annual Homecoming festivities.

Today will be "Fifties Day," as students will dress in fashions of the 1950s. Fashion shows during the lunch hours will allow students to show off their clothes.

A parade will start at Owens Park, Owen Street and Busse Road, starting about 6 p.m. Thursday and proceed to the Prospect Athletic Field. A pep rally starts at 7 p.m. and a dance in the gym will run from 8 to 10 p.m.

Friday is school color day. The homecoming queen will be crowned in the afternoon.

Queen candidates are Cindy Christensen, Anne Cornell, Diane Kallimant, Karen Istrem and Jayne White.

The Friday night football game against Conant High School starts at 8 p.m.

Park district brochures late

The Arlington Heights Park District fall-winter program brochure was two weeks late in arriving from the printer's office this year.

"The delay has caused a few residents of the village some inconvenience in registering for programs. Many of the programs were closed by the time some people finally got their brochures," said Kay Muller, park board member.

The park district initiated the policy this year that mail-in registrations would take priority over in-person registrations until Sept. 21. Persons who did not receive their brochures until late in September were late in registering.

"The park district really regrets the delay. We had the brochure into the printer early enough, but it didn't get back to us until later than we expected," said Thomas Thornton park district director.

Cultural center still only a dream

Little progress has been made in the last several months to bring an Arlington Heights Cultural Center into being.

Sidney Rosenfeld, cultural commission chairman, said about $11,000 has been raised toward the commission's goal of $25,000. That money would pay for the architect, Don M. Hisaka & Assn. of Cleveland, to design the center. Once a design is available, the commission is hopeful that further contributions could be solicited for the estimated $3 million multi-use center proposed for 400 N. Dunton Ave.

Rosenfeld said no additional funds have come in for the last several months, but negotiations with a few potential contributors are in progress.

The bulk of the present treasury has been donated by the Community Arts Council, whose members include the Village Theatre Inc., the Best Off Broadway Players Inc., Music on Stage Inc., and Countryside Art Gallery.

THE CULTURAL commission decided in August to approach corporations and individuals for contributions.

This latest fund-raising effort is seen by some as being the commission's final push to get the cultural center off the ground. A village cultural center has been in various stages of discussion and planning since 1962. The commission has a basic plan for the center, designed by theater designer George C. Izenour of Yale University. The plan was completed in 1972 at a cost to the village of $6,000.

The library, presently studying expansion to accommodate its growing needs, is considering a southward extension that would use the present cultural center site. After the library board studies plans for alternate southern or western expansion, it hopes to meet with village trustees about using the cultural center site. A meeting is tentatively slated for late October.

Meanwhile, Rosenfeld continues his fund-raising efforts, describing his attitude as "hopeful rather than optimistic."

Man charged with race track murder

Murder charges were filed Tuesday against a former employee at Arlington Park track in connection with the beating death of a California man in August.

Stanley Woods is being sought for the murder of John H. Walker, 51, Covina, Calif. Woods and a companion, John "One-Step Jack" Cochran are charged with the theft of Walker's car, police said.

Arlington Heights police said Walker died at McNeal Memorial Hospital, Berwyn, after he suffered "numerous" blows to the head during a fight at Arlington Park where he and Woods were employed as stable hands.

In statements given to local police in August Woods and Cochran, who also worked at the track, said they found the victim lying unconscious in a parking lot at the track. Believing him to be intoxicated, the pair told police, they put him in his car.

THEY ALSO reportedly told police they returned to the car later that day and upon finding Walker still unconscious, drove him to Hawthorne Park, Cicero, where Mrs. Walker worked. Cochran reportedly remained at Arlington Park.

A guard at Hawthorne directed Woods to take the victim to McNeal Hospital where he was admitted with a large lump on the back of his head, police said. Walker died without regaining consciousness.

About a week after the incident, Mrs. Walker reported that Woods and Cochran never returned her husband's car after taking him to the hospital.

When Arlington Heights detectives attempted to question Woods and Cochran further in late August, it was learned they had left the track.

WOODS HAS BEEN charged with murder and auto theft. There was no bond set for him. Cochran was charged with auto theft and $10,000 bond was set.

Walker's car was recovered in Tennessee, police said. It is believed the pair is still in Tennessee or Kentucky, police said.

Arthur Goldberg named to park board vacancy

Arthur Goldberg, 319 S. Yale Ave., was appointed Tuesday night to the Arlington Heights Park Board.

Goldberg, 35, succeed Bruce Everly, whose resignation, announced last month, became effective this week.

Goldberg was selected from among nine applicants, who were described by Park Comr. Kay Muller as "outstanding candidates in their own right."

The fact that Goldberg is "experienced in marketing research and communications with the public," is one reason why he was selected by the board for the position, she said. Goldberg is president of Arthur Goldberg and Associates.

He is the past chairman of the Arlington Heights Boys Baseball and Basketball Inc., has coached village baseball games, and has frequently attended park board meetings, Mrs. Muller said.

Goldberg will be expected to run in the April election for the remaining four years of Everly's six-year term, according to ground rules established by the board.

Everly, elected in April 1973, was formerly with McFadden and Everly, Ltd., and is negotiating the purchase of a company in Glenwood Springs, Colo.

Everly was appointed this year as the park district's representative on the Arlington Heights Plan Commission.

Order removal of plants

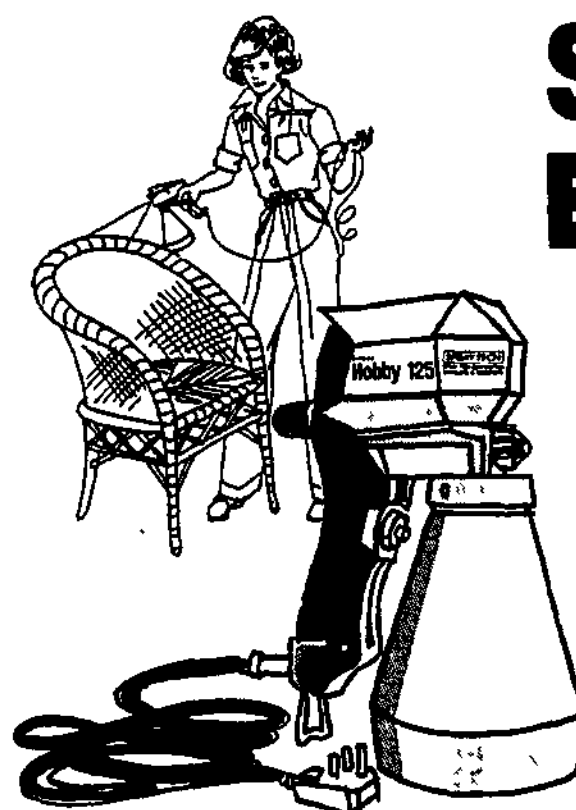

Arlington Heights residents who have flowers and vegetables planted on the Commonwealth Edison Co. right-of-way of the village's Prairie Farm have two weeks to remove their plants.

The park district, which maintains the farm, will have tractors turning the soil by the end of October for next spring's planting season.

It is uncertain whether residents will be able to plant vegetables and flowers next year on the Prairie Farm and Garden Park at Belmont Avenue and Council Trail.

The district is planning to construct a copy of a typical mid-19th century Illinois farm on the property.
